I AFFECTIONATELY INSCRIBE THIS BOOK.

PREFACE

ON my arrival at Nanzela in July, 1902, I found it necessary to commence at the very beginning in learning the language, for nothing had as yet been done to reduce it to a written form. I was fortunate in having some knowledge of the Suto language and in securing as my first assistant a young man who knew considerable Suto as well as Ila. With his help I began at once to compile a vocabulary and to make grammatical notes. After a time I found that this man used a dialect which was more like Tonga than real Ila; so I procured the assistance of another young man, who was a true Mwila, and who had lived for some time at the mission. He has continued to be my assistant since then, and his help has been invaluable. The extensive knowledge he has displayed of his own language, and especially the copiousness of his vocabulary, have been a constant source of wonder and pleasure to me. From the beginning I had the intention of compiling such a Handbook as this; and I now submit the result of my labours to my fellow pioneers in North-Western Rhodesia, trusting that they may find it a help in learning the language.

I do not pretend to have mastered every detail of the language; but as it is certain that I shall have to make the same remark if I continue my studies for many years, I do not think that is a reason for delaying the publication of the book. Whatever has been omitted through ignorance or inadvertence, the main outlines of the language will, I believe, be found correctly delineated.

And here I should like to utter a word of caution. If any one using this book finds that some expression he has caught from a native is different in sound or form from what he reads here, I would ask him not to hastily conclude that I am wrong. In different parts of the country different words are used, and the same words may occur in slightly different forms; indeed one man will at one time pronounce a word in a certain way and at another differently. I shall be glad if readers will note down any variations they find, any new grammatical forms, and any new words, and communicate them to me, so that later it may be possible to compile a more complete work.

It has been my aim throughout to produce a book that will be of practical use to those who desire to learn the language. Matter that would be of interest to philologists merely I have either entirely omitted or had printed in smaller type than the rest of the book. And I have paid special attention to preparing the exercises, which I should like to bring to the particular notice of readers.

It was my intention to have added another chapter to the grammar dealing with the relation of Ila to other Bantu languages. For this I had prepared many notes tracing the resemblances to and variations from other languages, and had collected also short vocabularies of the Koya, Lamba, Luba and Sodi dialects, all as yet unwritten. But I have been compelled by lack of space to omit this.

The sentence, and not a word, is the unit of language ; and one of the chief difficulties in systematizing a new language is to determine the method of dividing sentences into their component words. In this respect this book will be found to differ considerably from some other works on Bantu. In reading some books one is struck by the inordinate length of the words. Thus in the first Kaffir grammar published we find on one page a long list of words containing from eighteen to twenty-five letters each ; e. g. Dayendibendingebendibendi. And in the latest Kaffir grammar we find such words as Obungenakulanda-buzeka. In Kongo, again, such as Bekutufwantalakeselanga. In Ganda, Natambulatabulakedomusana. The explanation of such words is that they are compounded of various pronouns, particles, verbs, &c. It would no doubt be possible to match these with equally lengthy words in Ila, but I cannot but think that they must prove a stumbling-block to learners. I have, therefore, made it a rule to write as far as possible the various pronouns, &c., by themselves ; though as a matter of convenience, and where it may be done without causing any perplexity, I have, in some instances, joined into one word several small particles. In this method I have followed the example set by Zulu and other grammarians.

In issuing this Handbook I cherish the hope that it may lead many to study the language and not to use Kitchen Kaffir. For those who are not familiar with the term, I may explain that Kitchen Kaffir is a hotch-potch of many dialects, without grammatical structure and very limited as to vocabulary. It is largely used by Europeans throughout South Africa, and it is a proof of the intelligence of the natives that they frequently understand what in reality is the most arrant nonsense. It is customary to laugh at the 'pidgin' English spoken by natives ; how much greater reason is there for ridicule when one hears an educated Englishman speaking a jargon at least as hideous as any corruption of English ! I am sure that readers of this book will agree with me that nothing is of more consequence for the future of this country than that Europeans and natives should understand each other ; and for that reason I plead for a careful and diligent study of the native idiom. A knowledge of Ila is the chief means to an understanding of Baila customs and modes of thought. 'Every language is a temple in which the soul of those who speak it is enshrined.' I believe that without knowing the language it is impossible to properly understand any people—especially a savage people like the Baila.

Ila is by no means a difficult language to learn, and I should think that any one could gain a very considerable knowledge of it in six months. As regards methods of study, the well-known aphorism of Bacon is as applicable to Ila as to anything else—'Reading maketh a full man ; conference a ready man ; and writing an exact man.' To learn Ila one must embrace every opportunity of speaking it, not in a careless, slipshod fashion, but with constant and careful attention to pronunciation, accentuation, and grammar. One should aim at speaking as nearly as possible as the natives do. This makes the ready man. I would further recommend readers not to neglect reading and writing. Reading, as Bacon's words suggest, is invaluable as a means of enlarging one's vocabulary and becoming familiar with grammatical forms; the diligent reader will be a full man. It is for this reason that I have included in the Handbook a number of Ila tales. These I have written down from natives' dictation; and I trust they may be as useful to others as they have been to myself in understanding the language. I would further advise readers to write—not only the exercises given in this book, but also new words, tales, riddles, proverbs, as they may have opportunity. They will, I am sure, find that any labour spent in this way will bear abundant fruit.

In the preparation of this Handbook I have derived considerable help from similar books published on other Bantu languages; among these I would specially refer to Bishop Steere's book on Swahili, Dr. Grout's on Zulu, and Dr. Bentley's on Kongo. Nor must I forget to mention the work on Suto by my friend the Rev. E. Jacottet, a book which laid the foundation of all I have since learnt concerning Bantu languages. Father Torrend's Comparative Grammar has been in my hands constantly of late years, and I have derived much help from it, especially as the language he takes as his standard, Tonga, is a very close cognate to Ila.

I must express my gratitude to the Directors of the British South Africa Company and to the committee of the Primitive Methodist Missionary Society, who together have provided the funds for publishing the Handbook; and, also to my colleague, the Rev. W. Chapman, who is the first European of those now living in the country who settled among the Baila, and who has an unrivalled knowledge of the people and their ways. He has read through most of my manuscript and favoured me with many suggestions and also additions to the vocabularies.

GRAMMAR AND EXERCISES

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTORY

THE Ila language is spoken by the Baila, or, as they are commonly called, the Mashukulumbwe, a people living in North-West Rhodesia on either side of the middle Kafue. The home of the true Baila is a tract of country about 250 miles long by 50 wide. They number about 25,000. But the use of the language is by no means limited to that area. The neighbouring tribes—the Basala, the Bambala, the Balamba, the Baluba—all understand and speak it: to a less extent so do the Mankoya. On the south the language of the Batonga (or Batoka) is so closely allied to Ila that they can hardly be called different languages. The language of the Basubia is also very similar. It will therefore probably be found that Ila is the most widely understood, and therefore the most useful, language in North-West Rhodesia.

The name Mashukulumbwe was given to the Baila by the Marotsi, whose custom it was at one time to make periodic raids into the country for slaves and cattle. The meaning of the word is doubtful, but in some way it probably refers to the chief physical characteristic of the Baila, their tall head-dresses. Another name heard in connexion with the tribe is 'Bamala'. This strictly applies to the inhabitants of the Mala district, but inasmuch as that is the centre of the true Baila the name is sometimes applied to the whole tribe. It will be noticed that Mala corresponds to Ila as plural to singular; but the derivation of the words is very obscure.

Around Nanzela the majority of the people call themselves Balumbu, and others bearing the same name are found elsewhere. They differ somewhat from the true Baila in their customs: in not wearing the cone, and in not going naked. The nucleus of these people seems to have migrated from the south-west: slaves and refugees from other tribes have swelled their numbers. Whatever their original language, they now speak Ila, but with certain variations. The aim of this Handbook is to record the true Ila language: any Lumbu variations will be found noted in the vocabulary.

The Baila have always had the reputation of being a particularly savage and turbulent people. Until the arrival of the pioneers of the Baila-Batonga Mission at the end of 1893, no European had settled in their country. There are stories still to be heard among the people of Europeans who had previously visited them and who were murdered or robbed: two well-known travellers, Holub and Selous, met with the latter fate and barely escaped from the former.

Ila belongs to the great family of languages to which the name Bantu is given, and which covers almost the whole of Africa south of a line drawn obliquely across the continent from the Cameroons to the mouth of the Tana River.

To these languages certain terms are applied by philologists. They are said to be Agglutinative languages. This point, which however is of very little practical importance, may be understood from the following quotation:—‘In the agglutinative languages grammatical relations are shown by prefixing, suffixing, or infixing sounds and syllables which are no longer independent words, and yet are clearly distinguishable from the full-words they modify, and not inextricably blended with them as in inflexion. If English, in addition to word-order and form-words, indicated grammatical relations only by such formations as un-just-ly, care-less-ness, it would be an agglutinative language.’¹

They are also termed prefix pronominal languages, because the pronouns are formed from the prefixes of the nouns, not as in the case of many languages, from the suffixes.

From a practical standpoint, the most important principle of these languages is that of the Alliterative or euphonic concord.

Now, the term alliteration is a well-known one. Early English poetry, we are told, had alliteration as its rule in place of rhyme; and to-day 'Alliteration's artful aid' is often invoked for the sake of emphasis or as a mere play of the fancy. Compare Shakespeare's line:—

'The praiseful princess pierced and pricked a pretty pleasing pricket.'

In Ila, as in all Bantu languages, alliteration, i. e. the continued repetition of one letter or syllable (sometimes changed slightly but always immediately recognizable), is not an accident of style, it is the very essence of the language. The whole structure of the language is based upon it. In the inflexional languages, the relation between the various words in a sentence is shown by suffixes. Thus in Greek: anthrop-os agath-os, a good man; anthrop-oi agath-oi, good men. In Latin: porta bona, a good gate; port-ae bon-ae, good gates. In French: un homme bon, a good person; des hommes bons, good people. In English: the tree's leaf; the trees' leaves. In Ila this grammatical relation is formed by means of prefixes, not suffixes: we have to look at the beginning of words, not the end. Thus: mu-ntu mu-botu, a good man: ba-ntu ba-botu, good people. The noun is the chief word in the sentence: it is the master, so to speak, and every pronoun or adjective dependent upon it takes its prefix (or modification of it) as a livery or mark of dependence.

This will be clear from the following examples:—

Mu-ntu u-mwi mu-botu mw-ini-mw-ini wa ke za.

Lit.—Person one good truly he did come.

One really good person came.

Ba-ntu ba-mwi ba-botu be-ni-be-ni ba ke za.

Lit.—People others good truly they did come.

Other really good people came.

A ka letwa ma-samo a-mwi ma-lamfu me-ni-me-ni; twa a zanda.

Lit.—They were brought trees other long truly : we them like.

Other really long trees were brought : we like them.

Tw-ambo twa-kwe tu-mwi ntu-biabe twi-ni-twi-ni: twa tu sula.

Lit.—Sayings his some bad truly : we them hate.

Some of his sayings are really bad : we hate them.

Nchi che-chi chi-ntu cha-ngu nchi nda leta.

Lit.—It this thing mine which I bring.

This is my thing which I have brought.

Nshi she-shi shi-ntu sha-ngu nshi nda leta.

Lit.—They these things mine which I bring.

These are my things which I have brought.

This is the principle of the Euphonic or Alliterative Concord.

NOTE.—Many variations exist in spelling the word Mashukulumbwe. The following may be mentioned :—Bashukulompo (Livingstone); Mashukulumbe (Holub and Arnot); Mashukulumbwi (Selous); Bashikulombwe (Sir H. Johnston); Mashikulumbwe (Gibbons). The French spelling is Machikouloumboue. The spelling adopted above is that used in the Mission from the beginning, and the one adopted by the R. G. S. and the B. S. A. Co.'s Administration. It would be best to drop the use of this ponderous polysyllable in favour of 'Baila', the true tribal name of the people.

NOTE.—As some misunderstanding may occur with reference to the use of the terms Ila, Chila, Baila, Bwila, Mwila, it may be as well to explain their use here. The word Chila cannot be used adjectively so as to say : the Chila language, for it includes within itself the idea of the language. Ila is properly so used : say, the Ila language, the Ila people, the Ila country; or simply : Chila, Baila, Bwila. In speaking of the language it is permissible to speak simply of Ila. But only in use with Europeans : no native would understand 'Ila'; in speaking to natives be careful to say Chila. The use of Ila is thus similar to that of English in the following phrases : the English people, the English language, the English country.

CHAPTER II

PHONOLOGY

THE principles guiding the Ila orthography are as follows:—

1. To write phonetically, i. e. as the words are pronounced.

2. To write the principal words of a sentence, nouns and verbs, without any addition of particles such as auxiliaries, pronouns, prepositions, &c.

But it is not always practicable to carry out these principles to their fullest extent, as they are sometimes found in antagonism to each other. That is to say, it is sometimes convenient, in order to preserve the correct sound, to join words together which otherwise were best written separately. Thus the irregular verbs are written kwiba (for ku iba), kwina (for ku ina), &c. Again, to carry out the second principle we are sometimes bound to write grammatically instead of phonetically. Thus in the regular verbs we write ku amba (pronounced kwamba), ku imba (pronounced kwimba), &c. These need cause the student no trouble.

SECT. I. THE ALPHABET.

The Ila alphabet consists of twenty-four letters, i. e. the English alphabet without the signs q and x. The sound of q is represented by kw: x is not required.

The Vowels.

The vowels are a, e, i, o, u: but each has more than one value according to the stress laid upon it.

a	is pronounced as a in mat	written ǎ	ku mǎtǎ , to daub.
a long	„ „ a „ father	„ a	ku matǎ , to daub.
e	„ „ e „ then	„ ě	ku bětěka , to judge.
e long	„ „ e „ there	„ e	menzhi , water.
i	„ „ i „ pity	„ ĩ	chĩntu , a thing.

i long	is pronounced as i in ravine	written ī	ku dīla , to cry.
o	„ „ o „ on	„	ō bōngo , brains.
o long	„ „ o „ bone	„	ō insōki , grass seed.
o broad	„ „ o „ bore	„	ō ku bōla , to rot.
u	„ „ u „ full	„	ū Mūntu , a person.
u long	„ „ oo „ fool	„	ū ku fūla , to blow.

Diphthongs.

There are two diphthongs in Ila : ai and oi. Ai is pronounced as in the English affirmative aye : oi as in boy.

Examples : Bongai ? Shongai ? Ongai ? Ingoi.

But often these vowels come together and are separately pronounced, with no diphthongal sound, although in rapid speech they may seem to have. In that case a diæresis is placed over the latter vowel. Thus : Chinshainshai, ingaina, mai, ku-waii.

The Consonants.

The consonants are as follows :—

B pronounced as b in bone. Ku bona, to see.

B sometimes has a slightly explosive sound as in ku bala, to read. Cf. ku bala, to pass by.

C occurs only in the compound Ch.

D pronounced as d in die. Ku dila, to cry.

D is very closely related to l : when followed by i it is often very difficult to know whether to write di or li.

F pronounced as f in fool Ku fula, to blow.

G „ „ g „ gone Ku guna, to nod.

H „ „ h „ hump Ku humpa, to crowd.

J „ „ j „ joy Njovwa, help me.

K „ „ k „ kangaroo Kangashikoswe, a mouse.

L „ „ l „ lap Ku lapa, to convey

M „ „ m „ mamma Mama! Oh dear !

N „ „ n „ nine Nini, so-and-so.

P „ „ p „ parlour Ku pala, to scrape.

R „ „ r „ rest (See note below.)

S pronounced as s in salad	Ku sala , to choose.
T „ „ t „ tumour	Ku tuma , to send.
V „ „ v „ very	Ku vwima , to hunt.
Z „ „ z „ zeal	Ku zea , to consider.

NOTE.—The sound of the English r is never heard in Ila, but is introduced here for use in spelling proper names transferred from other languages. In such cases the Baila would sound the r as l; but often the r seems necessary in writing in order to preserve the integrity of the names. For example: Kreste, Abrahama, would be pronounced as Keleste, Abelahama.

Compound Consonants.

CH. This varies between the sound of ch in church and the sound of tue in virtue. Sometimes it comes very near to k to which it is phonetically closely allied.

TCH represents ch preceded by the explosive t, as in Tchita, I don't know.

SH is pronounced as in English, shin. Shintu, things.

ZH is pronounced as z in azure. Ku zhala, to bring forth.

VH. By this we represent the peculiar sound in so many Ila words, e. g. ku vhumba; ku vhwá. It is neither v nor h, nor is it an aspirated v. In fact it must be heard to be learnt. It and its nasalized form ngvh are the only difficult Ila sounds to acquire.

NG. There are in Ila two distinct sounds of ng, corresponding to the sounds in English of finger (fing-ger) and singer (sing-er). In the former, the sound of g passes over to the following vowel, and so we get a different sound from that in singer, in which there seems to be a slight hiatus between the ng and the next vowel. Both these sounds are in Ila. The former is represented by ng, the latter by ng'.

Examples.

Ng (finger).

Ng' (singer).

Ingubi.

Ing'ombe.

Ingaina.

Ing'anda.

Manga.

Mang'a.

NOTE.—The difference between ng and ng' will be noticed in the Grammar and Vocabularies, but elsewhere there is no need to distinguish between them, as one soon becomes accustomed to the words in which they occur.

Combinations of Consonants.

No two consonants come together except (a) in the case of the nasals m and n which may be prefixed to other consonants ; and (b) the semi-vowels which may be suffixed to other consonants.

Nasalized consonants are rather troublesome to a European, but the difficulty of pronouncing them is more apparent than real. In the following list, if the English words be divided and pronounced as shown, they will give sounds very like the Ila.

mb	pronounced as mb in co- mb ine	thus: ko-mbila.
nd	„ „ nd „ la- nd ing	„ ta-ndila.
mf	„ „ mf „ co- mf ort	„ ku-mfusa.
nj	„ „ ng „ lou- ng er	„ i-njelo.
nk	„ „ nk „ la- nk y	„ i-nkuti.
mp	„ „ mp „ la- mp oon	„ la-mpisha.
ns	„ „ ns „ cou- ns el	„ me-nso.
nt	„ „ nt „ hu- nt ing	„ i-ntimba.
nw	„ „ nw „ i- nw ard	„ ka-nwino.
ny	„ „ ny „ la- ny ard	„ i-nyemo.
nz	„ „ ns „ clea- ns ing	„ mushi-nzo.
nch	„ „ nc „ co- nc etto (c = ch),	„ ku nchi-dila.
nsh	„ „ ns „ pe- ns ion	„ ma-nsha.

There is also ngvh, as in bongvhu, for which there is no English equivalent.

The combination of consonants with the semi-vowels gives a long list which it is not necessary to record here.

The Semi-vowels.

W and Y are semi-vowels.

W is the sound of u followed by another vowel.

u + a = wa ; u + e = we ; u + o = wo ; u + i = wi.

Y is the sound of i followed by another vowel.

i + a = ya ; i + e = ye ; i + o = yo ; i + u = yu.

W and Y are not used in those cases where the two vowels are separately pronounced. Often in such cases a very light w or y may be detected between the vowels, as in iya = ia; iyi = ii; iyamba = iamba; bowa = boa; sowa = soa.

Examples.

mwami mwangu (= muami uangu); intipa yangu (= intipa iangu).

SECT. 2. PHONETIC CHANGES.

The principle of euphony, or the easy enunciation of sounds, plays a great part in Ila, and demands many changes in vowels and consonants when they come together. In some cases a toning down takes place by which harder sounds are made easier; in other cases a strengthening of weaker sounds so that they may be brought out and better heard. All through the following changes this is the principle at work.

Changes in Consonants.

1.—When m is prefixed to words beginning with b which contain another nasal, the b is deleted.

Examples.

ku bamba	Ba la m'amba (= mba-mba)	They arrange me.
ku banda	Ba la m'anda (= mba-nda)	They name me.
ku banzela	Ba la m'anzela (= mba-nzela)	They take out (grain) for me.
ku bambasikila	Ba la m'ambasikila (= mbambasikila)	They level for me.

This is also seen when the classifier IM- is added to stems beginning with b. Thus: Lubanza, a courtyard. Imanza (— im-banza), courtyards.

2.—When n is prefixed to words beginning with l which contain another nasal, the l is deleted.

Examples.

ku lumba Ba la n'umba (= nlumba) They thank me.
 ku londela Ba la n'ondela (= nlondela) They receive for me.
 ku lanzha Ba la n'anzha (= nlanzha) They show me.
 ku lengela Ba la n'engela (= nlengela) They cut up for me.
 ku lambila Ba la n'ambila (= nlambila) They worship me.

This is also seen when the classifier IN- is prefixed to stems in 1. Thus: Inembo (= inlembo, from ku lemba, to engrave), engraving.

3.—In cases other than the above l becomes d when n or m is prefixed. Thus: ku lemeka. Ba la ndemeka, they honour me.

4.—When n or m is prefixed to words beginning with y, y changes into j.

Examples.

ku yaya Ba la njaya (= nyaya) They kill me.
 ku yalwila Ba la njalwila (= nyalwila) They open for me.
 ku yana Ba la njana (= nyana) They find me.

5.—Before an initial w, n becomes ng.

ku wisha Wa ngwisha (= nwisha) He throws me down.
 ku wezela Wa ngwezela (= nwezela) He hunts for me.

6.—Before i, l generally is sounded as d. (See note above, p. 6.)

Ku bala, to carry on the back. Ku badika, to cause to carry.
Ku sala, to choose. Ku sadisha, to choose carefully.

7.—For the sake of euphony letters are often introduced into a word. These letters are generally termed epenthetic, but they really mean that a strong nasal is introduced to make the word sound more forcibly.

Examples.

From the adj. -inu. Cf. ing'ombe injinu with muntu mwinu.
 From the root -anda. Cf. ing'anda with ianda.
 From the root -ombe. Cf. ing'ombe with mombe.

So when n is prefixed to verbs beginning with a vowel.

Ku idila, to imitate. Ba la njidila, they imitate me.

Ku ita, to pass. Ba la njita, they pass me.

Notice the insertion of g or j in these examples.

Changes in Vowels.

Many changes are caused by two vowels coming together. What takes place is either elision, assimilation, or contraction. Elision means that one of the vowels is dropped; assimilation that one of the vowels is modified to become like the other; contraction means that the two vowels unite to form one.

1.—When two a's come together, elision may take place.

Examples.

Bik' anshi (for Bika anshi) Put down.

Wa amb' ati (for Wa amba ati) He said that.

Kadi mo (for Ka a di mo) He was there.

This rule does not always apply, in deliberate speaking and writing at all events. Thus we may read: Ba la amba, they are speaking. When uttered rapidly the two vowels are slurred over and only one heard, ba l' amba.

2.—When a and e come together, either assimilation or contraction takes place. a + e = ee or e.

Examples.

Beembezhi (or bēmbēzhi) shepherds; for Baembezhi.

Ndi le za I am coming; for Ndi la eza.

3.—When a and i come together contraction takes place. A + i = e.

Examples.

Kedi mo, It was there; for Ka i di mo.

Ne zize, Let it come; for Na i zize.

This takes place when the locative prefix or preposition, a, comes before nouns of class 3. e.g. Ezeulu, above; for a izeulu.

Also in the case of verbs beginning with i, short and unstable. But not when the i is long and permanent. Compare the following:—

Ba le njila, they enter; for ba la injila.

But Ba la ingula, they answer.

Ba le ta, they call; for ba la ita.

But Ba la ita, they pass.

This also takes place in nouns of Class 8 and Class 9 pl., where the initial i is also short and unstable. Compare these with nouns of Class 3.

Ba le te ng'ombe, they bring cattle; for ba leta ingombe.

Ba ine nsana, they have not strength; for ba ina insana.

4.—When ǎ and ũ come together they are contracted into o.

Examples.

Mumoni no be o, let there be light; for na u be o.

Ko ya koko, go thou there; for ka u ya.

This takes place when the nominative personal pronouns ending in a come before the objective pronoun, cl. 2. sing. u. Thus:—

Wo leta, he brought it; for Wa u leta.

5.—Short i is generally elided before another vowel, which then is pronounced long.

Examples.

Chamba, chest; for chiamba.

Chuna, stool; for chiuna.

Notice this in the genitive particles where shi + a becomes sha; chi + a = cha; and in the demonstratives, shi-esho becomes shesho. But dia and bia are not altered because the i is long; so in the demonstratives we have biēbi not bebi.

6.—When a comes before o assimilation or contraction takes place. A + o = oo or o.

Examples.

Ba lo ompolola, or ba l'ompolola; for Ba la ompolola, they call.
Ba lo ona, or ba l'ona; for Ba la ona, they sleep.

7.—When u comes before o contraction takes place.
U + o = o.

Examples.

Bongo; for buongo, brain.

Lozhi; for luozhi, bark-string.

Mombe; for muombe, calf.

NOTE.—Other changes besides the above might be noticed, but it is impossible to note all those caused by rapid utterance. As is only natural where all words end and many begin with vowels, in rapid speaking the vowels are slurred over or omitted. Attention to the above rules and examples will soon enable the student to follow such changes.

SECT. 3. SYLLABLES AND ACCENT.

Every syllable in Ila ends in a vowel. This is an important rule in learning the pronunciation of words. Thus: Muntu is to be divided and pronounced mu-ntu, not mun-tu; ba-mba, not bam-ba; la-nga, not lan-ga.

Instead of learning intricate rules for correctly placing the accent, it is far better for the student to learn by constant intercourse with natives the correct accentuation. Where mistakes are most likely to be made the accent will be found noted in the vocabularies.

It will considerably help him if the student will read through the following exercises with an intelligent native, not to learn the meanings of the words so much as the pronunciation and accent. It would also be to his advantage to read through in the same way the Ila Reading Book, No. 1, which contains a number of Ila tales, lists of hard words, and other reading matter. These will do him more service than learning rules for pronunciation, for it cannot be too strictly urged upon the student that it is from the natives themselves that he must learn how to pronounce the language.

Reading Exercise 1.

A list of words to be carefully distinguished in sound.

Ku bala, to read.	Ku sama, to dress.	Ku shika, to paddle.
Ku bāla, to carry.	Chamba, chest.	Ku shika, to arrive.
Ku bāla, to pass by.	Chamba, an old hoe.	Lwiya, side.
Ku cha, to clear (night).	Chanda, old house.	Lwiya, a horn.
Ku cha, to get fish.	Chānda, curds.	Lwala, mane.
Ku chēka, to set ajar.	Chanda, forked stick.	Lwala, nail, claw.
Ku cheka, to carve.	Changa, an animal.	Manga, kindness.
Ku dia, to pay.	Chango, three-forked stick.	Manga, twins.
Ku dya, to eat.	Chilu, site of ruin.	Mang'a, ruts.
Ku ela, to bear fruit.	Chilu, race of people.	Masuki, many hairs.
Ku ěla, to fit.	Chiwa, drought.	Masuke, buttermilk.
Ku fuma, to sail along.	Chiwa, outer appear- ance.	Mwezhi, moon.
Ku fuma, to be early.	Chulu, ant-heap.	Mwezhi, jawbone.
Ku fumba, to burrow.	Chulu, thousand.	Mwezhi, waterfall.
Ku fumba, to extol oneself.	Ilundu, a mountain.	Mwendo, hind-leg.
Ku fua, to possess.	Ilondo, a drop.	Mwendo, a trader.
Ku fwa, to die.	Imo, very tall person.	Mwini, master.
Ku kamba, to clap.	Imo, razors.	Mwini, handle of hoe.
Ku kamba, to scratch.	Impute, large fish- hook.	Mumi, living person.
Ku komba, to pray.	Impūte, ground-nut.	Mume, dew.
Ku komba, to eat food left over.	Imputi, binding on ' spear.	Munto, name of a tree.
Ku kumba, to brew.	Inkanzo, dancing- place.	Muntu, a person.
Ku lampa, to be long.	Inkanzo, kind of meat.	Inseke, a hen.
Ku lampa, to be sharp.	Insuki, a hair.	Inseke, a grain.
Bongo, brains.	Insoki, grass seed.	Kanda, small fork stick.
Bôngo, he-goats.	Bwanda, curds.	Kānda, small house.
Ku sama, to cut up meat.	Bwanda, a wall.	Ku pela, to lick lips.
		Ku pēla, to sweep.
		Ku soma, to eat new grain.
		Ku soma, to sheathe.

Reading Exercise 2.

Some Salutations.

Person at home :	Wa bonwa	Thou art seen.	Good day.
Stranger :	Nda bonwa	I am seen.
P.	Ku mudi	You are there.	(Inquiry as
S.	Ku tudi	We are there.	to people at stranger's place.)
P.	Mu la langa ?	You are alive ?
S.	Tu la langa	We are alive.
P.	Mwinako	Is your wife there ?
	kwadi ?
S.	Kwadi	She is there.
P.	Mwana u la	Does the child suck ?
	nonka ?
S.	U la nonka	It sucks.
P.	Ku ambwa nzhi?	What is said? i.e. What news?
S.	Ku la inza	It is simply quiet.
	budio
P.	Mu dya nzhi?	What do you eat?
S.	Inzala budio,	Famine only, my friend.

Reading Exercise 3.

Turn to the exercises on Chapters V and VI and read the Ila tales over with a native, ignoring for the present the translation.

CHAPTER III

THE NOUN

SECT. I. CLASSIFICATION.

EVERY noun consists of a root and a prefix. The root carries only a general meaning, the precise signification of the word being given by the prefix. Thus the root -Ila gives the general idea of the Ila people and from it are formed various nouns, each with a definite meaning.

Thus :—

Mw-ila (= Mu-ila), a person of the Ila tribe.

Baila, the Ila people.

Ch-ila (= Chi-ila), the language of the Ila people.

Bw-ila (= Bu-ila), the country of the Ila people.

Again, the root -anda gives the general idea of a dwelling-place ; by adding various prefixes we get the following words:—

In-g^h-anda, a house.

I-anda, a large house.

M-anda (= ma-anda), houses.

Ch-anda (= chi-anda), a tumbledown house.

K-anda (= ka-anda), a small house.

Tw-anda (= tu-anda), small houses.

Bw-anda (= bu-anda), the wall of a house.

These prefixes, thirteen in number, are called classifiers, because by their means all nouns are divided into classes. They are as follows :—1. MU- ; 2. BA- ; 3. MI- ; 4. I- ; 5. MA- ; 6. BU- ; 7. KU- ; 8. KA- ; 9. TU- ; 10. CHI- ; 11. SHI- ; 12. IM- or IN- ; 13. LU-.

In forming number, the prefix of a noun undergoes change to indicate singular or plural, while the root remains unchanged.

Some of the prefixes represent the singular and others the plural. Arranged in pairs they appear as follows:—

Singular.	Plural.
1. MU-	2. BA-
1. MU-	3. MI-
4. I-	5. MA-
6. BU-	5. MA-
7. KU-	5. MA-
8. KA-	9. TU-
10. CHI-	11. SHI-
12. IM- IN-	12. IM- IN-
13. LU-	12. IM- IN-

From this it is seen that the fifth prefix MA- corresponds as plural to three singular prefixes; that the first, MU-, corresponds to two plural prefixes; and that the twelfth appears in both the singular and plural.

Nouns, then, are classified according, not to meaning, but to their prefixes. As has already been explained, and as will be seen more fully presently, the whole structure of the language is built up by means of these prefixes and it is therefore most important to grasp them thoroughly at the start.

We have thus nine classes of nouns.

NOTE.—It is not intended that the many words given as illustrations in this chapter and elsewhere should all be committed to memory: many of them are not common words, and it is useless for the student to commit long lists of words to memory. The words given in the exercises, on the contrary, should be learnt.

Class 1.

This consists of nouns having in the singular the prefix MU- and in the plural BA-. When the root of the noun begins with a vowel MU- generally appears as MW-.

Examples.

Mu-ntu, a person.

Ba-ntu, people.

Mu-lombwana, a man.

Ba-lombwana, men.

Mu-kaintu, a woman.

Ba-kaintu, women.

Mw-iyi, a teacher.

Ba-iyi, teachers.

The nouns of this class are mostly personal.

To it also belong the generic names of animals. Thus:—

Mu-nyama , a wild beast.	Ba-nyama , wild beasts, game.
Mu-zune , a bird.	Ba-zune , birds.
Mu-puka , an insect.	Ba-puka , insects.

Many names of animals belong to this class, mostly those which are large and powerful compared with others of the same kind. Thus:—

Mu-nyati , buffalo.	Ba-nyati , buffaloes.
Mu-sefu , eland.	Ba-sefu , eland.
Mu-zovu , elephant.	Ba-zovu , elephants.
Mu-chende , a bull.	Ba-chende , bulls.
Mu-bondo , the barbel.	Ba-bondo , barbel.

Many proper names are found in this class, though, of course, they have no plural. Such names, however, may take the prefix Ba- to denote a company of people of whom the person named is the leader or representative. Thus:—Ba-Mukamatame, Mukamatame and her people.

Sub-class 1 a.

There are many nouns which are shown by their pronouns and adjectives to belong to class 1, but which have not the proper singular prefix MU-; these may be regarded as belonging to a sub-class.

They include:—

1. Many proper names.

These are largely formed by means of certain prefixes: Shi or Sha, 'father of,' for masculine names; Na, 'mother of,' for feminine. Thus:—

Sha-matanga , the father of melons, or , herds.
Na-miyobo , mother of reeds.

2. Words beginning with Shi, Sha, and She. These are:—
Certain names of animals:—

Shiluwe , a leopard.	Plural: Ba-shiluwe.
Shempela , the rhinoceros.	„ Ba-shempela.
Shimakoma , a kind of snake.	„ Ba-shimakoma.
Shaluzuke , a kind of fish.	„ Ba-shaluzuke.

Certain names of trees and bushes :—

Shikameba, a bush with red fruit. Pl.: Ba-shikameba.

Certain personal nouns :—

Shinkondo , enemy.	Plural: Ba-shinkondo.
Shiluse , a merciful man.	„ Ba-shiluse.
Shatambi , a dumb person.	„ Ba-shatambi.

3. Certain words expressing relationship :—

Tata , my father.	Plural: Ba-tata.
Uso , thy father.	„ Ba-uso.
Ushe , his father.	„ Ba-ushe.
Ushesu , our father.	„ Ba-ushesu.
Ushenu , your father.	„ Ba-ushenu.
Ushabo , their father.	„ Ba-ushabo.
Uachisha , my uncle.	„ Ba-chisha.

4. Certain words which seem by their form to belong to other classes but which really belong to this.

Words beginning Mi which seem to belong to class 2, pl. :—

Mintengwe , a kind of bird.	Plural: Ba-mintengwe.
Mishika , a large hawk.	„ Ba-mishika.

Words beginning with Ka which seem to belong to class 6 :—

Kabwenga , a hyena.	Plural: Ba-kabwenga (not tubwenga).
Kafumbwi , sable antelope.	„ Ba-kafumbwi.
Kakune , a certain snake.	„ Ba-kakune.

Words beginning with Cha or Chi which seem to belong to class 7 :—

Chiwena , crocodile.	Plural: Ba-chiwena.
Chibizi , a zebra.	„ Ba-chibizi.
Chibawe , otter.	„ Ba-chibawe.

5. A few nouns seemingly of class 1 form their plural by prefixing BA- to the singular form of the noun without removing the prefix.

Moze, a kind of bird. Plural: Ba-moze.

Mwaba, a jackal. „ Ba-mwaba.

Nouns of this class have really U as their singular classifier, but with most nouns it is heard only when special emphasis is put on the word. Thus at the beginning of sentences one may hear, or see written, U-chibizi, U-shiluwe.

NOTE.—In the tables of pronouns, &c., it is not necessary to give separate lines to this sub-class as the words contained in it are treated uniformly as those of class 1.

Class 2.

This comprises nouns which in the singular have the prefix MU-, as in cl. 1, and MI- in the plural. They are distinguished from those of cl. 1 by being impersonal. When the root of a word begins with a vowel the classifier generally appears as MW.

Examples.

Mu-kondo, a spoor. Plural: Mi-kondo.

Mu-lusu, a stick. „ Mi-lusu.

Mu-laka, tongue. „ Mi-laka.

Mu-chila, a tail. „ Mi-chila.

Names of trees belong largely to this class. (See list in Eng.-Ila Vocab.)

Examples of contracted words found in this class:—

Mozo, heart. for mu-ozo. Plural: Miozo.

Moza, spirit. „ mu-oza. „ Mioza.

Munda, garden. „ mu-unda. „ Miunda.

Mungo, spoon. „ mu-ungo. „ Miungo.

Class 3.

This consists of nouns whose singular prefix is I- and the plural MA-. The singular prefix is a contraction for DI-, which appears in a few words, and which gives the form to many of the pronouns, &c., belonging to this class.

Examples.

I-dindi , a hole.	Plural : ma-dindi .
I-fufwe , a lung.	„ ma-fufwe .
I-kanda , a soft skin.	„ ma-kanda .
I-kumbi , a cloud.	„ ma-kumbi .

Many nouns in this class are augmentatives. That is to say, the prefix I- gives them the notion of great, large, important. For example:—

Lubu , a reed.	Ibu , a large reed.
Mukaintu , a woman.	Ikaintu , a large woman.
Ing'anda , a house.	Ianda , a large house.
Mulombwana , a man.	Ilombwana , a big man.

Examples of contracted words found in this class:—

Dinso , eye for di-inso.	Plural : menso for ma-inso.
Dino , tooth „ di-ino.	„ meno „ ma-ino.

Class 4.

The singular prefix of this class is BU-, which before roots beginning with a vowel appears as BW-; the plural prefix is MA-.

Examples.

Bu-ta , a bow.	Plural : Ma-ta .
Bu-tala , a grain-bin.	„ Ma-tala .
Bwato , a canoe.	„ Mato (for ma-ato).

Many of the nouns of this class are abstract:—

Bubotu , goodness.	Bubiabe , badness.
Bulozhi , witchcraft.	Buzhike , slavery.
Busongo , wisdom.	Busu , sorrow.
Bufwi , jealousy.	Bwami , authority.

Names of countries belong to this class:—

Bwila , the country of the Baila.
Bukubu ,	„	„ Marotsi.
Butonga ,	„	„ Batonga.

Many nouns in this class are of a collective character and have no plural. Thus:—

Iyi , an egg (cl. 3).	Buyi , roe of a fish.
Mwani , a mopani tree (cl. 2).	Bwani , a mopani forest.
Ibwe , a stone (cl. 3).	Bubwe-bubwe , gravel.
Muzune , a bird (cl. 1).	Buzune , a number of tiny birds regarded as one thing.

Examples of contracted words found in this class:—

Meya , thorns.	for ma- iya .
Bongo , brain.	„ bu- ongo .
Boa , mushroom.	„ bu- owa .
Boza , wool, hair.	„ bu- oza .
Bofu , blindness.	„ bu- ofu .

Class 5.

This class consists of: (a) three nouns which in the singular have KU-, and in the plural MA-; and (b) verbal nouns. These latter are simply verbs in the infinitive mood, Ku, the sign of the infinitive, being prefixed to the verb and becoming a classifier. These nouns are treated in every respect as the others, but have no plural.

Examples.

Ku-twi , an ear.	Plural : Ma-twi .
Ku-boko , forearm.	„ Ma-boko .
Kulu , a leg (for ku- ulu).	„ Ma-ulu .
Kufuna , love, loving.
Kuzanda , wanting, will.

Class 6.

This consists of nouns which in the singular have the prefix KA- and in the plural TU-, which before roots beginning with a vowel appears as TW-. This is the diminutive class, though all nouns in it cannot be regarded as diminutives. To form a diminutive a word is taken from another class, stripped of its prefix and given the prefixes of this class.

Examples.

Mushimbi, a girl (cl. 1). Kashimbi, a little girl. Pl.: Tushimbi.

Isamo, a tree (cl. 3). Kasamo, a stick. Pl.: Tusamo.

Mulonga, a river (cl. 2). Kalonga, a brook. Pl.: Tulonga.

The plural classifier TU- is often used to express a small quantity of something, especially something to eat or drink.

Tukuku, a small quantity of beer. From Bukuku.

Tushima, a small quantity of bread. „ Inshima.

Twino, a small quantity of salt. „ Mwino.

Examples of contractions found in this class:—

Kembe (or Keembe), an axe, for Kaembe.

Kele (or Keele), a scab, for Kaele.

Class 7.

This class consists of nouns which in the singular have the prefix CHI- and in the plural SHI-.

Examples.

Chi-ntu, a thing. Plural: Shi-ntu, things.

Chi-bia, a pot. „ Shi-bia, pots.

Chi-banga, an axe. „ Shi-banga, axes.

Chi-fua, a bone. „ Shi-fua, bones.

A few nouns have BI- as an alternative prefix in the plural.

Bi-dyo or shi-dyo, food.

Bi-ntu or shi-ntu, things.

In many cases CHI- gives the idea of old, broken, worthless. For example:—

Lukoma, a calabash dipper. Chikoma, a spoilt lukoma.

Mukaintu, a woman. Chikaintu, a bad woman.

Iamba, a hoe. Chamba, an old hoe.

Names of languages belong to this class :—

Chila, the language of the Baila.

Chitonga, the language of the Batonga.

It would be more correct, perhaps, to regard the Chi in such cases as indicating 'custom' or 'manner', e.g. U la amba Chitonga, he speaks after the manner of the Batonga. The prefix has this meaning in many nouns. Thus: Wa zaka chikua, he builds after the manner of a white man; Wa mata chikaintu, he daubs after the manner of a woman. Allied to this, if not identical with it, is the prefix Cha which goes to form adverbs. U la chita chansana, he does with strength, forcibly; U la chita chaluse, he does in a merciful manner, mercifully.

Examples of contractions found in this class :—

Chulu, an ant-heap, for chi-ulu.

Chamba, chest, for chi-amba.

Chela, iron, for chi-ela.

Class 8.

This comprises nouns which are identical in form in both numbers, i. e. both the singular and plural classifiers are IM- or IN-. The numbers are only distinguishable by the pronouns which follow, the singular personal pronoun being i or ya, the plural shi or sha. Thus :—

Impongo i la ya, the goat is going.

Impongo shi la ya, the goats are going.

The prefix IM- is found before roots beginning with b, p, and w; IN- before others.

Examples.

Sing. and Plur. In-komo, bag, bags.

„ „ In-gubo, blanket, blankets.

„ „ In-swi, fish, fishes.

„ „ Im-poko, knife, knives.

The initial i of this prefix is unstable and very liable to be lost. Thus :—

Bika chechi mu nkomo, put this in the bag.

N.B.—Not mu inkomo.

The i is always retained at the beginning of a sentence.

Class 9.

This class consists of nouns which in the singular have the prefix LU- and in the plural IM- or IN-. Before roots beginning with a vowel LU- appears as LW-.

Examples.

- Lu-fumba, a hoof. Plural: Im-fumba, hoofs.
Lu-tele, a net. „ In-tele, nets.
Lw-imbo, a hymn. „ In-yimbo, hymns.

Examples of contractions found in this class :—

- Loyo, quitch grass, for lu-oyo.
Lozhi, bark-string, for lu-ozhi.

Sub-class 9 a.

While the proper plural classifier corresponding to LU- is undoubtedly IN- there are many nouns which take MA- in the plural instead. These we regard as forming a sub-class.

Examples.

- Lu-pidi, a hill. Plural: ma-pidi.
Lu-ngwalo, a letter. „ ma-ngwalo.
Lu-bu, a reed. „ ma-bu.

Examples of contractions found in this class :—

- Lwala, a finger-nail. Plural: mala for ma-ala.
Lwampa, unroofed house. „ mampa for ma-ampa.

Table of the Noun Classes.

No	Singular		Plural
	Class	Example	Class	Example
1	MU- (MW-)	Mu-ntu , a person	BA-	Ba-ntu , people
1a	(U-)	(U-) shiluwe , leopard	BA	Ba-shiluwe , leopards
2	MU- (MW-)	Mu-nshi , a village	MI-	Mi-nshi , villages
3	I- (DI-)	I-tende , foot	MA-	Ma-tende , feet
4	BU- (BW-)	Bu-shiku , a day	MA-	Ma-shiku , night
5	KU- (KW-)	Ku-twi , an ear	MA-	Ma-twi , ears
6	KA-	Ka-shimbi , a girl	TU- (TW-)	Tu-shimbi , girls
7	CHI-	Chi-ntu , a thing	SHI-	Shi-ntu , things
			BI-	Bi-ntu , things
8	IM- IN-	Im-pongo , a goat	IM- IN-	Im-pongo , goats
9	LU- (LW-)	Lu-tele , a net	IM- IN-	In-tele , nets
9a	LU- (LW-)	Lu-bu , a reed	MA-	Ma-bu , reeds

Defective Nouns.

There are many nouns which have no singular form. For example :—

Menzhi , water.	Mabishi , sour milk.
Mankanza , honeycomb.	Maumba , butter.
Madianshima , wedding feast.	Makatalo , weariness, fatigue.

SECT. 2. GENDER.

There is no change in the noun to indicate distinction of sex. So important in European languages, gender plays no part whatever in the construction of Ila. To distinguish the sexes we must resort to the methods indicated below.

1. Different words are used for the masculine, feminine and common genders.

Examples.

Masculine.	Feminine.	Common.
Mulombwana , a man.	Mukaintu , a woman.	Muntu , a person.
Mukombwe , a cock.	Inseke , a hen.	Inkuku , a fowl.
Muchende , a bull.	Impwizhi , a cow.	Ing'ombe , a head of cattle.

2. A limited use is made of the adjectives -zhazhi and -tumble, both indicating 'child-bearing'.

Examples.

- Ingombe inzhazhi, a cow.
- Munyama muzhazhi, a female animal.
- Chibizi muzhazhi, a zebra mare.
- Impongo intumble, a she-goat.

3. In the case of children the words mulombwana, a man, and mushimbi, a girl, or mukaintu, a woman, are used to indicate the male and female sexes respectively. Thus :—

Mwana mulombwana, a male child.

Mwana mushimbi, or mwana mukaintu, a female child.

SECT. 3. CASE OF NOUNS.

There are four cases in Ila, viz. Nominative, Accusative, Genitive, and Vocative. Except in the last, the noun undergoes no change in form, the case-relation being expressed by position in the sentence or by means of particles.

The Nominative Case.

This indicates that the noun is the subject of the action expressed by the verb. The noun in the nominative always stands absolute, i. e. it is not the real subject of the verb, it must always be connected with the verb by means of a personal pronoun. This is one of the most important points in Ila grammar and must be firmly grasped at once.

Examples.

Muntu u la ya, the person is going.

Lit.—Person he is going.

Bantu ba la ya, the people are going.

Lit.—People they are going.

Kashimbi ka la ya, the little girl is going.

Lit.—Little girl she is going.

Tushimbi tu la ya, the little girls are going.

Lit.—Little girls they are going.

Impongo i la ya, the goat is going.

Lit.—Goat it is going.

Impongo shi la ya, the goats are going.

Lit.—Goats they are going.

The pronouns will be given subsequently; from the above examples it will be seen that they are either identical with, or slightly modified from, the classifiers.

The noun in the nominative may be placed either before the verb or after it, but the connecting pronoun always retains its position before the verb. Thus:—

Muntu u la ya, the person is going.

or U la ya muntu, the man is going.

Lit.—He is going (the) person.

The Accusative (or Objective) Case.

The noun in the accusative case does not change in form but may easily be distinguished from the nominative. It is never preceded or followed by a personal pronoun in the same way as the nominative. Sometimes to give emphasis to the thing spoken of, it is placed at the beginning of the sentence, and the pronoun in the nominative case is inserted between the accusative noun and its pronoun. Just as we say in English: The man, do you see him? Thus:—

Bantu ba la bona banyama, the people see game.

Banyama twa ba bona, the game, we saw them.

Lit.—Game we them saw.

Prepositions govern the accusative case. They will be found in their proper place, but here we may draw attention to the three prepositions, Mu, Ku and A. These are identical in form and meaning with the locative prefixes given in the next section, but used as prepositions they are properly not joined to the noun.

Mu indicates position within, motion out of, or from, or into; and answers to our prepositions in, into, among, out-of.

Ku indicates motion towards or from, position at; and answers to our prepositions to, from, at.

A indicates position on, near, motion off; and answers to our prepositions along, upon, from-off.

Mu tends to become um when it comes before nouns beginning with b, and u when it comes before nouns beginning with m. Likewise Ku tends to become u or o before nouns beginning with k. Mu and ku may become mw and kw and be joined to nouns beginning with a vowel. A coalesces with the initial i of nouns of class 3 to form e.

Examples.

Mukaintu wa ka zhoka mu kudima, the woman returned from hoeing.

Mulombwana udi shiti mu ng'anda, the man stays in the house.

Bakaintu ba la bika maseka ku matwi, the women put rings in the ears.

Bantu ba la diza ku lupidi, the people climb up the hill.

Beenzu ba la kala ku munzhi, the travellers stay at the village.

Bantu ba le enda a muma wa lwenge, the people walk along the river bank.

A mu kale a shuna, sit ye on the chairs.

Genitive Case.

This case denotes certain relations between two nouns, such as :—

1. Possession. e.g. ing'ombe sha mwami, the chief's cattle.
2. Origin. e.g. masamo a inshi, trees of the earth, i. e. trees which spring from the earth.
3. Fitness. e.g. Chindi cha kudya, a time for eating, lit. of eating.

The first noun always represents the thing possessed, having origin or fitness; the second, that possessing, originating, or giving fitness.

The two nouns are connected by means of what are called genitive particles, as given in the table below. These have the same meaning as of in such phrases as : the law of the land, the work of John. But often we should translate them by for or to rather than of, e.g. Imbuka ya kubala, lit. a book of reading, i. e. a book for reading, or, to read.

Table of Genitive Particles.

No.	Singular				Plural
	Class	Gen. Particle			Class	Gen. Particle
		Simple	Full	Copulative		Simple	Full	Copulative
1	MU-	wa	owa	ngwa	BA-	ba	oba	mba
2	MU-	wa	owa	ngwa	MA-	ya	oya	nja
3	I- (DI-)	dia	odia	ndia	MA-	a		nga
4	BU-	bwa	obwa	mbwa	MA-	a		nga
5	KU-	kwa	okwa	nkwa	NA-	a		nga
6	KA-	ka	oka	nka	TU-	twa	olwa	ntwa
7	CHI-	cha	ocha	ncha	SHI-	sha	osha	nsha
8	IM- IN-	ya	oya	nja	BI-	bia	obia	mbia
9	LU-	lwa	olwa	ndwa	IM- IN-	sha	osha	nsha
9a	LU-	lwa	olwa	ndwa	MA-	a		nga

On the formation of these particles, note the simple forms are generally formed from the classifiers by suffixing the preposition a; thus bu + a = bwa, lu + a = lwa, ku + a = kwa. But when the a is added to a classifier ending in i, the i is dropped, thus shi + a = sha. But the i of BI being long the particle is bia. In class 3, sing., the full form of the classifier DI- is used, giving dia not ia. Whenever the classifier begins with m, this letter is dropped, thus ya not mia, wa not mwa, a not ma. In the plurals of classes 7, 8, 9, the particle is sha. The full forms are simply the above with o prefixed. The copulative forms are effected by a conjunction of the copulative particles and the simple forms, e.g. ngu + wa = ngwa, n + ya = nja, ngu + a = nga, &c.

The simple forms are in common use as in the following examples. The full forms are used when the noun possessed is understood and the particle stands first in the sentence. Thus:—

Owa mwami ngu wezu, that of the chief is this.

The copulative forms are used in such sentences as this:—

That village is of my chief, or, my chief's, Munzhi wezo ngwa mwami wangu.

Examples of the use of these particles.

Class 1. Muzhike wa mwami, the slave of the chief.

Bazhike ba mwami, the chief's slaves.

- Class 2.* Muchila wa munyama, the tail of the wild beast.
michila ya banyama, the tails of the beasts.
- Class 4.* Buta bwa shilumamba, the warrior's bow.
Mata a bashilumamba, the warriors' bows.
- Class 5.* Kutwi kwa mwana, the child's ear.
Matwi a mwana, the child's ears.
- Class 6.* Kasonde ka mukaintu, the woman's needle.
Tusonde twa bakaintu, the women's needles.
- Class 7.* Chibia cha muzhike, the slave's pot.
Shibia sha bazhike, the slaves' pots.
Bintu bia mwami, the chief's things.
- Class 8.* Imbelele ya mwami, the chief's sheep.
Imbelele sha mwami, the chief's sheep.
- Class 9.* Lwimbo lwa mwenzu, the traveller's song.
Inyimbo sha beenzu, the songs of the travellers.
- Class 9 a.* Luseba lwa muntu, a person's body.
Maseba a bantu, people's bodies.

In the possessive of personal nouns and proper names there is a different formation. Instead of using the genitive particles the possessive pronoun is used in the following manner :—

Mwanakwe Sezungo, son-of-him Sezungo, Sezungo's child.

Mwinakwe Shaloba, wife-of-him Shaloba, Shaloba's wife.

Namatwangakwe muzhike, mistress-of-him slave, the slave's mistress.

In such words the pronoun kwe is an enclitic, i. e. it is so closely united with the noun as to seem part of it; the accent is thrown forward, mwána, mwanákwe; mwína, mwinákwe.

The Vocative Case.

The vocative case is confined to a few nouns of class 1 a, expressing relationship. In addressing one's father, e. g. you do not say Tata, but Ta; to your mother, not Bama, but Ma; to your uncle, not Uachisha, but Achisha.

SECT. 4. LOCATIVE NOUNS.

Besides the classifiers already given there are three other prefixes found in nouns. They differ from the classifiers in that they are prefixed to the whole noun, not simply to the root. A locative noun is made up of three parts: locative prefix + classifier + root.

These prefixes are as follows :—

MU	indicates position	within, inside.
KU	„ „	at.
A	„ „	around, upon.

They are, therefore, identical in form and meaning with the prepositions given in the last section; but while as prepositions they are properly written separate from the nouns, as locative prefixes they must be treated like the classifiers and joined to the nouns.

Mu and Ku when joined to nouns of cl. 3, sing., become Mw, Kw. A then coalesces with the i to form e. When joined to nouns of cl. 8 and cl. 9, pl., the initial vowel of the classifier is lost.

Like other nouns, locative nouns in the nominative case are followed by pronouns, which in their case are identical in form. They also give form to adjectives, demonstratives, &c.

NOTE.—This will be fully illustrated in the following chapters, but in view of its immediate importance it may be as well to give examples in advance.

The student would do well at this point to refer to and carefully study the parts of Chapter IX dealing with the connecting of nouns and pronouns with locatives. (Sect. 1, 4; 2, 4.)

Examples.

Mung'anda mu la shia, the house is dark inside.

Lit.—Inside-the-house inside is black.

Mono muchikilo mubiabe, it is dirty here in the kitchen.

Lit.—In-here in-kitchen in-bad.

Kunshi kwisamo nkubiabe, it is dirty beneath the tree.

Lit.—To-earth to-tree to-is bad.

Adi sofwele amudiango, it is dirty around the door.

Lit.—Around-is dirty around-door.

Sa mwadi menzhi munkomo? Is there water in the bag?

Lit.—Is it-is water in-bag.

Pe, mwina menzhi munkomo. No, there is no water in the bag.

Lit.—No, in-is-not water in-bag.

Ano angu ngakando, my place here is big.

SECT. 5. COPULATIVE PARTICLES.

In English we say : it is a tree ; they are trees, using the two words it and they of all nouns in the singular and plural respectively. In Ila there are two ways of expressing such a thought. We may simply say : Muntu, it is a man ; Bantu, they are people. Or we may use certain particles as given in the following table :—

Table of Copulative Particles.

Class.	Singular.
	Particle.	Example.
1. MU-	Ngu	Ngu muntu , it is a person.
2. MU-	Ngu	Ngu munzhi , it is a village.
3. I-	Ndi, nd'	Ndi isamo , or nd' isamo , it is a tree.
4. BU-	M, mbu	Mbuzane , or mbu buzane , it is meat.
5. KU-	Nku	Nku kutwi , it is an ear.
6. KA-	Nku	Nku kashimbi , it is a little girl.
7. CHI-	Nchi	Nchi chintu , it is a thing.
8. IM- IN-	N (nji)	Nimpongo , it is a goat.
9. LU-	N ; ndu	Ndumo , or ndu lumo , it is a razor.
9a. LU-	N ; ndu	Ndupidi , or ndu lupidi , it is a hill.

Plural.

Class.	Particle.	Example.
1. BA-	M; Mbo	Mbantu, or Mbo bantu, they are people.
2. MI-	Nji	Nji minzhi, they are villages.
3. MA-	Ngu(nga)	Ngu masamo, they are trees.
4. MA-	Ngu(nga)	Ngu mazane, they are meats.
5. MA-	Ngu(nga)	Ngu matwi, they are ears.
6. TU-	Ntu	Ntu tushimbi, they are little girls.
7. SHI-	Nshi	Nshi shintu, they are things.
8. IM- IN-	Nshi	Nsh'impongo, they are goats.
9. IM- IN-	Nshi	Nsh'imo, they are razors.
9 a. MA-	Ngu(nga)	Ngu mapidi, they are hills.

It will be noticed that these particles are merely the classifiers nasalized. In Classes 7 sing., 7, 8, and 9 pl., the n is so slight as to be almost inaudible. In Cl. 8 and 9 pl. the singular particle n is also used.

The forms in brackets are used with pronouns, &c. Where two forms are given the second is used in emphasis.

These particles may be used to connect two nouns, but in that case it must be carefully noted that the particle agrees in class with the second noun, not the first.

Examples.

Tushimbi mbo bateu, the little girls are thieves.

Not ntu bateu.

Isamo ngu mwani, the tree is a mopani.

Not ndi mwani.

Impongo ngu shembwe, the goat is a ram.

Not n shembwe.

NOTE.—There are negative forms of these particles, which the student may conveniently learn at this stage. See Chap. ix, Sect. 1, 1.

NOTE.—These particles are often a stumbling-block when writing down words from natives. You ask the word for a canoe and get the answer mbwato: you write down the word thinking perhaps it belongs to Class 8. Afterwards you find it means, it is a canoe. Even Dr. Livingstone was caught in this trap. In his MS. vocabulary of Tonga, we read Ndoka, a tsetse; Nisima, porridge; for luka, insima.

SECT. 6. THE FORMATION OF NOUNS.

Nouns are formed from other nouns, from verbs, adjectives, and adverbs. This is done by prefixing a classifier according to the idea to be expressed, and often, when formed from verbs, by changing the final vowel of the verb. The rules governing the use of the various classifiers are very obscure, and only a few general remarks can here be made at present. Further study may possibly bring to light many more rules than are given here.

1. Many nouns are formed from simple verbs by prefixing the classifiers MU-, BA-, and changing the final vowel into i. These nouns indicate the doer of an action, and correspond to English words ending in -er, such as: reader, writer, traveller.

Examples.

Ku bula , to advise, instruct.	Mubudi , adviser, instructor.
Ku iya , to teach.	Mwiyi , a teacher.
Ku funa , to love.	Mufuni , a lover.

2. Many active nouns are formed, not from the simple but from the causative form of the verb, by prefixing MU-, BA-, and changing the final vowel into i. These nouns are much more common than the above.

Examples.

Simple Verb.	Causative Verb.	Noun.
Ku embela , to herd.	Ku embezha .	Mwembezhi , herdsman.
Ku swaya , to visit.	Ku swazha .	Muswazhi , a visitor.
Ku solola , to precede.	Ku solozha .	Musolozhi , predecessor, guide.

3. Some nouns are formed from the stative species of the verb. They indicate that the person named is in a certain state or condition. The final suffix -uka becomes -ushi: Mu-, Ba-, are prefixed, and the final vowel changes into i.

Examples.

Simple Verb.	Relative form.	Noun.
Ku lumbula , to pay a tax.	Ku lumbudila.	Chilumbudilo , place for paying tax; 'Receipt of custom'.
Ku paila , to offer to ancestors.	Ku paidila.	Chipaidilo , a place for praying.
Ku ika , to cook.	Ku ikila.	Chikilo , a kitchen.
Ku ona , to sleep.	Ku onena.	Choneno , a bedroom.

6. Some nouns are formed from the passive verb by prefixing a classifier without changing the final vowel.

Examples.

Verb.	Passive Verb.	Noun.
Ku funa , to love.	Ku funwa.	Mufunwa , one who is loved.
Ku zhinguluka , to go round.	Ku zhingulukwa.	Chizingulukwa , something gone round, as obstacle in path.
Ku sama , to dress.	Ku samwa.	Chisamwa , clothing.

7. Verbs in the infinitive mood become nouns by simply taking as a classifier the particle Ku, which otherwise is not prefixed to the verb. Nouns may in this way be formed from any verb, or any form of a verb, but care must be taken as to the shades of meaning imparted by various forms of the verb.

Examples.

From Ku katala, to tire.

Kukatala, weariness.

Kukatazha, troublesomeness.

Kukatazhiwa, troubledness.

From Ku bona, to see.

Kubona, seeing, sight.

Kubonwa, being seen.

Kubonya, showing.

Kuboneka, visibleness.

Kubonesa, clear sight.

Kubonana, mutual seeing.

8. Other nouns are formed from these infinitive nouns by simply prefixing the genitive particle Sha (Class 7, pl.).

Examples.

Kudya , eating.	Shakudya , food.
Ku hozha , to pay wages.	Shakuhozha , wages.

9. Nouns of Class 1 a are formed from other nouns by prefixing Shi.

Examples.

Shikufwa , a dead person	from Kufwa , death.
Shimano , a cunning person	,, Mano , cunning.
Shilwengu , a notorious person	,, Lwengu , notoriety.
Shimanga , a kind person	,, Manga , kindness.
Shinkole , a cruel person	,, Inkole , cruelty.

10. Nouns of Class 1 a are also formed by prefixing Na to other nouns.

Examples.

Nabukando , a chief wife	from Bukando , greatness.
Nakufunwa , a favourite wife	,, Kufunwa , love.
Nabwaniche , a younger wife	,, Bwaniche , youthfulness.

11. Nouns are formed from others by simply changing the prefix into Chi. These nouns indicate something broken, bad, worn-out, useless.

Examples.

Mukaintu , a woman.	Chikaintu , a bad woman.
Mubinda , a loin-cloth.	Chibinda , a worn-out loin-cloth.

12. Diminutive nouns are formed from others by changing their classifiers into KA-, TU-.

Examples.

Mwembezhi , shepherd, young man.	Kēmbhezhi , a boy.
Mulombwana , a man.	Kalombwana , a boy.

13. Other diminutive nouns are formed by prefixing Kanga. These belong to Class 6, and mostly are names of animals.

Examples.

Shikembezi , a lad.	Kangashikembezi , a young lad. Pl. Tungabashikembezi.
Muzovu , an elephant.	Kangamuzovu , a young elephant. Pl. Tungabazovu.

14. Augmentative nouns are formed from other nouns by changing the prefixes into I-, MA-.

Example.

Mulombwana , a man.	Ilombwana , a big man.
----------------------------	-------------------------------

15. Abstract nouns are formed from other nouns by changing the singular classifier into BU-.

Examples.

Muoneki , a king.	Buoneki , kingly dominion, kingdom.
Mwami , a chief.	Bwami , chieftainship, authority.
Musu , a sorrowful person.	Busu , sorrow, distress.

16. Proper nouns are formed from common nouns by prefixing Shi, Sha, Shi for masculine names; Muka or Na for feminine names. Often no prefix is heard, but the word is changed into Class 1 a, and U is always understood, and is heard when the noun is emphasized.

Examples.

Shimunza ,	from Munza , daytime.
Shibwizu ,	„ Bwizu , grass.
Shimata ,	„ Mata , bows.
Mukamuluti ,	„ Muluti , missionary.
Mukamukombwe ,	„ Mukombwe , a cock.
Mukachikwikwi ,	„ Chikwikwi , locusts.
Shantebe ,	„ Intebe , a bag made of bark.
Shamanga ,	„ Manga , kindness (or perhaps twins).

Shamwezhi, from Mwezhi, moon.
Namiyobo, „ Miyobo, reeds.
(U-)Chikanda, „ Chikanda, a hide.

17. Abstract nouns are formed from adjectives by prefixing Bu-.

Examples.

Bubongvhu, softness from -bongvhu, soft.
Bubotu, goodness „ -botu, good.
Buzumo, hardness „ -zumo, hard.

These adjectives are themselves formed from the verbs : ku bomba, ku bota, ku zuma.

18. Some adjectives are treated as nouns.

Examples.

Muzhazhi, a female person: the adj. -zhazhi, with prefix of Cl. 1.
Inzhazhi, a female goat, &c. „ Cl. 8.

19. A few nouns are formed from adverbs.

Examples.

Shikale, an ancient from Kale, long ago.
Shakumbadi, secrets „ Kumbadi, aside.

20. Finally, examples may be given of compound nouns, i. e. nouns formed of two or more words of different parts of speech.

Chi-zhinga-bula, that-which-surrounds-the-bowel, i. e. intestinal fat.

I-pa-o-kubozha, He-that-gives-and-rots (a name given to God).

Mu-dima-ku-bushu, what-digs-on-the-face, i. e. small-pox.

SECT. 7. FOREIGN NOUNS.

The introduction of civilization among the Baila has inevitably enlarged their ideas and rendered necessary many additions to their vocabulary. For many of the new ideas it has not been necessary to borrow words; either (a) existing words have had an extended meaning given them, or (b) new words have been made according to the rules given in the previous section.

But over and beyond these, there exist many foreign words ilaized. Many words are borrowed from Tebele, others from English; many more from Suto. Suto has had most influence in this way, because of the Kololo (Suto) speaking Marotsi, and also because the first settlers among the Baila were missionaries who spoke Suto. Many of the words from Suto are really sutoized Dutch words, and this explains the curious presence in Ila of many Dutch words. A study of neighbouring dialects would probably show that from them also the Baila have borrowed. But notwithstanding all this, Ila remains a very pure language.

In introducing foreign words they are brought as much as possible into an Ila form, by giving them classifiers, spelling them phonetically (where necessary), and making such changes as will render them easy of pronunciation to Baila.

Foreign words are indicated as such in the Vocabulary. They include the following:—

(N.B.—E. = English; T. = Tebele; S. = Suto; D. = Dutch.)

1. Administrative terms: Inkambe, a government station (E. camp); Intelongo, a prison (S. teronko; D. tronk); Ukapoteni, a captain; Usejani, a sergeant; Itikiti, a census receipt, labour ticket.

2. Names of coins: Itiki, a threepenny bit (tickey); Isikispence, a sixpence; Impondo, a pound; Ishilini, a shilling.

3. Names of common articles of civilized use: Chikati, a watch, clock (T. isikati, time); Chinotolo, a key (S. senottolo; D. sleutel); Ibukiti, a bucket.

4. Names of articles of clothing: Ibulukwe, trousers (S. burukwe; D. broek); Ihempi, a shirt (S. hempi; D. hemd).

5. Names of time and seasons: Imbelekelo, Saturday (T. inpegelo); Mushimbuluko, Monday (T. Umsombuluko, i. e. the unfolding); Insunda, Sunday; Chismasi, Christmas.

6. 'Missionary words': Inkeleke, a church (S. kereke; D. kerk); Lubapatizo, baptism; Imputeu, a catechumen class (S. phuteho); Chikolo, a school.

EXERCISES ON CHAPTER III.

The following exercises have been designed with a view to enabling the student, after mastering them, to join words into sentences, and thus anticipate what he will learn afterwards. He may find them rather a tax upon his patience: but he will have the consolation of knowing that when he has mastered them he possesses the essence of the whole grammar, and should straightway be able to make himself understood by the people. Subsequent exercises will not be upon this scale.

Exercise 1.

Classify the nouns given in Chapter II, writing down the singular and plural of each.

Exercise 2.

Find from the Vocabulary the meaning of the following words of Cl. 1 and 1 a, and write down and learn their plurals:—

Muntu; mulombwana; mukaintu; mwana; muzune; mwembezi; mwami; muzhike; mutwanga; mushimbi; kamwale; chiwena; shumbwa.

Also the words for my father, thy father, my mother, thy mother, &c. With all these nouns, and all others of Cl. 1 and 1 a, use the following:

Adjectives:—Mubiabe, pl. babiabe, bad; mubotu, pl. babotu, good, fine; bonse, all; banjibanji, many; omwi, one; bobili, two.

CHAPTER IV

THE ADJECTIVE

ADJECTIVES may be divided into two classes according as they express quality or quantity. The former include adjectives proper and such other constructions as take their place, while in the latter division are found the numerals, &c.

SECT. I. ADJECTIVES OF QUALITY.

a. Adjectives proper.

Adjectives proper are like nouns in this: they consist of two parts, root and prefix. But they differ from nouns in that the prefixes are not stable, the root taking the prefix of whatever noun the adjective qualifies. This explains what is very perplexing to a new student. He hears, e. g., the word good given as mubotu, then again as chibotu, bubotu, mabotu, &c.—in fact, he may hear thirteen or fourteen forms of that simple adjective. The explanation is simple: the root of the adjective is -botu, and the prefix is added according to the classifier of the noun. There being thirteen prefixes (fourteen with Bi), there must also be thirteen forms of each regular adjective.

The following are adjectives proper:—

- | | |
|--|------------------------------------|
| - botu , good, beautiful, nice. | - fumpiu , blunt. |
| - biabe , bad, nasty, ugly. | - kulukulu , old, very old. |
| - bongvhu , soft. | - ini-ini , true, real. |
| - zumo , hard, dry, difficult. | - lamfu , long, tall, high. |
| - teke , moist, wet. | - fwafwi , short. |
| - lemu , heavy. | - shonto , small. |
| - pia , new, young. | - inu , fat. |

-kofu, lean, thin.

-iki, cooked.

-kando, large, big, great.

-kadi, angry, sharp.

-bishi, unripe, raw.

-nji-nji, many, much.

Besides the above, there are many adjectives proper directly derived from the stative and capable forms of the verb.

Examples.

-hundaushi, dirty, defiled (of water)	from	Ku hundauka.
-komoshi, broken	„	Ku komoka.
-pandulushi, trained, educated	„	Ku panduluka.
-sampusi, useless	„	Ku sampuka.
-sepweleshi, weak	„	Ku sepweleka.
-tandubudishi, elastic	„	Ku tandubudika.
-zandishi, precious	„	Ku zandika.
-bendushi, chipped	„	Ku benduka.
-boneshi, visible	„	Ku boneka.
-chengeshi, credulous	„	Ku chengeka.
-zapaushi, ragged	„	Ku zapauka.
-ebeshi, admirable	„	Ku ebeka.
-funishi, lovable	„	Ku funika.
-fungushi, weaned	„	Ku funguka.
-dimbushi, foolish	„	Ku dimbuka.
-fwembeshi, unlovable	„	Ku fwembeka.
-kasazhi, warm	„	Ku kasala.
-kunkumushi, faded	„	Ku kunkumuka.
-lamaushi, sticky	„	Ku lamauka.

NOTE.—This formation of adjectives is the same as that of the nouns of the third derivation (see Sect. 6, Chap. 3). Indeed these adjectives may stand alone as nouns, but nevertheless are true adjectives when they qualify nouns. This, indeed, applies, more or less, to all proper adjectives.

Examples.

As adjectives.

Muntu mudimbushi, a foolish person.
 Chibia chikomoshi, a broken pot.
 Masani mazapaushi, ragged cloths.
 Muntu mubiabe, a bad person.
 Buzane butemeki, dried meat.

As nouns.

Mudimbushi, a fool.
 Chikomoshi, a broken thing.
 Mazapaushi, ragged things.
 Mubiabe, a bad person.
 Butemeki, biltong.

Adjectives may be used in two ways: first, the adjective may be used as a descriptive word, as in the expression, 'a good man'; second, it may be used as affirming something with the aid of a verb. In the former case the adjective is termed an attribute, in the latter a predicate.

Adjectives proper used as attributes.

The following examples will show the use of adjectives as attributes:—

- Cl. 1. MU- Muntu mubotu, a good person.
Muntu mubiabe, a bad person.
 BA- Bantu babotu, good people.
Bantu babiabe, bad people.
- Cl. 2. MU- Munzhi mushonto, a small village.
Munzhi mupia, a new village.
 MI- Minzhi mishonto, small villages.
Minzhi mipia, new villages.
- Cl. 3. I- Ivhu izumo, hard ground.
Ivhu ibongvhu, soft ground.
 MA- Masamo malamfu, tall trees.
Masamo mafwafwi, short trees.
- Cl. 4. BU- Bufu buzumo, dry meal.
Bufu buteke, moist meal.
 MA- Meya manjimanji, many thorns.
Meya makando, big thorns.
- Cl. 5. KU- Kufuna kukando, great love.
Kufuna kushonto, small love.
 MA- Matwi malamfu, long ears.
Matwi mafwafwi, short ears.
- Cl. 6. KA- Kasani kazapaushi, a torn rag.
Kabia kabendushi, a chipped cup.
 TU- Tuzane tukasazhi, a small quantity of warm meat.
Tushimbi tukofu, thin little girls.
- Cl. 7. CHI- Chibia chikomoshi, a broken pot.
Chintu chikulukulu, a very old thing.

- SHI- Shidyo shibishi, raw food.
Shintu shizandishi, precious things.
- BI- Bidyo biki, cooked food.
Bidyo bikasazi, warm food.
- Cl. 8. IM- Imbata inzumo, hard potatoes.
Impongo imfungushi, a weaned goat.
- IM- Impongo inkofu, lean cattle.
Ing'ombe injinu, fat cattle.
- Cl. 9. LU- Lutele lusepweleshi, a weak net.
Lutele lusampushi, a useless net.
- IN- Ingozhi inteke, moist bark-string.
Intele impia, new nets.
- Cl. 9a. LU- Lubu lusepweleshi, a weak reed.
Lupidi lukando, a big hill.
- MA- Mabu mafwafwi, short reeds.
Mapidi mashonto, small hills.

NOTE.—(a) The adjectives -nji-nji and -ini-ini are reduplicated words and require that the noun prefixes be used twice, thus: Maila manji-manji, much grain; makani menimeni, true affairs. The latter obeys the laws given for the coalescence of vowels: $a + i = e$. In Class 8 pl. we find ing'ombe shinjishinji, not injiinji; also inkani shinishini. In Class 3 sing. ikani inini, a true saying; ivhu dinjidinji, much earth.

(b) In adjectives of Classes 8 and 9 the rule obtains that im- is prefixed to those whose initial letter is b, p or f; in- to others.

(c) When the adjective -inu is used with nouns of Classes 8 and 9 the letter j is inserted, thus: injinu, not ininu.

Adjectives proper used as predicates.

Used as predicates, the adjectives do not differ in form from those given above, except that, in all cases where the classifier does not begin with m, the copulative particles are used instead of the noun prefixes. There is also a secondary form in which the adjective is joined to the noun by means of the particle di suffixed to the personal pronouns. This form is used in relative clauses, and at other times to give emphasis. Muntu udi mubotu really means person who is good.

The adjectives given above as formed from verbs obey these rules, or their corresponding verbal forms may be used. Thus:—

Menzhi mahundaushi, dirty water.

Menzhi a hundauka, the water is dirty.

Examples.

- Cl. 1. MU- Muntu mubotu, or muntu udi mubotu, the person is good.
 BA- Bantu mbabotu, or bantu badi babotu, the people are good.
- Cl. 2. MU- Munzhi mupia, or munzhi udi mupia, the village is new.
 MI- Minzhi mipia, or minzhi idi mipia, the villages are new.
- Cl. 3. I- Isamo ndilamfu, the tree is tall.
 MA- Masamo malamfu, or masamo adi malamfu, the trees are tall.
- Cl. 4. BU- Bufu mbuzumo, or bufu budi buzumo, the meal is dry.
 MA- Meya mazumo, or meya adi mazumo, the thorns are dry.
- Cl. 5. KU- Kutwi nkushonto, or kutwi kudi kushonto, the ear is small.
 MA- Matwi mashonto, or matwi adi mashonto, the ears are small.
- Cl. 6. KA- Kashimbi nkabiabe, or kashimbikadi kabiabe, the girl is bad.
 TU- Tushimbi ntubiabe, or tushim bi tudi tubiabe, the girls are bad.
- Cl. 7. CHI- Chintu nchipia, or chintu chidi chipia, the thing is new.
 SHI- Shintu nshipia, or shintu shidi shipia, the things are new.
 BI- Bintu mbinjibinji, or bintu bidi binjibinji, the things are many.

- Cl. 8. IM- Impongo ninjinu, the goat is fat.
 IM- Impongo nshinjinu, the goats are fat.
- Cl. 9. LU- Lutele ndulemu, the net is heavy.
 IN- Intele nshindemu, the nets are heavy.
- Cl. 9a. LU- Lupidi ndulamfu, the hill is high.
 MA- Mapidi malamfu, or mapidi adi malamfu, the hills are high.

b. Other Adjectival Constructions.

Besides the adjectives proper, other expedients are resorted to for forming adjectival constructions, words being used as such which are not adjectives at all.

Verbs used as adjectives.

1.—Many of the adjectives proper have corresponding verbs which may be used in place of them as predicates. Thus:—

Adjective.	Verb.
-lemu, heavy.	Ku lema , to be heavy.
-inu, fat.	Ku ina , to be fat.
-biabe, bad.	Ku bia , to be bad.
-fwafwi, short.	Ku fwimpa , to be short.
-bongvhu, soft.	Ku bomba , to be soft.
-zumo, hard.	Ku zuma , to be hard.
-botu, good.	Ku bota , to be good.
-lamfu, long.	Ku lampa , to be long.

When these verbs are used as predicates they follow the ordinary construction of verbs with nouns; as attributes they follow the construction of relative classes.

Examples.

Lwa lema lubono lolu, this load is heavy = Lubono lolu ndulemu.

Shi zanda lubono lu lema, I don't like a heavy load = Shi zanda lubono lulemu.

Muntu wezu wa bota, this man is good = Muntu wezu mubotu.

Nda langa muntu u bota, I want a good person = Nda langa muntu mubotu.

Other verbs may be used in the same way. Thus:—

Menzhi aza a la tontola, this water is cold.

Nda langa menzhi a tontola, I want cold water, i. e. which is cold.

Menzhi aza a la pia, this water is hot.

Nda langa menzhi a pia, I want hot water, i. e. which is hot.

2.—Another construction is to use the verb in the perfect tense with the relative pronoun. It is convenient in this case to join the relative pronoun to the verb, but the relative construction must not be forgotten. And care must be taken to use the relative pronouns, not the classifiers, as with adjectives proper.

When it is desired to use them as predicates, the full form of the perfect must be used, i. e. the relative pronoun has suffixed to it the particle di.

Examples.

Shisamo shandene, different, or divided, sticks.

Shisamo shidi andene, the sticks are different, or divided.

Chintu chibumbunkene, a round thing.

Chintu chidi bumbunkene, the thing is round.

Bantu badiebile, quiet people.

Bantu badi diebile, the people are quiet.

Mulomo ulakeme, an open mouth.

Mulomo udi lakeme, the mouth is open.

Muntu ululeme, a righteous person.

Muntu udi luleme, the person is righteous.

Chintu chipampamene, a flat thing.

Chintu chidi pampamene, the thing is flat.

Makani apotene, involved affairs.

Makani adi potene, the affairs are involved.

Butanga butwetene, a decreased herd.

Butanga budi twetene, the herd is decreased.

Nouns used as adjectives.

1.—When a noun is to be used as a predicate it carries the copulative prefix ; when used as an attribute it is joined to the noun qualified by means of the genitive particle in its full form.

Examples.

Butezhi, slipperiness.

Inzhila ezhi mbutezhi, this road is slippery.

Shi zanda inzhila oya butezhi, I don't like a slippery road.

Bunvuka, beeswax.

Musamo wezu mbunvuka, this medicine is sticky, i. e. it is beeswax.

Shi zanda musamo owa bunvuka, I don't like sticky medicine.

Butambo, voracity, rapacity.

Shumbwa wezo mbutambo, that lion is ravenous.

Shi zanda ku swanganya shumbwa owa butambo, I don't like meeting a ravening lion.

Buzandi, preciousness.

Chintu chechi mbuzandi, this thing is precious.

Nda ula shintu osha buzandi, I buy precious things.

Bwala, plenty, plenteousness.

Mwaka wezu mbwala, this is a plenteous year.

Tu la zanda miaka oya bwala, we like plenteous years.

2.—Another way is by employing the nouns beginning with Shi-.

Examples.

Wezu muntu ngu shinsana, this person is strong.

Lit.—is a strong person.

Wezu muntu ngu shimanga, this person is kind.

Lit.—is a kind person.

Wezu muntu ngu shimano, this person is cunning.

Lit.—is a cunning person.

As attributes these may follow the first noun without any connecting link ; or the prefix Shi is dropped and only the neuter noun used. Thus :—

Nda funa muntu shinsana, or Nda funa muntu udi insana, I love a person who is strong, lit. who has strength.

3.—There are some nouns describing the colours of cattle which are used adjectively.

Examples.

Bubala, white and black, with black spots.

Ing'ombe ezhi nja bubala, this beast is as above.

Nja = n + ya, it is of.

Ikosole, red or black with white stripes around body.

Ing'ombe ezhi nje kosole, this beast is as above.

Nje = n + ya + i.

Masekwe, black and white.

Ing'ombe ezhi nja masekwe, this beast is as above.

Ishudiangombe, yellow.

Ing'ombe ezhi nje shudiangombe, this beast is yellow.

Nje = n + ya + i.

SECT. 2.—COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

In English the degrees of comparison are formed by simply adding -er and -est to the adjective, as in the expressions: He is taller than I; He is the tallest of all. In Ila there is nothing corresponding to this. Properly speaking, there are no degrees of comparison in the language; the idea can only be expressed by circumlocutions.

1.—To express the comparative degree the verb ku bazha, to surpass, may be used.

Examples.

Muntu wezu mukando ku bazha wedia, lit.—person this great to surpass yonder. This person is bigger than yon.

Isamo ledi ndikando ku bazha ledio, lit.—tree this is great to surpass that. This tree is larger than that one.

Or the verb may be used in a different way. Thus:—

Muntu wezu u la bazha wezo ku nsana, this person surpasses that in strength, lit. by strength.

Isamo ledi di la bazha ledio ku kumena, this tree surpasses that in growth, lit.—by growing.

Intipa yangu i la basha yako ku kulampa, my knife surpasses thine in sharpness, lit.—by being sharp.

The same verb may be used to express the superlative degree.

Examples.

Muntu wezu mubotu ku basha bonse, this person is good to surpass all, i. e. this person is the best of all ;

or Muntu wezu u la basha bonse ku kubota, this person surpasses all in being good, i. e. is the best of all.

Isamo ledi ndikando ku basha onse, this tree is big to surpass all, i. e. this tree is the biggest of all ;

or Isamo ledi i la basha onse ku kumena, this tree surpasses all in growing, i. e. is the biggest of all.

2.—Another way of expressing the comparative is by using the copula di with the preposition ku.

Examples.

Muntu wezu mukando kudi wedia, this person is big to that, i. e. this person is bigger than you.

Bantu baba mbashonto kudi badia, these persons are small to those, i. e. these people are smaller than you.

The superlative may be formed in the same way.

Examples.

Muntu wezu mubotu kudi bonse, that person is good to all, i. e. that person is best of all.

Impongo ezhi ninjinu kudi shonse, this goat is fat to all, i. e. this goat is fattest of all.

3.—The adjective may be reduplicated to express a kind of indefinite superlative.

Examples.

Nda langa masamo makando makando, I want big big trees, i. e. very big.

Udi muntu mubotu mubotu, he is a very good person.

4.—The adverbs, chinichini, very ; chakubazha, surpassingly, may also be used.

Examples.

Bulo bobo mbukando chinichini, that bed is very big.

Bulo bobo mbukando chakubazha, that bed is surpassingly big.

5. We may here take notice of certain particles suffixed to adjectives which express a superlative or absolute idea. They do not seem to be used with all verbs.

Ne. Menzhi a la tontola-né, the water is very very cold.

Bu. Muntu u la tuba-bú, the person is very, or altogether, white.

Nswa. Menzhi a zuma-nswá, the water is altogether dried up.

Nta. Chechi cha zuma-ntá, this is very very hard.

Pi. Menzhi a la pia-pí, the water is very very hot.

Piu. Ing'ombe ya subila-piú, the beast is very very red.

6. These particles are also used interjectionally, the verbs being omitted, e. g. Nda ka ya ku menzhi. Nswa! I went to the water. Quite dry! Ne pele ne! Quiet, quite quiet!

SECT. 3. ADJECTIVES OF QUANTITY.

a. The Cardinal Numerals.

The Baila count on their fingers. The left hand is closed, the little finger is then raised by the forefinger of the right hand to indicate one. The next finger is two, the next three, and so on. Six is represented by placing the two thumbs together; seven by raising the thumb and forefinger of the right hand, together with those of the left, and so on. Ten is shown by placing the two palms together.

There are also names for the numbers up to and including ten; also names for hundred and thousand. The numbers can be formed beyond a thousand. In schools children are taught to count in English.

1. The numbers 1-5.

These are proper adjectives, but do not take the simple classifiers of the nouns like other adjectives. The particles used with them are as follows :—

Table of particles prefixed to numerals.

Singular		Plural
Class	Particle	Particle
1. MU- BA-	o	bo
2. MU- MI-	o	yo
3. I- MA-	dio	o
4. BU- MA-	bo	o
5. KU- MA-	ko	o
6. KA- TU-	ko	to
7. CHI- SHI- BI-	cho	sho bio
8. IM- IM-	yo	sho
9. LU- IN-	lo	sho
9a. LU- MA-	lo	o

NOTE.—It is difficult to explain these particles. In other Bantu languages the numerals are treated just as other proper adjectives ; why this change throughout from the vowel of the classifiers to o, we do not know. If the numeral roots were -omwi, -obili, or -umwi, -ubili, &c., the explanation would be simple, the assimilation of the two vowels would produce o. Thus—ba-obili = bobili, &c.

The following examples will show the use of these numerals:—

Class	One.	Two.	Three.
1.	Muntu omwi.	Bantu bobili.	Bantu botatwe.
2.	Munzhi omwi.	Minzhi yobili.	Minzhi yotatwe.
3.	Isamo diomwi.	Masamo obili.	Masamo otatwe.
4.	Bushiku bomwi.	Malo obili.	Malo otatwe.
5.	Kutwi komwi.	Matwi obili.	Matwi otatwe.
6.	Kambo komwi.	Twambo tobili.	Twambo totatwe.
7.	Chintu chomwi.	Shintu shobili.	Shintu shotatwe.
8.	Ingubo yomwi.	Ingubo shobili.	Ingubo shotatwe.
9.	Lutele lomwi.	Intele shobili.	Intele shotatwe.
9a.	Lupidi lomwi.	Mapidi obili.	Mapidi otatwe.
Class	Four.	Five.
1.	Bantu boné.	Bantu bosanwe.
2.	Minzhi yoné.	Minzhi yosanwe.

Class	Four.	Five.
3.	Masamo oné.	Masamo otatwe.
4.	Malo oné.	Malo osanwe.
5.	Matwi oné.	Matwi osanwe.
6.	Twambo toné.	Twambo tosanwe.
7.	Shintu shoné.	Shintu shosanwe.
8.	Ingubo shoné.	Ingubo shosanwe.
9.	Intele shoné.	Intele shosanwe.
9 a.	Mapidi oné.	Mapidi osanwe.

The above table shows the use of the numerals as attributes. As predicates they are used as follows :—

Muntu omwi or Muntu udi omwi, the person is one.

Bantu bobili or Bantu badi bobili, the people are two.

Shintu shotatwe or Shintu shidi shotatwe, the things are three.

Impongo shone or Impongo shidi shone, the goats are four.

Michelo yosanwe or Michelo idi yosanwe, the fruits are five.

The particle -nana is suffixed to omwi, diomwi, &c., to express only, merely. Thus :—

Kadi muntu omwinána, it was only one person.

Kadi ng'ombe yomwinána, it was only one beast.

2. The numbers 6–9.

Six, Chisambomwi.

Seven, Chiloba.

Eight, Lusele.

Nine, Ifuka.

These are nouns and are connected with the nouns they qualify by means of the particle di suffixed to the pronouns.

Examples.

Bantu badi chisambomwi, the people are six ; or six people.

Masamo adi chiloba, the trees are seven ; or seven trees.

Bachiwena badi lusele, the crocodiles are eight ; or eight crocodiles.

Mikalo idi ifuka, the water-holes are nine; or nine water-holes.

NOTE:—In the Lumbu dialect, six is kakole, seven is tukole tobili, eight is tukole totatwe, nine is tukole tone.

3. Tens, hundreds.

Ten is Ikumi.

Twenty is two tens, Makumi obili.

Thirty is three tens, Makumi otatwe.

Forty is four tens, Makumi one.

Fifty is five tens, Makumi osanwe.

Sixty is six tens, Makumi adi chisambomwi.

Seventy is seven tens, Makumi adi chiloba.

Eighty is eight tens, Makumi adi lusele.

Ninety is nine tens, Makumi adi ifuka.

One hundred is Mwanda.

Two hundred is Mianda yobili.

Three hundred is Mianda yotatwe.

&c., &c.

4. The joining of the units to the tens is rather complicated. If you are simply counting use the word intesha, a unit; if you are counting anything use the constructions as below:—

Eleven, Ikumi diomwi o mu ntesha yomwi.

Eleven people, Bantu badi ikumi o mu muntu omwi.

Twelve, Ikumi diomwi o mu ntesha shobili.

Twelve cattle, Ing'ombe shidi ikumi o mu ng'ombe shobili.

Thirteen, Ikumi diomwi o mu ntesha shotatwe.

Thirteen trees, Masamo adi ikumi o mu masamo otatwe.

Fourteen, Ikumi diomwi o mu ntesha shoné.

Fourteen men, Balombwana badi ikumi omu balombwana boné.

Twenty-one, Makumi obili o mu ntesha yomwi.

Twenty-one sheep, Imbelele shidi ikumi o mu mbelele yomwi.

One hundred and one, Mwanda omwi o mu ntesha yomwi.

One hundred and eleven, Mwanda omwi o mu ikumi diomwi o mu ntesha yomwi.

One hundred and twenty-one, Mwanda omwi o mu makumi obili o mu ntesha yomwi.

&c., &c.

b. The Ordinal Numerals.

These are formed by the cardinal numerals joined to the nouns by means of the genitive particles. An exception is in first, which is not formed by the numeral -mwi but by the noun lutanzhi, beginning. Or the regular adjective -tanzhi, first, may be used.

First, lutanzhi	Bushiku bwa lutanzhi, or bushiku butanzhi , the first day.
Second -bidi	Bushiku bwabidi , the second day.
Third, -tatu	Bushiku bwatatu , the third day.
Fourth, -ne	Bushiku bwané , the fourth day.
Fifth, -sanu	Bushiku bwasanu , the fifth day.
Sixth, chisambomwi	Bushiku bwa chisambomwi , the sixth day.
Seventh, chiloba	Bushiku bwa chiloba , the seventh day.
Eighth, lusele	Bushiku bwa lusele , the eighth day.
Ninth, ifuka	Bushiku bwa ifuka , the ninth day.
Tenth, ikumi	Bushiku bwa ikumi , the tenth day.
&c.	&c.

Note that the ordinals for second, third, and fifth differ slightly in form from the cardinals. Thus: -bidi, not -bili; -tatu, not -tatwe; -sanu, not -sanwe.

When the ordinal numeral stands first in a sentence o is prefixed to it. Thus:—

Owané ngu wezu, the fourth (person) is this.

c. Numeral Adverbs.

To express once, twice, three times, &c. the particle ko is prefixed to the numerals from one to five. Beyond five, the cardinal numerals are used. Thus :—

Once, komwi.

Twice, kobili.

Three times, kotatwe.

Four times, koné.

Five times, kosanwe.

Six times, chisambomwi.

Seven times, chiloba.

&c.

&c.

d. Indefinite Adjectives.

1. The indefinite adjectives one, some, other, another are expressed by means of the root -mwi prefixed by the personal pronoun.

In the same way is treated the root -nji, signifying : other, different; also the root -udie? which? found in the next chapter under interrogative pronouns.

Table of the Indefinite Adjectives -mwi, -nji.

Class	Singular		Plural
	-mwi	-nji	-mwi	-nji
1. MU- BA-	umwi	unji	bamwi	banji
2. MU- MI-	umwi	unji	imwi	inji
3. I- MA-	dimwi	dinji	} amwi	anji
4. BU- MA-	bumwi	bunji
5. KU- MA-	kumwi	kunji	tumwi	tunji
6. KA- TU-	kamwi	kanji	} shimwi	shinji
7. CHI- SHI-	chimwi	chinji
8. IM- IM-	imwi	inji
9. LU- IN-	} lumwi	lunji	amwi	anji
9a. LU- MA-

Those of the above indefinite adjectives beginning with a consonant have o prefixed to them when they stand first in a sentence. Thus Oshimwi nshi sheshi, other (things) are these.

Examples.

Class 1.

Muntu umwi wa fwa, umwi wa pona, one person is dead, another lives.

Bantu bamwi ba shala, bamwi be enda, some people stay, others go.

Wa yasa munyama wezu, ome nda yasa unji, he speared this animal, I speared another, i. e. a different one.

Baba bantu ba shika 'sunu, zona ku la shika banji, these people come to-day, to-morrow there will arrive others, i. e. different ones.

Class 3.

Isamo dimwi ndilamfu, dimwi ndifwafwi, one tree is long, the other is short.

Masamo amwi nji miani, amwi nji milombe, some trees are mopani, others milombe.

Walo ngu a leta masamo aza, ome nda leta anji, he it is who brought these trees, I brought others.

Class 7.

Chintu chimwi nchishonto, chimwi nchikando, one thing is small, the other large.

Shintu shimwi nshikando, shimwi nshishonto, some things are large, others are small.

Shi zanda chintu chechi, nda zanda chinji, I don't want this thing, I want a different one.

Shintu sheshi ta shidi shangu, shangu shinji, these things are not mine, mine are different.

Class 8.

Ing'ombe imwi ninjinu, imwi ninkofu, one beast is fat, another lean.

Impwizhi shimwi sha subila, shimwi sha tuba, some cows are red, others white.

Nshi sheshi impongo nshi nda zanda ku ula, shi zanda shinji, these are the goats which I wish to buy, I don't want others, i.e. different ones.

Note the difference between umwi, &c., and omwi, &c. The difference is slight in form, but great in meaning.

Lupidi lomwi, one single hill.

Lupidi lumwi, one hill, a certain hill among others.

2. The indefinite adjective all is the root -onse, joined to the personal pronoun. The root -ongeana, few, is treated in the same way. Also the root -ongai? how many? found in the next chapter.

Table of the Indefinite Adjectives -onse, -ongeana.

Class	Singular	Plural
	-onse	-onse	-ongeana
1. MU- BA-	onse (u + onse)	bonse (ba + onse)	bongeana (ba + ongeana)
2. MU- MI-	onse (u + onse)	yonse (i + onse)	yongeana (i + ongeana)
3. I- MA-	dionse (di + onse)	onse (a + onse)	ongeana (a + ongeana)
4. BU- MA-	bonse (bu + onse)
5. KU- MA-	konse (ku + onse)
6. KA- TU-	konse (ka + onse)	tonse (tu + onse)	tongeana (tu + ongeana)
7. CHI- SHI-	chonse (chi + onse)	shonse (shi + onse)	shongeana (shi + ongeana)
8. IM- IM-	yonse (yi + onse)
9. LU- IN- 9a. LU- MA-	lonse (lu + onse)

Examples.

- Cl. I. Muntu onse, the whole person.
- Bantu bonse, all the people.
- Bantu bongeana, a few people.

- Cl. 2. Munzhi onse, the whole village.
Minzhi yonse, all the villages.
Mikalo yongeana, a few water-holes.
- Cl. 6. Kambo konse, the whole matter.
Twambo tonse, all the affairs.
Tushimbi tongeana, a few girls.
- Cl. 8. Impwizhi yonse, the whole cow.
Impwizhi shonse, all the cows.
Impwizhi shongeana, a few cows.

The adjective -onse has also forms for the first and second persons plural. Thus:—

Tu la ya tonse, we are all going.

A mu zize nonse, come all of you.

3. The indefinite adjective every is the reduplicated form of -mwi, i.e. -mwi -mwi.

Examples.

Muntu umwi umwi, every person.

Ing'ombe imwi imwi, every beast.

Ikani dimwi dimwi, every affair.

NOTE.—It is difficult to know whether such words as the above should be classified as adjectives or pronouns. Some writers call them the one, others the other. On the whole it is perhaps better to do as we have done. But it must be noticed that all the words given above may be used as pronouns. Thus: Bonse ba la ya, they are all going, where, of course, the word bantu is understood before bonse. But in that sentence bonse may be correctly regarded as a pronoun. So with the others.

SECT. 4. LOCATIVE ADJECTIVES.

The three locative prefixes may also be used with adjectives.

Examples.

Mono mung'anda mubiabe, Here in the house is bad.

A mu pele muchimpata monse, Sweep ye all the yard,
i.e. in all the yard.

A mu bike bulongo ezeulu anganda onse, Put ye clay all on the top of the house.

All this journey we have travelled fast. I have visited that village four times.

CHAPTER V

THE PRONOUN

THE pronouns in Ila are very numerous and most important. In English we have simply the pronouns, singular and plural, of the three persons, 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, nominative and objective, masculine, feminine, and neuter. In Ila there is no gender classification, but in addition to the 1st and 2nd persons there are pronouns in the 3rd person corresponding to each of the noun classes. Nobody can hope to speak the language correctly without thoroughly mastering all the different forms.

There are seven different kinds of pronouns, viz. :—Personal, Substantive, Possessive, Interrogative, Reflective, Demonstrative, and Relative.

SECT. I. THE PERSONAL PRONOUN.

We will first take the forms of the pronoun used in the first and second persons and in the third person, Class 1. These are :—

Pers.	Singular		Plural
	Nominative	Accusative	Nominative	Accusative
1.	ndi, nda, n, I	n, m, me	tu, twa, we	tu, us
2.	u, wa, thou	ku, thee	mu, mwa, you	mu, ma, you
3.	u, wa, a, he, she, it	mu, him	ba, they	ba, them

Note :—

(a) Of the two forms given in the nominative, that ending in a is used in certain perfect and past tenses, and the aorist. The form n in the first pers. sing. is used with verbs in the subjunctive mood.

(b) There is no difference in pronunciation between the 2nd and 3rd pers., nom. sing. u; the distinction between them is given only in the context, or by the use of certain substantive pronouns.

(c) In the acc. of the 2nd pers. plur. there is a double form, mu and ma. These can be used interchangeably; only when mu is likely to be confounded with the 3rd pers. sing. acc. it is better to use ma.

(d) Occasionally one may hear the 2nd pers. plur., mu, you, used instead of u, thou, as in English, but generally u is employed.

The accusative of the 1st pers. sing., n, m, is prefixed to the verb. When it is prefixed to certain verbs phonetic change takes place in the initial consonant or vowel of the verb according to the rules given in Chapter II.

1. When prefixed to a verb beginning with a vowel the pronoun is nasalized, i.e. n or m prefixed to a verb beginning with a, o, or u becomes ng.

Examples.

Ku anzha, to salute. Ba la nganzha, they salute me.

Ku abila, to divide among. Ba la ngabila, they distribute to me.

Ku ambila, to speak to. Ba la ngambila, they speak to me.

Ku ompolola, to call. Ba la ngompolola, they call me.

Ku udila, to buy for. Ba la ngudila, they buy for me.

N or m prefixed to a verb beginning with e or i becomes nj or ny.

Ku ebela, to look at. Ba la njebela, they look at me.

Ku enzha, to guide. Ba la nyenzha, they guide me.

Ku ingula, to answer. Ba la nyingula, they answer me.

Ku iya, to teach. Ba la njiya, they teach me.

2. Prefixed to verbs beginning with w, n or m becomes ng.

Example.

Ku wisha, to throw down. Ba la ngwisha, they throw me down.

3. When n or m is prefixed to verbs in l, l becomes d.

Examples.

Ku lemeka, to honour. Ba la ndemeka, they honour me.

Ku lwila, to fight for. Ba la ndwila, they fight for me.

Ku letela, to bring for. Ba la ndetela, they bring for me.

4. When n or m is prefixed to verbs whose initial is b or l and which contain another nasal, the b or l is deleted.

See examples given in Chap. II, Sect. 2 (1, 2).

5. When n or m is prefixed to verbs beginning with y, y becomes j.

Examples.

Ku yaya, to kill. Ba la njaya, they kill me.

Ku yovwa, to help. Ba la njovwa, they help me.

6. Before verbs beginning with m or n the pronoun is simply dropped. To indicate this elision an apostrophe may be inserted, but there is no change in the spoken language.

Examples.

Ku manina, to serve. Ba la 'manina, they serve me.

Ku nununa, to redeem. Ba la 'nununa, they redeem me.

7. Before the other consonants m or n undergoes no change.

B.—Ku bala, to pass by. Ba la mbala, they go past me.

Ch.—Ku china, to throw down. Ba la nchina, they throw me down.

D.—Ku didila, to weep for. Ba la ndidila, they weep for me.

F.—Ku fusa, to throw. Ba la mfusa, they shoot me.

K.—Ku kaka, to refuse. Ba la nkaka, they refuse me.

S.—Ku sempula, to carry. Ba la nsempula, they carry me.

- T.—Ku tambula, to receive. Ba la ntambula, they receive me.
 V.—Ku vumina, to believe. Ba la nvumina, they believe me.
 Z.—Ku zanda, to like. Ba la nzanda, they like me.

The verbs also take this form in the subjunctive mood, the final vowel changing into e. Thus :—

Sa wa amb'ati, ngange? Do you say I must tie?

Wa ntuma kumbele ati nyenzhe beenzu, he sent me ahead that I might guide the travellers.

Nde ziza, ntambule shintu shangu, I come that I may receive my things.

In relative clauses, also, this form of the pronoun is often found; but here, in order, it seems, that the pronoun may be more distinctly heard, it takes the form of in-. Thus Nku kako kambo nku inanga, this is the affair I want; Ingo masamo aza ngu inanga, they are not the trees I want. Pronounce: nkwinanga; ngwinanga.

When the accusative mu is used before verbs beginning with b it often appears as um prefixed to the verb. Thus :—

Ta ba ch'umboni dinji, they did not see him again.

Dimwi ba ka umbusha, afterwards they raised him.

Bantu ba ka umbuzha, the people asked him.

The pronouns given above are equivalent to our English I, thou, he, &c.; there yet remain forms for all the classes, 2-9a, equivalent to our it, they, them. These pronouns are shown in the following table :—

Class	Singular		Plural
	Nominative	Accusative	Nominative	Accusative
2. MU- MI-	u, wa	u	i, ya	i
3. I- MA-	di, dia	di	}	a
4. BU- MA-	bu, bwa	bu
5. KU- MA-	ku, kwa	ku
6. KA- TU-	ka	ka	tu, twa	tu
7. CHI- SHI-	chi, cha	chi	shi, sha	shi
BI-			bi, bia	bi
8. IM- IM-	i, ya	i	shi, sha	shi
9. LU- IN-	lu, lwa	lu	shi, sha	shi
9a. LU- MA	lu, lwa	lu	a	a

On the use of these pronouns note particularly :—

(a) The subject of a sentence, when a noun or substantive pronoun, must always be followed by a personal pronoun. An apparent exception to this is when the subject noun or substantive pronoun is placed after the verb ; but that it is only apparent is seen by changing the position of the subject. Thus :—

Muntu u la ya, the person is going ; lit.—person he is going.

Ing'ombe shi la fula, the cattle are grazing ; lit.—cattle they are grazing.

Putting the subject at the end, these sentences appear thus :—

U la ya muntu, he is going, the man.

Shi la fula ng'ombe, they are grazing, the cattle.

(b) When used as objects the personal pronouns are placed between the pronominal subject and the verb, never in any other position. Thus :—

Muntu u la mu yaya, the person kills him ; lit.—person he him kills.

These are most important rules and, particularly the first, are always violated by those who speak that dreadful lingo called 'Kitchen Kaffir'. This is the sort of thing one has inflicted upon him :—'Mina funa tenga,' 'Umfana funa hamba,' corruptions of the Tebele : 'Mina ngi ya funa ugu tenga,' 'Umfana u ya funa ugu hamba.' Fancy : 'Me want go' ! 'Boy want walk' !—as those 'sentences' may be translated.

Examples of the use of the Personal Pronoun.

Notice the suffixing of the verbal copula di to the pronoun. This is merely a matter of convenience.

Muntu u le enda, the person travels. Nda mu bona, I see him.

Bantu ba le enda, the people travel. Twa ba bona, we see them.

Munzhi wa zakwa , the village is built.	Two ebela (= twa u), we admire it.
Minzhi idi kwi? Where are the villages?	Ta tu i bwene , we have not seen them.
Isamo di la mena , the tree grows.	Wa di nwisha , he waters it.
Masamo adi ongai? How many trees?	Adi otatwe , they are three.
Bwa mana bufu , the meal is finished.	Twa bu dya , we have eaten it.
Kutwi ku la chisa , the ear is painful.	Nda ku bona , I see it.
Kashimbi ka la sobana , the little girl plays.	U ka shimwine , tell her.
Tushimbi tu la dila , the little girls are crying.	Sa mwa tu lola? Do you feed them?
Chintu chidi kwi? Where is the thing?	Sa mwa chi bona? Have you seen it?
Shintu shidi kwi? Where are the things?	Sa mwa shi bona? Have you seen them?
Bintu bia vhwa kwi? Where are the things from?	Sa mwa bi bula? Do you need them?
Impongo i la dila , the goat bleats.	Ko ya, u i yaye , go and kill it.
Ing'ombe shi la fula , the cattle are grazing.	Ka mu shi bingile kono , drive ye them here.
Lupidi ludi kulale , the hill is far.	Twa lu bona , we see it.
Lutele ludi kwi? Where is the net?	Shi lu bwene , I haven't seen it.
Intele shidi kwi? Where are the nets?	Shi shi bwene , I haven't seen them.

Locative Personal Pronouns.

The locative prefixes appear as pronouns, mu, ku, a.

Examples.

Munganda mudi sofwele, the house is dirty inside.

Anganda adi sofwele, the house is dirty, i. e. outside.

Kunganda kudi sofwele, it is dirty by the house.

Munganda mwina (= mu ina) chintu, there is nothing in the house ; lit.—In-the-house in-it-has-no thing.

Kunganda kwina chintu, there is nothing at the house.

Anganda a ina chintu, there is nothing on the house.

SECT. 2. THE SUBSTANTIVE PRONOUN.

The substantive pronoun has different forms, the various uses of which may cause some perplexity to the student at first ; it will be best to take each form separately and explain it.

a.—The Simple Form.

Ome, I myself.

Uwe, thou thyself.

Walo, he himself.

Uswe, we ourselves.

Umwe, you yourselves.

Balo, they themselves.

The forms for the classes 2-9a are as follows :—

Class.	Singular.		Plural.
2.	MU- MI- Walo	} It itself, &c.	Yalo	} They themselves.
3.	I- MA- Dialo		} Alo
4.	BU- MA- Bwalo
5.	KU- MA- Kwalo		} Twalo
6.	KA- TU- Kalo
7.	CHI- SHI- Chalo		} Shalo
8.	IM- IM- Yalo
9.	LU- IN- Lwalo		} Alo
9a.	LU- MA- Lwalo

In the third person, all classes, the demonstrative forms are sometimes used instead of the above.

Use of these pronouns :—

(a) The pronouns of the second person are used vocatively :—

Umwe! Umwe! Ka mweza (mu eza) kono: You! You!

Come you here.

Uwe! Ko ya: You, go you.

(b) They are used to distinguish clearly between two persons or things named in a sentence. They may thus be used when there is a likelihood of confusion between the 2nd and 3rd persons sing. of the personal pronoun, u, thou or he. They are also used in a general way to give emphasis.

Examples.

Ome nda ma pa nshima; walo (or wezo) u la ma pa buzane, I, I give you bread; he, he gives you meat.

Uwe, ko ya ku munda; wezo a shale kono, you, go you to the field; he, he may stay here.

Balo ba la tuba, wezo u la shia, they are white, (whereas) he is black.

Kwalo kukozhana ba la kozhana, even as regards resemblance, they resemble each other.

Budimbushi bwalo, foolishness indeed.

Ome nda ma bapatzha menzhi; walo u ka la ma bapatzha o Moza u sweya, I, I baptize you with water; (but) he shall baptize you with the Holy Spirit.

The locative forms are as follows:—

Mwalo, even in.

Kwalo, even at, or to.

Alo, even on.

Examples.

Mwalo modia ka ya ku njila, even, or just, there he entered in.

Kwalo kodia ka ya ku vhwa, even just there he came out.

Alo adia ka ya ku kala, just there he sat down.

(c) These pronouns may also be used as objectives after prepositions, the particle di being appended to the preposition.

Examples.

Wa ka leta shidyoy kudi balo, he brought food to them.

U tu kwatile milandu bubona mbu tu kwatila badi milandu kudi uswe, forgive our faults as we forgive them that have faults to us.

(d) These pronouns when immediately following nouns express only, merely, simply; e. g. Impongo shalo, only goats.

(e) These pronouns are emphasized in the plur. by means of the particle lona. The meaning is peculiar. Intongwezhi sha ba shalo lona, the stars are themselves alone; i. e. nothing else visible. Koko kudi balombwana balo lona: There are only men there, i. e. no women or children.

b. The Indicative Form.

This is formed by means of the copulative particles and the latter syllables of the simple form. In the first and second persons the copulative particle is ndi.

Class	Singular		Plural
	Affirmative	Negative	Affirmative	Negative
1st p.	Ndime, it is I	Indime, it is not I	Ndiswe, it is we	Indiswe, it is not we
2nd p.	Ndiwe, it is thou	Indiwe, it is not thou	Ndimwe, it is you	Indimwe, it is not you
1. 3rd p.	Inguwe, it is he	Ingwe, it is not he	Imbabo, it is they	Imbo, it is not they
2.	Inguo	Ingwe	Injiyo	Injo
3.	Indidio	Indio	Ingao	Ingo
4.	Imbubo	Imbo
5.	Inkuko	Inko	Intuto	Into
6.	Inkako	Inko
7.	Inchicho	Incho	Inshisho	Insho
8.	Injio	Injo
9.	Indulo	Indo	Ingao	Ingo
9a.	Indulo	Indo

On the uses of these pronouns, note :—

(a) In the negative of classes 1–9a use is made of the copulative particle negative, followed generally by the demonstrative pronouns; and in the affirmative, the demonstratives preceded by the copulative particles are also often used. Thus :—

Ngu wezo, it is this, or it. Ingwe wezo, it is not that, or it.
Ndi ledio, „ Indio ledio, „

(b) As the name implies, these pronouns are used in indicating or pointing out somebody or some thing. Unlike the demonstrative pronouns, they are never used adjectively.

Examples.

Nguni owa chita bodia? Who is it who did so?
Ndime nda ka chita, It is I who did (it).
Inguwe owa shika 'zona, it is he who arrived yesterday.
Inko kako kambo nku inanga, it is not the affair I look for.
Ingao masamo ako, these are thy trees.

(c) The affirmative forms (the initial i being deleted) are used, with or without prepositions, to indicate the author of an action or the instrument with which it is done, thus including our prepositions by, with, by means of.

Examples.

Chintu chechi cha letwa ndime, this thing was brought by me.
Sa cha letwa ndiwe? Was it brought by thee?
Bantu ba la shindikilwa ndiswe, the people are accompanied by us.
Mutatula wezo, nda ka umwa nguo (or ku nguo), this whip, I was beaten with it.
Bwato bobo, tu la landuka mulonga mbubo (or ku mbubo), that canoe, we will cross the river by means of it.

(d) These pronouns may also be used with the preposition ku, to, from, to which the particle di may or may not be appended.

Examples.

Kweza (Ko eza) kudi ndime, come to me.
Wa ke za kudi ndiwe, he came to thee.
Ka mu ya kudi nguwe, go ye to him.
Kweza kudi ndiswe, come to us.

The locative forms are as follows:—

Imumo, it is in.

Ima, it is not in.

Inkuko, it is at.

Inko, it is not at.

Ingao, it is on.

Ingo, it is not on.

c. The Indicative Form Emphasized.

By suffixing -na to the indicative form given above, an emphasis is given to it. The meaning is, it is just so-and-so.

Class	Singular	Plural
1.	Ndimena , it is I particularly	Ndiswena , it is we particularly
	Ndiwena , it is thou particularly	Ndimwena , it is you particularly
	Nguwena , it is he particularly	Mbobona , it is those particularly
2. MU- MI-	Nguwena	Njiona
3. I- MA-	Ndidiona	Ngona } it is
4. BU- MA-	Mbubona
5. KU- MA-	Nkukona	Nshishona } particularly
6. KA- TU-	Nkakona
7. CHI- SHI-	Nchichona
8. IM- IM-	Njiona
9. LU- IN-	Ndulona
9a. LU- MA-	Ndulona

Examples.

Shikwe inji, njiona ezhi inshipi yangu, I don't want another, it is just this my bracelet.

Ndulona lolo lwimbo, that is the very song.

Mbubona bushiku bobo, it is just that very day.

Nda tola musamo wezu nguwena ngu wa ku sha, I take this very medicine which you have dug up.

Nguni u sempula inkomo yangu? Nguwena Shamatanga. Who is it carries my bag? It is even he, Shamatanga.

From some of these examples it is seen that these pronouns are used to emphasize the demonstratives. The same is true of the locative forms:—

Mumona, just in there.
Nkukona, just at there.
Ngona, just on there, &c.

Examples.

A shike ngona a ka wila shumbwa ase muzovu wa wa.
 When he arrived just where the lion fell, he also the elephant fell.

Mbike kwi chintu chechi ? Bika mumona momo. Where am I to put this thing ? Put it just in there.

Mwa vhwa kwi umwe ? Nkukona koko nku tu vhwa.
 Where are you from ? It is just there whence we come.

Inzhila idi kwi ? Ngona 'wa. Where is the road ? Just here.

d. The Prepositional Form.

Class	Singular	Plural
1.	Imbele, me Ubele, thee Abele, he	Tubele, us Mubele, you Babele, him
2. MU- MI-	Ubele	Imbele
3. I- MA-	Dibele	Abele
4. BU- MA-	Bubele
5. KU- MA-	Kubele	Tubele
6. KA- TU-	Kabele
7. CHI- SHI-	Chibele	Shibele
8. IM- IM-	Imbele
9. LU- IN-	Lubele	Abele
9a. LU- MA-	Lubele

These forms are verbal in origin; the second part of them, -bele, being the perfect of the verb ku ba, to be, to become. Ko ya ku babele really means go where they are, but is commonly used to mean simply go to them. So that while the meanings above are used care must be taken to remember the original meaning. To express a more personal idea the indicative forms are used as shown above.

Examples.

Kweza kwimbele (ku imbele), come to me.

Ing'ombe ku shidi koko, ko ya ku shibele, the cattle are yonder, go to them.

Be ziza ku tubele, they come to us.

e. The Conjunctive Form.

This is formed by means of the particle a, with, and, prefixed to the latter syllable of the simple form of the substantive pronoun.

Ame, I also, with me.

Aswe, we also, even us, with us.

Aze, thou also, even thee.

Amwe, you also, even you, with you.

Aze, he also, even him, with him.

Abo, they also, even them, with them.

Notice that the 2nd and 3rd persons sing. are irregular; the particle aze being substituted for the form awe.

In the 3rd person plur. there is a double form, abo and abalo.

The suffix -bo is added to the above to give them emphasis.

Amebo, I, even I.

Aswebo, we, even we.

Azebo, thou, even thou.

Amwebo, you, even you.

Azebo, he, even he.

(wanting, use abalo).

For the other classes, these are the forms :—

Class	Singular	Plural
2. MU- MI-	awo	ayo
3. I- MA-	adio	ao
4. BU- MA-	abo
5. KU- MA-	ako	ato
6. KA- TU-	ako
7. CHI- SHI-	acho	asho
8. IM- IM-	ayo	ao
9. LU- IN-	alo
9a. LU- MA-	alo

These pronouns are both nominative and accusative; as nominatives they have the meaning even I, even it, &c., and must then be followed by a personal pronoun like other pronouns ; as accusatives they have the meaning with me, with it, &c.

Examples.

Tu la ya ase, we will go with thee, i. e. together.

Twa ke enda abo, we travelled with them.

Ame ka nda ya, I also am going.

Sa wa njovwa, amebo ni nku swile, do you help me, me who hated you?

Ome shi ka ba amwe, I, I will not be with you.

Mwaba wa ya ku munzhi wakwe ; ayo inkala yo ona a munzhi wayo, Mwaba went to his village ; it also the crab slept at his place.

Ome shikwe aza, nda zanda ipepe odia ko aze, I, I don't want these, I want the feather which is there with you, i.e. on you.

Ndutele lubotu, kweza kono alo, it is a fine reed, come here with it.

Nda langa kuboko kwa musefu, kweza kono ako, I want the foreleg of the eland, come here with it.

SECT. 3. THE POSSESSIVE PRONOUN.

The following is a table of the possessive pronouns :—

Pers.	Singular		Plural
	Class	Pronoun	Pronoun
1		-ngu, my, mine	-isu, our, ours
2		-ko, thy, thine	-inu, thy, thine
3	1. MU- BA-	-kwe, his, hers, its	-bo, their, theirs
	2. MU- MI-	-o " "	-yo " "
	3. I- MA-	-dio " "	} -o " "
	4. BU- MA-	-bo " "
	5. KU- MA-	-ko " "
	6. KA- TU-	-ko " "	-to " "
	7. CHI- SHI-	-cho " "	} -sho " "
	8. IM- IM-	-yo " "
	9. LU- IN-	-lo " "
	9a. LU- MA-	-lo " "	-o " "

On the form and use of these, note:—

a. The pronouns of classes 2–9a are identical with the latter syllables of the indicative substantive pronoun, i. e. that part of them which is not the copulative prefix.

b. These pronouns are connected with the nouns they qualify by means of the genitive particles which are prefixed to them. Thus:—

Chintu cha-ngu, my thing.

c. In the 1st and 2nd persons plur. -isu and -inu obey the phonetic law that their initial i coalesces with the a of the genitive particle to produce e. Thus:—

Makani esu (= a + isu), our affairs.

Manda enu (= a + inu), your houses.

Shintu shesu (= sha + isu), our things.

Ing'ombe shenu (= sha + inu), your cattle.

d. They are placed immediately after the noun possessed.

e. The locative prefixes are also used with these pronouns.

Examples of the use of Possessive Pronouns.

Ing'anda yangu, my house.

Manda angu, my houses.

Ing'anda yako, thy house.

Manda ako, thy houses.

Ing'anda yakwe, his house.

Manda akwe, his houses.

Ing'anda yesu, our house.

Manda esu, our houses.

Ing'anda yenu, your house.

Manda enu, your houses.

Ing'anda yabo, their house.

Manda abo, their houses.

Munzhi o bantu baó, the village and its people.

Minzhi o bantu bayó, the villages and their people.

Isamo o matovu adió, the tree and its leaves.

Masamo o matovu aó, the trees and their leaves.

Bwato o mwini wabó, the canoe and its owner.

Kulu o shilonda shakó, the leg and its ulcers.

Kalombwana o kusobana kwakó, the boy and his playing.

Tulombwana o kusobana kwató, the boys and their playing.

Chikuba o mudimi wachó, the garden and its hoer.

Shikuba o badimi bashó, the gardens and their hoers.

Ing'ombe o chimpata chayó, the beast and its kraal.

Ing'ombe o chimpata chashó, the cattle and their kraal.

Lutanga o beembezhi baló, the cattle outpost and its herdsmen.

Intanga o beembezhi bashó, the cattle outposts and their herdsmen.

9.	mwalo	mwasho	kwalo	kwasho	alo	asho
9a.	mwalo	mwao	kwalo	kwao	alo	ao

These are formed like other possessives by prefixing the genitive particles to the possessive pronouns given above. Their meanings must be carefully noted, as they differ in some respects from other pronouns.

The first forms, mwangu, &c., mean literally in-of-mine. They are used in two ways, (a) to indicate inside something, inside one; or (b) within one's dwelling. This latter meaning of course applies only to the 1st and 2nd persons, and to the 1st cl. of the 3rd pers.

The second forms, kwangu, &c., mean literally to-of-mine.

They also are used in two ways: (a) to indicate to something, and thus they have more of a prepositional than a possessive meaning; and (b) to indicate at or to one's place of residence, one's home. In the latter sense they are used only in the 1st and 2nd persons and the 3rd pers., Cl. 1; they are also in this sense preceded by the preposition u (modified form of ku) to distinguish from the other sense.

The third forms mean literally on-of-mine and are used with locative nouns, &c., to express the meaning of possession only.

The following examples will make all this clear.

Examples.

Sa koko kwako kwina u zanda ku beleka? At your place is there nobody wanting work?

Ano angu a ina masamo, On my premises here there are no trees.

Chifumo tu la bwela u kwesu, In the morning we are going to our home.

Mono mwangu mwina bulwazhi, In me, or, in my place there is no suffering.

Monse mwakwe mwina chintu, In all his place is nothing.

Tola sheshi u shi bike mukati mwadio, Take these and put them within it (i. e. ikwati, a box).

Twa ka ona afwafwi ao, We slept in the vicinity of it (i. e. munzhi).

Bika chechi kumbadi kwayo, Put this by the side of it (i. e. inganda).

Enclitic Possessives.

Various possessive pronouns are suffixed to the nouns, and therefore have the name enclitics. The following are examples of this :—

Tatésu, our father.

Mwanángu, my child.

Banésu, our children.

Mwanákwe mwami, the chief's child.

Banábo bami, the chief's children.

Besides these, other possessive suffixes are found in nouns bearing a kind of collective meaning. These suffixes are as follows:—

-ma , my fellow . . .	-nokwesu , our fellow . . .
-noko , thy fellow . . .	-nokwenu , your fellow . . .
-na, -nina , his fellow . . .	-nokwabo , their fellow . . .

Examples.

Mukazhima, my fellow wife.

Mukazhinoko, thy fellow wife.

Mukazhina, her fellow wife.

Mukazhinokwesu, our fellow wife.

Mukazhinokwenu, your fellow wife.

Mukazhinokwabo, their fellow wife.

Bakazhima, my fellow wives.

Bakazhinoko, thy fellow wives.

Bakazhina, her fellow wives.

Bakazhinokwesu, our fellow wives.

Bakazhinokwenu, your fellow wives.

Bakazhinokwabo, their fellow wives.

The above are used by and of the wives of a polygamist.

Musama, my fellow initiate.

Musanoko, thy fellow initiate.

Musanina, his fellow initiate.

Musanokwesu, our fellow initiate.

Musanokwenu, your fellow initiate.

Musanokwabo, his fellow initiate.

Basama, my fellow initiates.

Basanoko, thy fellow initiates.

Basanina, his fellow initiates.

Basanokwesu, our fellow initiates.

Basanokwenu, your fellow initiates.

Basanokwabo, their fellow initiates.

The preceding are used by and of men who passed through the initiation ceremonies together and who through life form a kind of league.

Possessive Phrases.

Another way of expressing the possessive is by using the following forms. These are really phrases, containing in themselves personal and possessive pronouns, as we should say, 'it is mine,' &c.

In the singular these phrases are personal, i. e. they indicate what belongs to one himself. In the plural they denote what belongs to one's family, village, or nation.

lunakwangu manakwangu	lunakwako manakwako	lunakwakwe manakwakwe	lunakwesu manakwesu	lunakwenu manakwenu	lunakwabo manakwabo

Examples of the use of these.

Mubwa wezo ngwa kani? Munakwangu. Whose is this dog? It is mine.

Iamba ledi ndinakwangu, This hoe is mine. .

A mu tole mamba onse, pele manakwangu a shale, Take ye all the hoes, but let mine stay.

Mwa sambasha ing'ombe shangu nambutu? Pe, twa tola shinakwangu budio. You have traded with my cattle, is it not so? No, we took mine only.

Macheme aza onse ngu manakwesu, All this Kaffir corn belongs to our village, or to our family.

Tuntu totu ntunakwangu tonse, All these little things are mine.

Banakwesu, People of our family, my intimates, relations, fellows, brethren.

Notice that used as predicates these are prefixed by n or m, except where the initial is already m.

Possessive Pronouns with the Copula.

The possessive interrogative pronoun whose? is kani?
This is connected with the noun by means of the genitive particles, copulative form. In answering the question, the copulative particles are also used.

Examples.

Muntu wezu ngwa kani? Whose person is this? Ngu wangu, he is mine. Or, Ngwangu.

Bana babo mba kani? Whose children are those? Mbo bangu, they are mine. Or, Mbangu.

Mutiba wezu ngwa kani? Whose basin is this? Ngu wakwe, it is his. Or, Ngwakwe.

Mitiba ezhi nja kani? These basins are whose? Nji yesu, they are ours. Or, Njesu.

Isumo ledi ndia kani? Whose spear is this? Ndi diangu, it is mine. Or, Ndiangu.

Masumo aza nga kani? Whose spears are these? Ng' esu, they are ours.

Mbwa kani bwato bobo? Whose canoe is that? Mbu bwangu, it is mine. Or, Mbwangu.

Kashimbi kako nka kani? Whose girl is that? Nku kangu, it is mine. Or, Nkangu.

Tushimbi toto ntwakani? Whose girls are those? Ntu twakwe, they are his. Or, Ntwakwe.

Chintu chechi ncha kani? Whose is this thing? Nchi changu, it is mine. Or, Nchangu.

Shintu sheshi nsha kani? Whose are these things? Nshi shangu, they are mine. Or, Nshangu.

Impongo ezhi nja kani? Whose goat is this? Nji yako, it is thine. Or, Njako.

Lutele lolo ndwa kani? Whose net is this? Ndu lwangu, it is mine. Or, Ndwangu.

SECT. 4. THE INTERROGATIVE PRONOUN.

Personal	Sing.	Ni? Who? Whom?	Pl.	Bani?
Neuter	„ and Plur.	Nzhi? What?
Possessive	„ „	Kani? Whose?

On the use of these, note:—

(a) The possessive kani? whose? has been illustrated above.

(b) The form nzhi succeeds a noun or verb without any intervening particle, the accent of the noun or verb being drawn forward to the final vowel. It asks the question, What sort? when used with nouns; simply what? when used with simple verbs; and why? when used with verbs of the relative species.

Examples.

Munyamá nzhi wedia? What sort of animal is yon?

Mwaná nzhi wezo? What sort of child is that? i. e. male or female?

Mwa letá nzhi? What do you bring?

Mwa ambulá nzhi bobo? Why do you speak like that?

(c) In asking the question What is this? in a general way, without special reference to a particular thing, the pronouns of Class 7 are used. In this way also there is another form of the interrogative, nyamanzhi? what? Thus:—

Chi nyamanzhi? What is it?

Chi nzhi? What is it?

(d) The pronoun ni? who? whom? is suffixed to the indicative forms of the substantive pronoun of the 2nd and 3rd persons to ask the question Who is he? &c. Thus:—

Ndiweni? Who art thou?

Nguni? Who is he? (not nguweni).

Ndimweni? Who are you?

Mbobani? Who are they? (not mbaboni).

Ndiweni izhina diako? lit.—it-is-you-who name of-you?
What is your name?

(e) The pronoun ni? may be preceded by a preposition, which is then prefixed to it. Thus:—

Wa ka amba oni? With whom did you speak?

Wa ka pewa kwani chintu chechi? By whom were you given that thing?

There are two other forms used in asking questions, viz. -udie? Which? and -ongai? How many?

a. The Stem -die? Which?

This may be called a discriminative pronoun, as it seeks to distinguish one thing from among many of the same kind. Used adjectively it is prefixed by the personal pronouns of the classes to which the nouns belong. Used pronominally it is prefixed by the copulative particles.

Examples.

Cl. I. MU- Wa langa muntu udie? Which person do you want?

Muntu ngudie? Which is the person?

BA- Wa langa bantu badie? Which people do you want?

Bantu mbobadie? Which are the people?

- Cl. 2. MI- Mwa beza mitiba idie? Which basins have you carved?
Mitiba njidie? Which are the basins?
- Cl. 3. I- Mwa shika izuba didie? Which day did you arrive?
Iamba ndidie? Which is the hoe?
 MA- Mwa dima o mamba adie? Which hoes do you hoe with?
Mamba ngadie? Which are the hoes?
- Cl. 4. BU- Wa ula bufu budie? Which meal have you bought?
Bufu mbudie? Or, mbubudie? Which is the meal?
- Cl. 5. KU- U la sata kutwi kudie? Which ear are you sick?
Kutwi nkudie? Or, nkukudie? Which ear?
- Cl. 6. KA- Wa leta kasonde kadie? Which needle have you brought?
Kasonde nkukadie? Which is the needle?
 TU- Wa leta tusonde tudie? Which needles have you brought?
Tusonde ntutudie? Which are the needles?
- Cl. 7. CHI- Mwa bona chintu chidie? Which thing have you seen?
Chintu nchidie? Or, nchichidie? Which is the thing?
 SHI- Mwa bona shintu shidie? Which things have you seen?
Shintu nshidie? Or, nshishidie? Which are the things?
- Cl. 8. IM- Wa yaya impongo idie? Which goat have you killed?
Impongo njidie? Which is the goat?
 IM- Wa yaya impongo shidie? Which goats have you killed?
Impongo nshidie? Or, nshishidie? Which are the goats?

Cl. 9. LU- Wa leta lutele ludie? Which net have you brought?

Lutele ndudie? Or, nduludie? Which is the net?

b. The Stem -ongai? How many?

This is treated like the indefinite adjectives -onse, all; -ongeana, few. (See Chap. IV, Sect. 3 d.)

Examples.

Cl. 1. Mwa leta bantu bongai? How many people have you brought?

Bantu badi bongai? How many are the people?

Cl. 2. Mwa bona mitiba yongai? How many basins have you seen?

Mitiba idi yongai? How many are the basins?

Cl. 3. Mwa kapola mato ongai? How many canoes do you require?

Mato adi ongai? How many are the canoes?

Cl. 7. Mwa bona shintu shongai? How many things do you see?

Shintu shidi shongai? How many are the things?

SECT. 5. THE REFLECTIVE PRONOUN.

The reflective pronoun is di, for all persons, numbers, and classes. Its position in the sentence is immediately before the verb, to which it may be conveniently prefixed.

Examples.

Ku anga, to tie.

Ku dianga, to tie oneself.

Ku angulula, to untie.

Ku diangulula, to untie oneself.

Ku kosola, to cut.

Ku dikosola, to cut oneself.

Ku iya, to teach.

Ku diiya, to teach oneself, to learn.

SECT. 6. THE DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUN.

The following is a table of the demonstrative pronouns :—

Class	Singular			Plural
	'This'	'That'	'Yonder'	'These'	'Those'	'Yonder'
1. MU- BA-	wezu, weno	wezo	wedia	baba, bano	babo	badia
2. MU- MI-	wezu, weno	wezo	wedia	eshi, eno	esho	yedia
3. I- MA-	ledi, leno	ledio	ledia	aza, ano	azo	adia
4. BU- MA-	bobu, bobo	bobo	bodia
5. KU- MA-	koku, kono	koko	kodia
6. KA- TU-	kaka, kano	kako	kadia	totu, tono	toto	todia
7. CHI- SHI-	chechi, cheno	checho	chedia	sheshi, sheno	shesho	shedia
BI-				biebi bieno	biebo	biedia
8. IM- IM-	ezhi, eno	esho	yedia	sheshi, sheno	shesho	shedia
9. LU- IN-	lolu, lono	lolo	lodia
9a. LU- MA-	lolu, lono	lolo	lodia	aza, ano	azo	adia

On the form and use of these, note :—

(a) The first forms given, wezu, weno; ledi, leno, &c., denote things close to the speaker—this, these. The second forms, wezo, ledio, &c., denote things at some distance from the speaker and also things already referred to—that, those. The third forms, wedia, ledia, &c., refer to things at a distance—that yonder, those yonder.

(b) By laying stress upon the latter syllable of the third form, things at a greater distance are indicated; the more the syllable is drawn out the further away the thing. Thus: Shintu she-d-i-a. This is not shown in the written language.

(c) It will be noticed that there are two forms for this, these; the latter ending in -no, the former in the vowels a, i or u. The forms for that, those, all end in o; and those for yonder in dia. This is a useful help to the memory.

(d) The demonstratives are generally placed after nouns, but sometimes they are used before them. Either position is correct.

Examples of the use of Demonstrative Pronouns.

Class 1.

Muntu wezu , this man.	Bantu baba , these people.
Muntu wezo , that person.	Bantu babo , those people.
Muntu wedia , yon person.	Bantu badia , yon people.

Class 2.

Munzhi wezu , this village.	Minzhi ezhi , these villages.
Munzhi wezo , that village.	Minzhi ezho , those villages.
Munzhi wedia , yon village.	Minzhi yedia , yon villages.

Class 3.

Isamo ledi , this tree.	Masamo aza , these trees.
Isamo ledio , that tree.	Masamo azo , those trees.
Isamo ledia , yon tree.	Masamo adia , yon trees.

Class 4.

Bulo bobu , this bed.	Malo aza , those beds.
Bulo bobo , that bed.	Malo azo , those beds.
Bulo bodia , yon bed.	Malo adia , yon beds.

Class 5.

Kulu koku , this leg.	Maulu aza , these legs.
Kulu koko , that leg.	Maulu azo , those legs.

Class 6.

Kashimbi kaka , this girl.	Tushimbi totu , these girls.
Kashimbi kako , that girl.	Tushimbi toto , those girls.
Kashimbi kadia , yon girl.	Tushimbi todia , yon girls.

Class 7.

Chintu chechi , this thing.	Shintu sheshi , these things.
Chintu checho , that thing.	Shintu shesho , those things.
Chintu chedia , yon thing.	Shintu shedia , yon things.

Class 8.

Impongo ezhi, this goat.

Impongo sheshi, these goats.

Impongo ezho, that goat.

Impongo shesho, those goats.

Impongo yedia, yon goat.

Impongo shedia, yon goats.

Class 9.

Lutele lolu, this net.

Intele sheshi, these nets.

Lutele lolo, that net.

Intele shesho, those nets.

Lutele lodia, yon net.

Intele shedia, yon nets.

Demonstratives used predicatively.

Instead of saying this is the thing, Baila say it is this the thing, or the thing it is this. Thus :—

Ngu wezu muntu, this is the person.

Mbo babo bantu, those are the people.

Muntu ngu wedia, yon is the man.

Bantu mbo badia, yon are the people.

Mutiba ngu wezu, this is the basin.

Mitiba nji ezhi, these are the basins.

Ndi ledio isamo, that is the tree.

Ng' aza masamo, these are the trees.

When the question is asked: Where is so and so? the proper answer employs the demonstrative in the same manner.

Ngudi kwi muntu? Where is the person? Ngu wezo, that is he.

Njidi kwi mitiba? Where are the basins? Nji yedia, yon are they.

Isamo ndidi kwi? Where is the tree? Ndi ledio, that is it.

Notice that in asking the above questions the copulative particles are used; it would be equally correct to use the personal pronouns, udi kwi, &c.

Locative Demonstratives.

These are as follows :—

Locative prefix.	'this'	'that'	'yonder.'
MU	mono	momo	modia.
KU	kono	koko	kodia.
A	ano, awa	awo	adia.

These are used with locative nouns. Thus :—

Munganda mono, in this house, or in the house here.

They can also be used substantively. Thus :—

Mono mwina (mu ina) muntu, lit.—In-here it-has-no person.

There is no person in here.

Ano angu a ina masamo, lit.—At-here at-of-my at-has-no trees.

There are no trees here at my place.

Kodia kwina (ku ina) mabwe, lit.—To-yonder to-has-no stones.

There are no stones yonder.

They are also used as adverbs.

Mono, kono, ano each mean here; momo, koko, awo, there; modia, kodia, adia, yonder—but with slightly different meanings.

Mono means in here; momo, in there; modia, in yonder.

Kono means to here; koko, to there; kodia, to yonder.

Ano, awa means on here; awo, on there; adia, on yonder.

Thus while it is correct to say Leta kono, bring to-here, it is incorrect to say Leta ano. On the other hand, while it is incorrect to say Bika kono, you may say correctly Bika awa, put here, because the verb leta implies bringing to somewhere, while bika implies putting on somewhere; so that the two adverbs kono and awa are not interchangeable. So with the others.

There are shortened forms of these demonstratives, mo, ko, o, used in relative constructions and elsewhere. Thus :—

Wa ka lukanka a ka shike ko kwa ku salwa meya, He ran that he might arrive there where horns were chosen.

SECT. 7. THE RELATIVE PRONOUN.

The following is a table of the relative pronouns :—

Class	Singular			Plural
	1st form	2nd form	3rd form	1st form	2nd form	3rd form
1. MU- BA-	u, ngu	owa	ngu	ba	oba	mbo
2. MU- MI-	u	owa	ngu	i	oya	nji

Note on the form of these pronouns :—

The first forms are identical with the personal pronouns ; the second with the lengthened form of the personal pronoun with o prefixed (except in those classes in the plural which have a) ; the third forms are identical with the copulative particles.

Formation of Relative Clauses.

1. When the subject of the relative clause represents the antecedent the first form of the relative pronoun is used, but if the verb is in the past or aorist tense the second form is used.

Examples.

Ngudi kwi muntu u leta bwizu? Where is the person who brings grass?

Ngudi kwi muntu owa ke za 'zona? Where is the person who came yesterday?

Nguwena ngu ponya bantu usunu, it is he who makes people live to-day.

Imbabo bantu ba te zhi Leza, they are people who do not know God.

Ndi ledi ibuka odia ka ngwalwa nguwe, this is a book that was written by him.

2. When the subject of the relative clause does not represent the antecedent the third form of the relative pronoun is used.

Examples.

Musamo wezo ngu wa ka mpa wa mana, that medicine which you gave me is done.

Mukaintu wezo ngu nda ka funa wa fwa, that woman whom I loved is dead.

Isamo ndi nda ka shimpikila awa dia fwa, the tree which I planted here is dead.

Ivhu ndi wa leta dia mana, the soil which you brought is finished.

Lungwalo ndu wa ka ngwala lwa sweka, the letter which you wrote is lost.

Masamo ngu nda ka shimpikila awa a fwa onse, the trees which I planted here are all dead.

Minzhi nji nda ka bona 'zona mibiabe, the villages which I saw yesterday are bad.

Tushimbi ntu nda ka bona ntubotu, the little girls whom I saw are good.

Shintu shesho nshi nda leta shidi kwi? Where are those things which I brought?

Bwichi mbu nda ka ula bwa bola, the honey which I bought is rotten.

Kasamo nku nda ka tema kadi kwi? Where is the stick which I cut?

Wa ya kwi ngu tu sempula aze? Where has he gone with whom we carry?

Relative clauses which in English are introduced by a preposition are constructed in the same way as those above, no notice being taken of the preposition. If possible the verb is changed to convey the idea that we convey by the preposition.

Examples.

Nji ezhi intipa nji u ka manya midimo, this is the knife with which you can do the work. Lit.—Which you can cause-to-finish the work.

Nji ezhi inzhila bantu nji ba ya bu enda, this is the road by which people travel.

Inshi ezhi bantu nji ba shiti ninshi inkando, this earth on which people live is a great earth.

3. In forming possessive relative clauses use is made of the copula di, here taken to stand for to have.

Examples.

Ngudi kwi muntu udi ng'ombe ezhi i fula? where is the person whose ox this is grazing? Lit.—Who has this ox which is grazing?

Nguni muntu udi milandu nji u swile? Who is the person whose faults you hate?

4. The locative classifiers may also be used to form relative clauses.

Examples.

Ko ya nku tu vhwa, go where we came from.

Chi bike mu mwa ka chi yana, put it where you found it.

Koko nku nda vhwa, there where I come from.

5. We must notice here a change that takes place in the negative verb when used in the relative clause. The negative verb is formed by means of the auxiliary ta; in principal clauses this ta is found before the personal pronoun, thus: ta boni (ta + a), he does not see. In relative clauses this ta shifts its position and is found after the personal pronoun. The 1st person pronoun n is prefixed to the ta.

Examples.

Ta be zhi twambo twangu, they do not know my affairs.

Imbabo bantu ba ta zhi twambo twangu, they are people who do not know my affairs.

Ta boni shintu ; inguwe mofu, he does not see anything ;
he is a blind person.

Mofu ngu muntu u ta boni shintu, a blind person is a person who does not see things.

Shi bwene shintu shangu ; shidi kwi? I don't see my things ; where are they ?

Shidi kwi shintu nshi nta boni? Where are the things which I don't see ?

EXERCISES ON CHAPTER V.

Exercise 1.

For words in these exercises consult the Vocabularies.

The subjunctive mood is as follows:—Mbone, that I may see ; u bone, that thou mayest see ; a bone, that he may see ; tu bone, that we may see ; mu.bone, that you may see ; ba bone, that they may see. The future is formed by inserting ka, thus—nka bone, u ka bone, &c.

They distribute food to me. They speak to me. What is it you told me yesterday? Come and untie me. Hang up this axe for me. My father it is who gave me this name. Go and take out for me (use the subj.) some grain from the bin. They show me their cattle. They answer me well. They call me. These men fought well for me. Bring me my food. The men have gone to buy grain for me. They come to help me. The people all honour me. Do you say I must tie this ox? We saw him yesterday. I am going to ask him the news. There is the little girl ; go and tell her what I say. Have you brought your cows? Drive them here that I may see them.

I give you meat; he gives you bread. Even in that house there are many snakes. We are taking food to them. It is not so; you are telling me a different tale. It is just there in the house where I found him. You men go and cut down trees; the others stay here and work. Come ye here to me all of you. See ye those mopani trees? Go to them and cut down three. Have you seen my children? Go to them and tell them that I want them. It is you yourselves who ought to be beaten. I will destroy that very village which he has built. This very ox is mine. I don't want that man: I want another; yes, that is the very one I want. Where did he sit? He sat just there. Where am I to put this box? Put it just there on the ground. Where do those men come from? They come from just there whence we also came. The goats are in the kraal; go to them and choose the fattest. Those are the people with whom we travelled. You are a good traveller; I will go with you to-day.

Bring me the hoe and its handle. Where am I to put this blanket? Do you see that box yonder? Is it that one near the house? Yes, that's the very one; go and put the blanket inside it. At your place yonder are there no children who wish to enter school? No, there are none. Here at our place there is abundance: yonder it is simply famine. We have no slaves here. Tell your fellow wives to all come and work. Whose are these many cattle? They are mine, all of them. That man is of our place; he has come here to visit us. Whose is this thing? It is mine. And these basins also, whose are they? They are ours. Take them and put them all in the house. What sort of animal is yon? It is an eland. With whom did you come? What does that man say? My children, by whom were you given these things? Which is the ox you want to sell? It is just that white one grazing there. How much money do you want? How many cattle have you?

CHAPTER VI

THE VERB

THE simplest form of the verb is found in the second person, singular, of the present imperative, active voice: chita, do; kala, sit. The verb almost invariably ends in a; when this final vowel is removed we get the root of the verb, i. e. that part which remains unchanged whatever prefixes or suffixes may be added. Changes at the end of a verb are generally made to the root, that is, after the final vowel has been removed.

NOTE.—The only exceptions to the rule that the verb ends in a are found in (a) the subjunctive mood where a is changed to e, and (b) in the negative conjugation where a becomes i. Besides these there are two verbs which end always in i, ku ti, to say; ku shiti, to stay.

SECT. I. VERBAL SPECIES.

Most probably all root or original verbs in Ila are disyllabic; if therefore we meet with verbs of more than two syllables we may conclude them to be derivatives. Certain derivative forms are termed verbal species. They are formed by adding suffixes to the verbal root and they modify or extend very considerably the original meaning of the verb. These verbal species, indeed, are one secret of the flexibility and richness of the language. It must be noted that the various derivative forms are treated in the conjugation just as simple verbs.

The species are nine in number:—

- | | |
|---------------------------|----------------|
| 1.—Relative. | 5.—Capable. |
| 2.—Causative. | 6.—Intensive. |
| 3.—Reciprocal. | 7.—Reversive. |
| 4.—Stative. | 8.—Repetitive. |
| 9.—Persistent repetitive. | |

1. The Relative Species.

The relative form gives the verb a prepositional meaning and largely takes the place of our words—for, to, on behalf of, about, &c.

It is formed by suffixing -ila, -ela, -ina, or -ena to the verbal root. These suffixes are applied according to the phonetic rules:—

(a) If the root contains a, i, or u the suffix has i (i. e. -ila or -ina).

(b) If the root contains e or o the suffix has e (i. e. -ela or -ena).

(c) If the previous syllable contains m or n, -ina or -ena is suffixed, i. e. the l in -ila, -ela becomes n. (These rules apply to other species also.) When the suffixes are added to roots ending in l, the l becomes d. Thus ku sala, ku sadila.

Examples.

Verbs ending in -na and -ma take the suffix -ina or -ena.

Ku kotama, to bow.

Ku kotamina, to bow down to, or before.

Ku lema, to be heavy.

Ku lemena, to be heavy upon.

Ku suntama, to kneel.

Ku suntamina, to kneel down to.

Ku tuma, to send.

Ku tumina, to send to, or for.

Ku shina, to squeeze.

Ku shinina, to squeeze for.

Other verbs have -ila or -ela.

Ku amba, to speak.

Ku ambila, to speak to.

Ku bamba, to arrange.

Ku bambila, to arrange for.

Ku beza, to carve.

Ku bezela, to carve for.

Ku dila, to weep.

Ku didila, to weep for.

Ku ika, to cook.

Ku ikila, to cook for.

Verbs ending in -ula, -ola, -una, -ona, all polysyllabic, take -wila, -wela, -wina, -wena. These are mostly verbs of the repetitive and reversional species.

Ku shimuna , to tell.	Ku shimwina , to tell to.
Ku angulula , to untie.	Ku angulwila , to untie for.
Ku kosola , to cut.	Ku koswela , to cut for.
Ku somonona , to draw out.	Ku somonwena , to draw out for.

Verbs ending in -ezha or -izha, or -isha or -esha, take -izha. These verbs belong to the causative species.

Ku njizha , to put in.	Ku njizhizha , to put in for.
Ku bisha , to destroy.	Ku bishizha , to destroy for.
Ku busha , to lift up.	Ku bushizha , to lift up for.

Note the following verbs :—

Ku ya , to go.	Ku ila , to go for.
Ku nwa , to drink.	Ku nwina , to drink for.
Ku eza (kweza), to come.	Ku zila , to come for.
Ku dya , to eat.	Ku dila , to eat for.
Ku tia , to fear.	Ku tila , to fear for.

On the use of this species, note the following :—

Intransitive verbs taking the relative suffix become in a way transitive, i. e. they take what in English would be called an indirect object. Thus :—

Ku lemana , to be angry.	Nda mu lemanina , I am angry with him.
Ku chebauka , to look around.	Nda chebaukila bantu , I look round upon the people.

Transitive verbs with the relative suffix take two objects, one direct, the other indirect. The direct object is governed by the verb itself ; the indirect by the suffix, as if it were a preposition. Thus : wa ndila bana (a phrase in an Ila tale), he eats-from-me children, i. e. he eats my children, or he deprives me of my children. Here n is the indirect and bana the direct object. Nda letela mwami impongo, I bring-for the chief a goat. Here mwami is the indirect object and impongo the direct object. Generally speaking, the indirect object stands before the direct in a sentence.

The verbs in the relative species form the passive voice in the usual way by inserting w before the final vowel, but the meaning of the passive needs to be noticed. Thus : Nda lelelwa bana means not, as it might appear, I am fed on behalf of the children, but I have the children fed on my behalf, i. e. that somebody has fed the children on my behalf. In the active construction this sentence would read : Ba ndelela bana, they feed-on-behalf-of-me children. This is according to the rule of the passive, that the indirect object in the active construction becomes the subject of the passive. Thus, again :—

Active.Passive.

Ba bezela mwami bwato, they carve-for the chief a canoe.

Mwami wa bezelwa mbabo bwato, the chief has carved for him by them a canoe.

Tata wa nfwila, my father is dead to me.

Nda fwilwa tata, I am deprived (by death) of my father.

Intipa yangu ya nswekela,
my knife is lost to me.

Nda swekelwa ntipa yangu,
I have lost my knife.

Verbs in the relative species are generally used in sentences before locative nouns and adverbs. Thus :—

A tu landukile mwitala modia, let us cross over to yonder side.

Wa ke njzhizha kwi chintu checho? In where did you put that thing?

In asking the question Why? the relative verb is used followed by nzhi. Thus :—

Ba ambila nzhi bobo? Why do you speak thus?

U la udila nzhi isani ledi? Why do you buy this cloth?

Mwa chitila nzhi chechi? Why do you make this?

The literal meaning of such expressions is, You speak-for what? corresponding to our 'What do you say that for?'

In replying to such questions, and generally in giving a reason for anything, this form of the verb is also used. Thus :—

Nchi chechi nchi nda chi chitila, it is for this that I am doing it.

Nku kako nku twe zila, that is why we came.

Nku kako nku nda udila chechi, it is for that reason I buy this.

The Double Relative Form.

In some verbs the meaning given by the prefix is simply that of the preposition to; to give the idea of 'on behalf of' the suffix is repeated. Thus:—

Ku ambila, to speak to. Ku ambidila, to speak on behalf of.

Ku kombela, to pray to. Ku kombelela, to pray on behalf of.

Other verbs which have a quasi-relative form, i. e. they are used only in that form, the root from which they are derived being either obsolete or rarely used, also take the double suffix to indicate a prepositional meaning. Thus:—

Ku vumina, to believe, assent (from ku vuma, obs.).

Ku vuminina, to assent for, to allow.

Ku dindila, to wait (from ku dinda, to watch—seldom heard).

Ku dindidila, to wait for, on behalf of.

The double form is also sometimes used idiomatically, to indicate an intensive meaning. Thus:—

Ku zuminina, to be completely dried up (from ku zuma, to be dry).

2. The Causative Species.

Verbs in the causative species express the idea of causing, helping, or making a thing to be done. Intransitive verbs put into this species become transitive.

This species is formed by means of the suffixes -zha, -sha, -ya. Instead of being added to the root of the verb, these suffixes are largely added to what remains of the verb when the final syllable is removed.

Examples.

Verbs ending in -la take the suffix -zha, the final syllable being removed.

Ku pala, to scrape.

Ku pazha, to scrape with, to set to scrape.

Ku sofwala, to be unclean.

Ku sofwazha, to defile.

Ku endela, to rule.

Ku endezha, to cause or help to rule.

Ku dila, to weep.

Ku dizha, to cause or help to weep.

Ku sola, to taste.

Ku sozha, to cause to taste.

Ku ula, to buy.

Ku uzha, to cause to buy, to sell.

Verbs ending in -nga, -nda take -nzha, the final syllable being removed.

Ku langa, to behold.

Ku lanzha, to show.

Ku chinga, to meet.

Ku chinzha, to cause to meet.

Ku tonda, to be tabooed.

Ku tonzha, to taboo.

Verbs ending in -ka take -sha, the final syllable being removed.

Ku leka, to leave off.

Ku lesha, to stop.

Ku teka, to draw water.

Ku tesha, to draw water with.

Ku ambuka, to turn aside.

Ku ambusha, to cause to turn aside.

Ku londauka, to drop.

Ku londausha, to cause to drop.

Ku loboka, to run away.

Ku lobosha, to cause to run away.

Verbs ending in -ta, -sa take -sha, the final syllable being removed.

Ku chita, to do.

Ku chisha, to cause to do.

Ku sata, to be sick.

Ku sasha, to sicken.

Ku ikuta, to be satiated.

Ku ikusha, to satiate.

Ku chisa, to be painful.

Ku ita, to pass.

Ku chisha, to pain.

Ku isha, to cause to pass, to miss.

Many verbs ending in -na take -zha, the final syllable being removed.

Ku lemena, to be heavy upon.

Ku lemana, to be angry.

Ku komena, to be big.

Ku manina, to serve.

Ku lemezha, to overload.

Ku lemazha, to anger.

Ku komezha, to make big.

Ku manizha, to cause to serve.

Notice that the above verbs ending in -na are polysyllabic ; disyllabic verbs ending in -na take -ya added to the root. Verbs ending in -ma and -mpa, -mba, take the same.

Ku mina, to swallow.

Ku lakama, to open the mouth.

Ku sena, to approach.

Ku fumpa, to be blunt.

Ku tema, to fell.

Ku zuma, to be dry.

Ku amba, to speak.

Ku minya, to cause to swallow.

Ku lakamya, to cause to open.

Ku senya, to cause to approach.

Ku fumpya, to blunt.

Ku temya, to fell with.

Ku zumya, to dry.

Ku ambya, to cause to speak.

There are a few exceptions to these rules ; they will be found in the Vocabularies. Thus :—

Ku lampa, to be long.

Note also the following :—

Ku lwa, to fight.

Ku shia, to be black.

Ku loa, to bewitch.

Ku nwa, to drink.

Ku lansha, to lengthen.

Ku lwisha, to fight against.

Ku shizha, to make black, dirty.

Ku lozha, to cause to bewitch.

Ku nwisha, to cause to drink.

Besides the above suffixes there is another which also gives a causative meaning to the verb, but the idea it conveys seems to be slightly different. The suffix is -ika or -eka. It seems to be related to the stative suffix -uka, and to mean : to cause to be in a certain state. Some verbs have two causative forms. Thus :—

Ku mena, to grow.

Ku menya, to make grow.

Ku meneka, to cause to be in a growing state.

Ku ona, to sleep.

Ku onya, to cause to sleep.

Ku oneka, to cause to be in a sleeping state.

Ku bomba, to be soft.

Ku bonzha, to soften.

Ku bombeka, to moisten.

Ku bunga, to gather.

Ku bungika, to cause to gather together.

Ku banda, to name.

Ku bandika, to converse.

Ku vhundama, to lie on the face.

Ku vhundamika, to lay on the face.

Verbs with this causative suffix are liable to be confused with those of the capable species.

On the uses of the causative form, note the following :—

The causative suffix gives the idea, not only of causing, but also of helping to be done. Thus: ku sempuzha, from ku sempula, to carry, means not only to cause one to carry, but also to help one to carry.

The causative suffixes have also a prepositional force, indicating to do a thing by means of, with, by. Thus :—

Muzune u la zhunzha mababa, the bird flies with wings.

Muntu u la tuluzha chituluzho chechi, the person bores with this boring-tool.

Ba diyazha mushinzo mulamfu, they kill themselves by a long journey.

Other Illustrative Sentences.

Wezo u la ku manya midimo, he will set you to work.

Lit.—He will you cause to finish works.

Mwami u tu fwezhe, Sir, make us to smoke. (A request for tobacco.)

Nguni u meneka maila? Who is it causes the grain to grow?
Tu la ya ku dizha bantu ba fwilwa mwana, we are going to weep with people who have lost a child.

Leza wa ka andanya mumoni o mushinze, God separated the light from darkness.

Mushidishi u la ponya bantu, the physician cures people.
Lit.—causes-to-live people.

3. The Reciprocal Species.

This expresses mutual action ; also to do something together.
 It is formed by suffixing -ana to the verbal root.

Examples.

Ku bona, to see.	Ku bonana, to see each other.
Ku buzha, to ask.	Ku buzhana, to ask each other.
Ku lwa, to fight.	Ku lwana, to fight together.
Ku sula, to hate.	Ku sulana, to hate each other.
Ku funa, to love.	Ku funana, to love each other.
Ku telela, to hear.	Ku telelana, to hear each other.
Ku sena, to approach.	Ku senana, to approach to- gether.

Verbs in this species are sometimes used in an idiomatic way, to indicate a plural. Thus: Nda binda, I (singly) am in a hurry. Twa bindana, we are both in a hurry, used by two people. A tu tiane, let us both run.

Other Illustrative Sentences.

Ba ka twalana o mukaintu, he marries the woman. Lit.—

They married-each-other, or together, with a woman.

Babo ba chita mulongo ukuti ba funana, they make a covenant because they love each other.

Bantu ba la buzhana twambo, the people ask each other the news.

4. The Stative Species.

Verbs in the stative species express being in a state or condition. The suffix is -uka or -oka. Verbs found in this species are mostly formed not from simple verbs but from derivatives. Thus there are numerous transitive verbs ending in -ula or -ola, which have a corresponding intransitive form ending in -uka or -oka. These form the majority of the verbs in this species.

Examples.

Ku andula, to split.

Ku anduka, to be split ; to be in a split condition.

Ku fungula, to wean.

Ku funguka, to be weaned, in a weaned state.

Ku sandula, to turn.

Ku sanduka, to be in a turned condition.

Ku tulula, to bore.

Ku tuluka, to be pierced.

Ku kosola, to cut.

Ku kosoka, to be cut.

Ku konona, to break.

Ku konoka, to be broken.

Ku enzununa, to melt.

Ku enzunuka, to be molten.

Illustrative Sentences.

Twa ke enda o ba oh' ambuka ambuka, we went with people who were continually getting out of the road. (Ila riddle : answer, mubwa, a dog.)

Cha tuluka chisamo, the log is pierced. Said when an auger has pierced a piece of timber.

Dia kosoka isamo, the tree is cut.

Sandula chintu chechi, turn over this thing. Cha sanduka, it is turned.

Sa mwana wezo wa funguka? Is that child weaned? Eya, nda mu fungula kale. Yes, I have weaned it already.

5. The Capable Species.

This gives the idea that the action expressed by the verb is capable of being done, or fit to be done. Verbs in this species correspond to English verbs ending in -able.

The suffix is -ika or -eka; the same as the causative suffix, from which it needs to be distinguished.

Examples.

Ku aba , to divide.	Ku abika , to be divisible.
Ku chenga , to deceive.	Ku chengeka , to be deceivable, credulous.
Ku bona , to see.	Ku boneka , to be visible.
Ku fwemba , to dislike.	Ku fwembeka , to be dislikeable, unlovable.
Ku mina , to swallow.	Ku minika , to be swallowable.
Ku twala , to marry.	Ku twadika , to be marriageable.
Ku chita , to do.	Ku chitika , to be possible to be done, to be fit to be done.
Ku shoma , to trust.	Ku shomeka , to be trustworthy.
Ku ula , to buy.	Ku udika , to be saleable.

Illustrative Sentences.

Shidyo sheshi sha chea; ta shi abika, this food is small; it is not divisible, i. e. it cannot be divided and distributed.

Mudimo wezo to chitiki, that work cannot be done.

Shi fwine muntu wezo; wa fwembeka, I don't love that person; he is unlovable.

Nda ka zanda ku uzha musune wangu; ta udika, I wanted to sell my ox, but it is not saleable.

Makani akwe a teleleka, his affairs are capable of being understood.

6. The Intensive Species.

Verbs in the intensive species express the idea of the simple verb intensified in meaning. The suffix has the effect of our adverbs very, greatly, clearly, carefully, &c. The suffix is -isha or -esha, and is added to the verbal root.

*Examples.Ku amba, to speak.Ku ambisha, to speak loudly.Ku bamba, to arrange.Ku bambisha, to arrange carefully.Ku beza, to carve.Ku bezesha, to carve nicely.Ku bona, to see.Ku bonesha, to see clearly.Ku langa, to look.Ku langisha, to look intently.Ku enda, to travel.Ku endesha, to travel swiftly.Ku lakama, to open the mouth.Ku lakamisha, to open widely.Ku bonzha, to soften.Ku bonzesha, to make very soft.*Illustrative Sentences.A mu telelishe makani a mwami, understand well the affairs of the chief.Bezeshu musako wangu, carve nicely my walking-stick.U ta ku tepekezha; ambisha, don't mumble; speak out loud.We, tu le endesha. Dear me, we are going fast.Uwe, lakamisha, mbone meno ako, open your mouth wide that I may see your teeth.A mu langishe; banyama nzhi badia? Look ye intently; what are yon animals?7. The Reversive Species.

Verbs in this species express just the opposite idea to those of the simple verbs. The suffix answers to our English prefix un-. The suffixes of this species are -ula or -ulula; -una or -ununa; -ona or -onona.

*Examples.Ku amba, to speak.Ku ambulula, to unspeak; to retract.Ku vhumba, to cover.Ku vhumbulula, to uncover.Ku anga, to tie.Ku angulula, to untie. Also angununa.

Ku yala, to shut.

Ku vhunga, to fold up.

Ku bamba, to arrange.

Ku soma, to sheathe.

Ku yalula, to open.

Ku vhungulula, to unfold.

Ku bambulula. Idiom: To take the pegs out of a skin stretched out to dry.

Ku somonona, to pull out.

Illustrative Sentences.

A mu vhumbulule ing'anda ezhi, uncover this house, i. e. unthatch it.

Nguni owa bambulula isalo? Who unpegged the skin?

A mu vhungulule ingozhi sheshi, unfold this bark-string.

Ba la zambulula koze, they untwist the string.

8. The Repetitive Species.

Many verbs having the suffix -ulula, &c., express not the idea of reversion but that of doing over and over again. These belong to the repetitive species. The suffix corresponds to our prefix re-.

Examples.

Ku ula, to buy, trade.

Ku nenga, to cut.

Ku beza, to carve.

Ku chita, to do, make.

Ku shanga, to sow.

Ku ululula, to trade a thing over and over again.

Ku nengulula, to cut up, i. e. again and again.

Ku bezulula, to carve over again, recarve.

Kuchitulula, to re-do, remake.

Ku shangulula, to resow, i. e. when the first sowing has failed.

9. The Persistent Repetitive Species.

Besides the above repetitive form there is another formed simply by inserting a before the final syllable of other verbs. It indicates doing a thing over and over again, to keep on doing, to be in the habit of doing, to do a thing gradually; sometimes the meaning is rather intensive and indicates doing something entirely. Often it is very difficult to tell the difference between verbs in this species and those from which they are formed.

Examples.

Ku sotoka, to jump.

Ku sotaoka, to jump over and over again; to hop as an insect.

Ku sandula, to turn over.

Ku sandaula, to turn over and over, as in examining a blanket before buying.

Ku seluka, to descend.

Ku selauka, to descend and ascend continually, as anything cooking in a pot.

Ku pepula, to open, as a book.

Ku pepaula, to turn over and over, as the pages of a book.

Ku nyonkola, to pluck up anything, i. e. in one act.

Ku nyonkaola, to pick out as in thinning out seedlings.

Ku chebuka, to look round.

Ku chebauka, to keep on looking around, as when a man is travelling and he fears a wild beast is on his track.

Ku hunduka, to be dirty, of water.

Ku hundauka, to be altogether dirty, of water.

Ku fwisuka, to leave, i. e. altogether.

Ku fwisauka, to leave in companies.

Ku angika, to hang up, fasten up.

Ku angaika, to fasten up, of a lot of things.

Ku andula, to split, i. e. in one act.

Ku andaula, to split up, chop up, as firewood.

Ku shindila, to ram earth, &c.

Ku shindaila, to ram earth by a series of actions.

Compound Derivative Forms.

These are formed by adding to the verb suffix upon suffix, thus vastly extending the meaning of the verb. Many examples will be found in the Vocabularies; a few will suffice here.

Causative-relative species, i. e. the relative added to the causative. Note that the relative suffix is -izha or -ezha when the causative is -sha.

Examples.

Ku bia , to be bad.	Ku bota , to be good.
Ku bisha , to destroy.	Ku bosha , to make good.
Ku bishizha , to destroy for.	Ku boshezha , to gladden.
Ku mena , to grow.
Ku meneka , to cause to grow.
Ku menekela , to cause to grow for.

Reversive-stative species, i. e. the stative added to the reversion.

Examples.

Ku anga , to tie.	Ku kataa , to be tired.
Ku angulula , to untie.	Ku katulula , to refresh.
Ku anguluka , to be untied.	Ku katuluka , to be refreshed.

Stative-relative species, i. e. the relative added to the stative.

Examples.

Ku sanduka , to be turned over.	Ku sandukila , to be turned over towards.
Ku chinduluka , to be turned round.	Ku chindulukila , to be turned round towards.

(The root of this verb is chinda; chindulula is the reversion, chinduluka, the reversion-stative; chindulukila, the rev.-stat.-rel.)

Reciprocal-Causative, i. e. the causative added to the reciprocal.

Examples.

Ku funa , to love.	Ku buzha , to ask.
Ku funana , to love each other.	Ku buzhana , to ask each other.
Ku funanya , to cause to love each other.	Ku buzhanya , to discuss.

Relative-reciprocal, i. e. the reciprocal added to the relative.

Examples.

Ku aba, to divide.

Ku abila, to divide among.

Ku abilana, to divide among each other.

Ku abilanya, to cause to divide among each other.

NOTE.—It is not considered polite to use in a mixed company words ending in nya, because of the meaning of that suffix when it stands as a verb by itself. So that abilanya is not always used, the word abizhana taking its place.

Reversive-reciprocal, i. e. reciprocal added to the reversion.

Examples.

Ku angulula, to untie.

Ku angululana, to untie each other.

Illustrative Sentences.

Langa, wa anguluka mubwa, look, the dog is loose.

Mu ta tu enzesha, you must not make us go quickly.

A mu bunganye antomwi shintu shenu, gather together your things.

Chi nchindulukile, let it turn round to me.

Bazhike ba ka angululana mashiku, the slaves untied each other in the night.

U ba abizhane tombwe, cause them to divide the tobacco among themselves.

Usunu twa bomba ; tu la katuluka ozona, to-day we are fatigued ; we shall be refreshed to-morrow.

Before leaving the subject, there remain four things to be noted. First, while nine different species have been noted above, it is not to say that these are all that might be found. There are many verbs ending in -ala, -ama, &c., which may still after further study be brought into species.

Further, it must be noticed that not every verb can take all the nine different forms given above ; at least they are not heard in ordinary speech.

Again, there are numbers of verbs which from their appearance belong to the species named ; but either the original roots are lost or, where still in use, have such an entirely different meaning that it seems impossible to connect them in meaning with the derived forms. Numerous examples of this will be found in the Vocabularies.

Take, for example, the verbs longelwa, longezha, and the noun mulongo, all referring to a covenant of friendship ; the root from whence they are derived is longa. The word longa in our Vocabularies means 'abandon', and it is doubtful whether this is the root. They may be derived from lunga, 'join up together,' but why the change in the vowel? The Kongo verb longa, 'to cheer, console,' seems to be the root ; if so it is obsolete in Ila.

Again the verb shingulula appears to be the reversive or repetitive form of shinga, but that verb is used only of boys reaching puberty.

The verb imoka appears to be the stative form of ima, but there is no such word in Ila. It evidently is the word 'to stand', as we see in other languages : Zulu, Shuna, ma, ema ; Suto, ema ; Swahili, simama ; Luba, imana ; Nyanja, Ganda, ima ; Lamba, imakana. The Ila word is zhima ; like the Swahili it has now an initial consonant. If imoka is derived from this root it would signify 'to be in a standing position', hence, as its meaning is, 'to delay.' It might be possible to trace back many other Ila derived words in the same way.

Note, lastly, that derived verbs, when there is no doubt as to their root, have very different meanings from the verbs they are derived from, but it is often easy to trace the development of meaning. See, for example, the development of meaning from bota to boshezha (p. 133).

SECT. 2. TRANSITIVE AND INTRANSITIVE VERBS.

Ila verbs are either transitive or intransitive. In transitive verbs the action expressed passes over to an object, e. g. Nda zanda muntu, I like a person. Intransitive verbs simply indicate a state of being or an action which has reference to no object, e. g. Nda fwa, I am dead ; Nda luka, I vomit.

Transitive verbs may be made intransitive by being put into stative species, e. g. trans., ku tulula ; intrans., ku tuluka.

Intransitive verbs may be made transitive by being put into the causative species, e. g. intrans., ku enda; trans., ku enzha.

Intransitive verbs put into the relative species also become transitive in a way, e. g. ku lemana; ku lemanina.

SECT. 3. CONJUGATION.

By conjugation we mean the changes which take place in a verb in order to express differences or changes as to persons, time, or conditions, and also to show whether the agent is active or passive. Such changes are denoted by pronouns, tenses, voices, and moods.

a. By Pronouns.

In English the form of the verb often varies according to the person of the subject pronoun, thus :—I do, thou dost, he does. In Ila it is not so; the verb remains unchanged and only the pronouns vary according to the idea to be expressed, thus :—Nda chita, I do; wa chita, thou dost; wa chita, he does.

b. By Tenses.

By tense we mean the change in the verb to express differences of time. The tenses are many and need not be enumerated here, as they are given in the next chapter. They may be divided into simple and compound, the latter being formed by means of auxiliaries.

c. By Voices.

By voice is meant the change in the verb to express whether the subject of the sentence is acting or is acted upon. There are two voices: the active, denoting that the nominative of the verb is the person or thing which performs the action; and the passive, denoting that the nominative is the person or thing acted upon.

The passive is formed from the active by suffixing -wa or -iwa to the verbal root. When the verb ends in e or i the passive suffix becomes -we, -wi; or -iwe, -iwi.

Examples.

Verbs ending in -sha, -zha, -ya, -nya, take -iwa.

Active.

Ku busha, to raise.
Ku enzha, to lead.
Ku yaya, to kill.
Ku lemekisha, to honour greatly.
Ku lumbuzha, to tax.
Ku mwaya, to scatter.
Ku njizha, to put in.
Ku ponya, to cure.

Passive.

Ku bushiwa, to be raised.
Ku enzhiwa, to be led.
Ku yayiwa, to be killed.
Ku lemekishiwa, to be honoured greatly.
Ku lumbuzhiwa, to be taxed.
Ku mwayiwa, to be scattered.
Ku njizhiwa, to be put in.
Ku ponyiwa, to be cured.

Other verbs take -wa; and certain exceptions to the above rule also take -wa instead of -iwa.

Ku bisha , to destroy.	Ku bishwa , to be destroyed.
Ku bonya , to show.	Ku bonywa , to be shown.
Ku bunganya , to gather.	Ku bunganywa , to be gathered.
Ku amba , to speak.	Ku ambwa , to be spoken.
Ku lengaila , to lead astray.	Ku lengailwa , to be led astray.

Other verbs, again, take either form of suffix.

Ku binga , to drive.	Ku bingwa , or bingiwa , to be driven.
Ku kwata , to hold.	Ku kwatwa , or ku kwatiwa , to be held.

Notice the verb ku tewa, to be said, from ku ti, to say.

From these examples it appears that the passive voice is very similar in meaning to the stative species. Indeed some Bantu grammarians (e. g. Torrend) regard the latter as a form of the passive; while others (e. g. Bentley) term it the Middle voice. The difference between the two must be carefully distinguished. What, e. g., is the difference between Isamo di' anduka and Isamo di' andulwa, both meaning the tree is split? The difference is that in the passive an agent is named or at least implied, whereas in the stative it is not so. Thus in the example just quoted, Isamo di' andulwa implies the idea that somebody has split the tree. Isamo di' anduka, on the other hand, rivets attention on the tree itself; the tree is simply split, in a split condition, whether by the agency of man or the elements is not indicated.

This is one of the points to which attention must be paid if one desires to speak correct Ila.

Prepositions used with the Passive.

The passive may be followed by two indirect objects, the one denoting the agent who performs the action, the other denoting the instrument with which it was performed. Thus: He was killed by a man with a spear.

In Ila, to express the agent, often no preposition is used. Thus :—

Nda chengwa muntu, I am deceived by a man.

Remember also the use of the indicative substantive pronoun. The preposition ku or kwa denotes the agent.

Inshi ya ka bumbwa kwa Leza ku kukanka, the earth was formed by God in the beginning.

To express the instrument the preposition o is used. Thus :—
Muntu wa angwa kwangu o koze, the person is tied by me with a cord.

Notice in this connexion the use of the causative form of the verb.

When a verb has two objects, a direct and an indirect, it is the indirect object which becomes the subject when the verb is made passive. Thus :—

Active: Nda udila banangu shidyo, I buy food for my children.

Passive: Banangu ba udilwa kwangu shidyo, my children are bought-to food by me.

The Baila use the passive much more than we do, for the reason that they seek to make the person speaking, or the subject of conversation, the subject of the verb. This causes an idiom which often sounds strangely in English ears, for it necessitates intransitive verbs taking the passive. Thus :—

Munganda momo ta mu njilwa bana, pele bakando, this house is not entered by children, only by elders.

d. By Moods.

By mood we mean variation in the form of the verb to express the manner in which the action or fact denoted by the verb is conceived in connexion with the subject, i. e. whether it is expressed as a fact or possibility or command. We admit five moods in Ila.

1.—The indicative mood simply states or affirms or indicates that an act is done or not done. Thus:—

Nda ku bona, I was seeing.

Nina ku bona, I was not seeing.

2.—The subjunctive mood expresses condition, or doubt, or purpose. It is preceded, in thought if not in fact, by a conjunction, in order that. It is also used in some cases as a command. It is readily distinguished, as generally the final vowel is e.

Ka mu ya, mu ka tole shidyo, go ye (that) ye may carry food.

3.—The potential mood expresses power, possibility, or liberty. Thus:—

Tu la ka dya nzhi? What are we to eat?

4.—The imperative mood expresses command or entreaty.

Chita, do thou.

Na mu chite, do ye.

5.—The infinitive mood simply names the act or fact without expressing affirmation or request or purpose, or anything. It therefore requires another verb to complete it in a sentence. The sign of the infinitive is the particle Ku.

Nda zanda ku dya, I want to eat.

We may say that there are two conjugations in Ila, sufficiently defined by their names: (1) the Affirmative; (2) the Negative.

SECT. 4. AUXILIARY PARTICLES.

Various auxiliaries are used in conjugating the verb.

LA: This is used in the immediate future indicative; also in the present potential.

KA : This is used (1) in the indicative to denote the past tense ; (2) in the potential mood, of which it is the sign ; (3) in the imperative as equivalent to 'let'.

NA : This is used in the imperative, equivalent to 'let'.

INA : This is the verb kwina (ku ina), to be not, have not ; used as auxiliary in certain negative tenses.

TA : This is used in the negative conjugation, equivalent to 'not'.

SHI : Used in the negative conjugation, in place of ta, in the 1st pers. sing.

CHI : Used in certain tenses, equivalent to 'still'.

BU : Used with similar meaning to Chi.

EXERCISES ON CHAPTER VI.

Exercise 1.

Translate into Ila:—

Am I to cut the meat here? Go and ask for a garden for me. Cook this meat for me in your pot. Leave off just there. Help me to some food. Tie the clothes on that rope that they may dry there. Come and sell me two cattle. Why do you delay? Here are two boys who want to serve you. All right, let them wait for me, I will set them to work. Why have you cut up all the meat? Why do you talk so much? He goes to buy honey for me. Why did you carve the stick like this? Go and recarve it. They allow us to cut wood in their garden. You must not defile your clothing. He gave me to taste of his beer. We are going to meet them to-morrow. The chief tabooes this thing, it is not to be done. This food satiates us. I have nothing to draw water with. Drop this medicine into your eye every day, it will cure you. He wanted to shoot the bird, but missed. You must not anger me. This is the axe to cut mopani with. Go and dry your clothes. He gave me beer to drink. Moisten this clay. We will converse together in the morning, I am busy now. The men understand each other. Their affairs are capable of being understood. Why do you hate each other? The beeswax is molten. Who is it melted the beeswax? The cup is broken. Who is it broke the cup? The calf is weaned. The girl is marriageable. It is not possible to do this thing. This food cannot be swallowed, it is very hard. His power is visible to all to-day. He is a trustworthy person ; he does not lie, he does not steal. We travelled swiftly yesterday ; to-day we shall refresh ourselves. You must not pull out grass from the roof. Unfold your tickets that I may mark them. Take out the pegs from the skin, it is dry now. We are going to resow our fields ; all the seed is dead.

Translate into English :—

NOTES.—¹ As we were playing with my uncles the elephants. ² When he was about to throw near. ³ I am still arranging, or placing, myself here below. ⁴ He threw the stone. ⁵ Ebwe awo = a ibwe awo, there on the stone.

CHAPTER VII

CONJUGATION OF THE VERB

IN the following paradigm the essential tenses of the verb are given. Many of them are given in full, not only with the pronouns in the first, second, and third persons, but also with nouns of the various classes in the third person. While this plan involves a considerable space in the grammar, it will, it is hoped, render the study of the verb easier to the student.

No separate paradigm is necessary for the passive voice, as no change takes place except the insertion of w, as explained in the previous chapter.

SECT. I. AFFIRMATIVE CONJUGATION. INDICATIVE MOOD.

I. Present Tense.

Pronoun form.

Ndi bona, or mbona, I see.	Tu bona, we see.
U bona, thou seest.	Mu bona, you see.
U bona, he sees.	Ba bona, they see.

Noun form.

1. Muntu u bona, the person sees.
Bantu ba bona, people see.
2. Mudilo u tenta, fire burns.
Midilo i tenta, fires burn.
3. Isamo di mena, the tree grows.
Masamo a mena, the trees grow.
4. Buzune bu uluka, the bird flies.
Mazune a uluka, birds fly.

5. Kutwi ku chisa, the ear pains.
Matwi a chisa, ears pain.
6. Kashimbi ka sobana, the girl plays.
Tushimbi tu sobana, girls play.
7. Chintu chi bonwa, the thing is seen.
Shintu shi bonwa, things are seen.
8. Impongo i dila, the goat bleats.
Impongo shi dila, goats bleat.
9. Lumo lu kosola, the razor cuts.
Imo shi kosola, razors cut.
- 9a. Lupidi lu budika, the hill appears.
Mapidi a budika, the hills appear.

N.B.—This tense is found only in relative clauses; Muntu a bona, &c., will also read ‘the person who sees’. Generally the immediate future, Ndi la bona, or the aorist Nda bona is used with a present meaning.

2. Present Tense: Another Form.

Pronoun form.

- | | |
|--|---|
| Ndi di mu ku bona , I am seeing. | Tudi mu ku bona , we are seeing. |
| Udi mu ku bona , thou art seeing. | Mudi mu ku bona , you are seeing. |
| Udi mu ku bona , he is seeing. | Badi mu ku bona , they are seeing. |

Noun form.

1. Muntu udi mu ku bona, the person is seeing.
Bantu badi mu ku bona, the people are seeing.
2. Mudilo udi mu ku tenta, the fire is burning.
Midilo idi mu ku tenta, the fires are burning.
&c., &c.

N.B.—This tense indicates that the subject of the verb is at present actually engaged in doing or suffering the action. It means literally, ‘I am in to see’ or ‘I am in seeing’—the mu being the preposition in. Just as we say, ‘He is in the act of doing so.’

3. Present Progressive Tense.

*Pronoun form.Nchi bona, I still see.Tu chi bona, we still see.U chi bona, thou still seest.Mu chi bona, you still see.U chi bona, he still sees.Ba chi bona, they still see.Noun form.

1. Muntu u chi bona, the person still sees.
Bantu ba chi bona, the people still see.
2. Munzhi u chi budika, the village still appears.
Minzhi i chi budika, the villages still appear.
3. Isamo di chi mena, the tree still grows.
Masamo a chi mena, the trees still grow.
4. Buzune bu chi uluka, the bird still flies.
Mazune a chi uluka, the birds still fly.
5. Kutwi ku chi chisa, the ear still pains.
Matwi a chi chisa, the ears still pain.
6. Kashimbi ka chi sobana, the girl still plays.
Tushimbi tu chi sobana, the girls still play.
7. Chintu chi chi bonwa, the thing is still seen.
Shintu shi chi bonwa, the things are still seen.
8. Impongo i chi dila, the goat still bleats.
Impongo shi chi dila, the goats still bleat.
9. Lwizhi lu chi yosa, the flood still abates.
Inyizhi shi chi yosa, the floods still abate.
- 9a. Lupidi lu chi budika, the hill still appears.
Mapidi a chi budika, the hills still appear.

4. Past Imperfect Tense.

*Pronoun form.Nda ku bona, I was seeing.Twa ku bona, we were seeing.Wa ku bona, thou wert seeing.Mwa ku bona, you were seeing.Wa ku bona, he was seeing.Ba ku bona, they were seeing.

Noun form.

1. Muntu wa ku bona, the person was seeing.
Bantu ba ku bona, the people were seeing.
2. Munzhi wa ku bonwa, the village was being seen.
Minzhi ya ku bonwa, the villages were being seen.
3. Isamo dia ku mena, the tree was growing.
Masamo a ku mena, the trees were growing.
4. Buzune bwa ku uluka, the bird was flying.
Mazune a ku uluka, the birds were flying.
5. Kutwi kwa ku chisa, the ear was being painful.
Matwi a ku chisa, the ears were being painful.
6. Kashimbi ka ku sobana, the girl was playing.
Tushimbi twa ku sobana, the girls were playing.
7. Chintu cha ku bonwa, the thing was being seen.
Shintu sha ku bonwa, the things were being seen.
8. Impongo ya ku dila, the goat was bleating.
Impongo sha ku dila, the goats were bleating.
9. Lwimbo lwa ku imbwa, the song was being sung.
Inyimbo sha ku imbwa, the songs were being sung.
- 9a. Lupidi lwa ku budika, the hill was appearing.
Mapidi a ku budika, the hills were appearing.

N.B.—This tense denotes what was being done at some past time. It may also indicate something that will take place shortly. It is formed by placing the aorist before the infinitive of the verb.

5. Imperfect Progressive Tense.

To form this simply place chi before the verb in the above examples. Thus: Nda ku chi bona, I was still seeing.

6. Imperfect Habitual Tense.

Pronoun form.

- | | |
|---|---|
| Nda ku ya bu bona , I was going seeing. | Twa ku ya bu bona , we were going seeing. |
| Wa ku ya bu bona , thou wert going seeing. | Mwa ku ya bu bona , you were going seeing. |
| Wa ku ya bu bona , he was going seeing. | Ba ku ya bu bona , they were going seeing. |

Noun form.

1. Muntu wa ku ya bu bona, the person was going seeing.
Bantu ba ku ya bu bona, the people were going seeing.
 &c., &c.

N.B.—The meaning of this tense is best expressed in the English equivalents given above. It indicates that the two actions of going (in thought) and seeing were carried on simultaneously. This tense would be employed in translating such sentences as: He was going about collecting taxes, wa ku ya bu lumbuzha.

7. Aorist Tense.Pronoun form.*

Nda bona, I saw.

Wa bona, thou sawest.

Wa bona, he saw.

Twa bona, we saw.

Mwa bona, you saw.

Ba bona, they saw.

Noun form.

1. Muntu wa bona, the person saw.
Bantu ba bona, the people saw.
2. Munzhi wa budika, the village appeared.
Minzhi ya budika, villages appeared.
3. Isamo dia mena, the tree grew.

4. Buzune bwa uluka, the bird flew.
Mazune a uluka, the birds flew.
5. Kutwi kwa chisa, the ear pained.
Matwi a chisa, the ears pained.
6. Kashimbi ka sobana, the girl played.
Tushimbi twa sobana, the girls played.
7. Chintu cha bonwa, the thing was seen.
Shintu sha bonwa, the things were seen.
8. Impongo ya dila, the goat bleated.
Impongo sha dila, the goats bleated.
9. Lwimbo lwa imbwa, the song was sung.
Inyimbo sha imbwa, the songs were sung.

9a. Lupidi lwa budika, the hill appeared.

Mapadi a budika, the hills appeared.

N.B.—Following the example of Kaffir grammarians we call this tense the aorist, but in Ila it does not always denote what is absolutely past. In fact, with slight changes in accent, it may express anything, past, present, or future.

1. It sometimes answers to the English perfect, expressing an action accomplished, thus: Wa ya, he has gone, i. e. and is still away.

2. Hence it is commonly used with a present meaning. Nda bona, I see.

3. It is used as an historical past and in narratives follows the preterite or imperfect; e. g. Nda ka mu funa, nda mu yowwa, I loved him, I helped him.

4. With a slight change in accent it has a future meaning: Nda ya, I am going, or I will go. The explanation of this usage seems to be that the action though not yet accomplished in fact is accomplished in thought.

8. Aorist Progressive Tense.

To form this simply place chi between the pronoun and the verb, thus: Nda chi bona, I still saw.

9. Aorist Habitual Tense.

This is formed by placing the particle bu between the pronoun and verb, thus: Nda ya bu bona, I went or I go seeing.

10. Past or Preterite Tense.

Pronoun form.

Nda ka bona, I saw, I did see. Twa ka bona, we did see.

Wa ka bona, or ko bona, Mwa ka bona, you did see.
thou didst see.

Wa ka bona, or ka bona, he Ba ka bona, or ka ba bona, did see. they saw, they did see.

Noun form.

1. Muntu wa ka bona, or ka bona, the person did see.

Bantu ba ka bona, or ka ba bona, the people did see.

2. Mudilo wa ka tenta, or ka tenta, the fire did burn.

Midilo ya ka tenta, or ka tenta, the fires did burn.

3. Isamo dia ka mena, or ka di mena, the tree did grow.
Masamo a ka mena, or ka mena, the trees did grow.
4. Buzune bwa ka uluka, or ka bu uluka, the bird did fly.
Mazune a ka uluka, or ka uluka, the birds did fly.
5. Kutwi kwa ka chisa, or ka ku chisa, the ear was painful.
Matwi a ka chisa, or ka chisa, the ears were painful.
6. Kashimbi ka ka sobana, the girl played.
Tushimbi twa ka sobana, or ka tu sobana, the girls played.
7. Chintu cha ka bonwa, or ka chi bonwa, the thing was seen.
Shintu sha ka bonwa, or ka shi bonwa, the things were seen.
8. Impongo ya ka dila, or ka dila, the goat did bleat.
Impongo sha ka dila, or ka shi dila, the goats did bleat.
9. Lwimbo lwa ka imbwa, or ka lu imbwa, the song was sung.
Inyimbo sha ka imbwa, or ka shi imbwa, the songs were sung.
- 9a. Lupidi lwa ka budika, or ka lu budika, the hill did appear.
Mapidi a ka budika, or ka budika, the hills did appear.

N.B.—This tense denotes what was completely done at some time past. Notice the two forms according as the particle ka precedes or succeeds the pronoun. No rule can be given as to when to use the one or the other; they can be used alternatively as desired, except that in the relative clauses the first form is employed. When the verb begins with a vowel changes take place according to rules given in Chapter II.

II. Past Tense : Another Form.

This is formed by means of the particle ka, and the perfect form of the verb.

Pronoun form.

Chi mbwene, I did see.

Ka tu bwene, we did see.

Ko bwene, thou didst see.

Ka mu bwene, you did see.

Ka bwene, he did see.

Ka ba bwene, they did see.

Noun form.

1. Muntu ka bwene, the person did see.
Bantu ka ba bwene, the people did see.
2. Munzhi ko bwenwe, the village was seen.
Minzhi ke bwenwe, the villages were seen.
3. Isamo ka di menene, the tree did grow.
Masamo ka menene, the trees did grow.
4. Buzane ka bu ikilwe, the meat was cooked.
Mazane ka ikilwe, the meats were cooked.
5. Kutwi ka ku chisile, the ear was painful.
Matwi ka chisile, the ears were painful.
6. Kashimbi ka ka sobanine, the girl did play.
Tushimbi ka tu sobanine, the girls did play.
7. Chintu ka chi shikile, the thing did arrive.
Shintu ka shi shikile, the things did arrive.
8. Impongo ka didile, the goat bleated.
Impongo ka shi didile, the goats bleated.
9. Lumo ka lu kosolele, the razor cut.
Imo ka shi kosolele, the razors cut.
- 9a. Lupidi ka lu budikile, the hill appeared.
Mapidi ka budikile, the hills appeared.

12. Past Progressive Tense.

This is formed by merely placing chi before the verb in No. 10, thus: Nda ka chi bona, I did still see.

13. Past Habitual Tense.

The form for this is: Nda ka ya bu bona, I went seeing.
Muntu wa ka ya bu bona, the person went seeing, &c.

14. Perfect Tense.

Pronoun form.

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| Ndi bwene , I have seen. | Tudi bwene , we have seen. |
| Udi bwene , thou hast seen. | Mudi bwene , you have seen. |
| Udi bwene , he has seen. | Badi bwene , they have seen. |

Noun form.

1. Muntu udi bwene, the person has seen.
Bantu badi bwene, the people have seen.
2. Mudilo udi tentele, the fire has burnt.
Midilo idi tentele, the fires have burnt.
3. Isamo didi menene, the tree has grown.

9. Lumo ludi kosolele, the razor has cut.
Imo shidi kosolele, the razors have cut.
- 9a. Lufu ludi shikile, death has arrived.
Mafu adi shikile, deaths have arrived.

N.B.—The perfect tense and those tenses formed from it are the only ones that are formed by means of suffixes. The general rule is that the suffix -ile or -ele is suffixed to the root of the verb, but, as in the case of the relative suffix which it resembles, it undergoes some modification.

Verbs ending in -na take -ine or -ene or -wene,

”	”	-mba take -ene ,
”	”	-ama change -ame into -eme ,
”	”	-ata change -ata into -ete ,
”	”	-ala change -ala into -ele .

Intransitive verbs in the perfect tense denote being in a certain state. Thus, above, kutwi kudi chisile means that the ear is painful. Bantu badi bambene, the people have arranged themselves side by side and are now in that position. Isamo didi chieme, the tree is across.

It will be noticed that the particle di is appended to the pronoun. In relative clauses this is dropped. Muntu u bwene, the person who has seen, &c.

See Chapter IV, Sections 1, 2, for the uses of verbs in this tense as adjectives.

Certain verbs are used mostly in the perfect form, e.g. kwete (from kwata), when used in the sense of 'have'; fwine from ku funa, to love, &c.

15. Pluperfect Tense.

Pronoun form.

Nda ku bwene, I had seen. T'wa ku bwene, we had seen.
Wa ku bwene, thou hadst seen. Mwa ku bwene, you had seen.
Wa ku bwene, he had seen. Ba ku bwene, they had seen.

Noun form.

1. Muntu wa ku bwene, the person had seen.
 Bantu ba ku bwene, the people had seen.
2. Mudilo wa ku tentele, the fire had burnt.
 Midilo ya ku tentele, the fires had burnt.
 &c., &c.

N.B.—This tense indicates something that had taken place before something else had happened, thus: Chi nta na ku shika nda ku mu bwene, before I arrived I saw him. It is formed out of the imperfect and perfect tenses.

16. Perfect Progressive Tense.

This is formed merely by inserting chi before the verb in the perfect tense. Muntu u chi bwene, the person has still seen, &c.

17. Immediate Future Tense.

Pronoun form.

Ndi la bona, I am about to see, I shall see. Tu la bona, we are about to see, we shall see.
U la bona, thou wilt see, &c. Mu la bona, you will see.
U la bona, he will see. Ba la bona, they will see.

Noun form.

1. Muntu u la bona, the person will see.
 Bantu ba la bona, the people will see.
2. Mudilo u la tenta, the fire will burn.
 Midilo i la tenta, the fires will burn.

3. Isamo di la mena, the tree will grow.

20. Future Tense (2).

This tense is the same in form as the preterite Nda ka bona, but with a slightly different pronunciation. The action to be done is regarded as already done. So, when Baila attempt to speak Suto, they often say Re tsamaile, we have gone, when they mean Rea tsamaea, or re tla tsamaea, we are going, we shall go.

21. Future Tense (3).

This is the same as the aorist, with a slightly different pronunciation, Nda bona, I shall see, &c. The same remarks apply as above.

22. Future Tense (4).

Pronoun form.

Ndi la ya ku bona , I shall see.	Tu la ya ku bona , we shall see.
U la ya ku bona , thou wilt see.	Mu la ya ku bona , thou wilt see.
U la ya ku bona , he will see.	Ba la ya ku bona , they will see.

Noun form.

1. Muntu u la ya ku bona, the person will see.
Bantu ba la ya ku bona, the people will see.
 &c., &c.

N.B.—The literal meaning of Ndi la ya ku bona is, I am going to see. It indicates something about to happen very soon. , 23. Future Progressive Tense.

This is formed by inserting chi before the verb in the first future tense, thus : Muntu u ka la chi bona, the person will still see.

24. Future Habitual Tense.

This is formed from the first future tense by inserting bu before the verb, thus : Muntu u ka la ya bu bona, the person will go seeing.

POTENTIAL MOOD.

2. Future Tense.

This is formed by means of the future subjunctive preceded by the particle a. Thus: A tu ka bone, let us see; a mu ka bone, do ye see, &c.

SECT. 2. NEGATIVE CONJUGATION.

INDICATIVE MOOD.

1. Present Tense.Pronoun form.*

- | | |
|--|--------------------------------------|
| Shi boni , I do not see. | Ta tu boni , we do not see. |
| To (ta u) boni , thou dost not see. | Ta mu boni , you do not see. |
| Ta boni (ta a) , he does not see. | Ta ba boni , they do not see. |

Noun form.

1. Muntu ta (ta a) boni, the person does not see.
Bantu ta ba boni, the people do not see.

Imo ta shi kosodi, the razors do not cut.
- 9a. Lupidi ta lu budiki, the hill does not appear.
Mapidi ta budiki, the hills do not appear.

2. Present Tense: 'Not Yet' Form.

Pronoun form.

Shi na ku bona , I have not yet seen.	Ta tu na ku bona , we have not yet seen.
To na ku bona , thou hast not yet seen.	Ta mu na ku bona , you have not yet seen.
Ta na ku bona , he has not yet seen.	Ta ba na ku bona , they have not yet seen.

Noun form.

1. Muntu ta na ku bona, the person has not yet seen.
Bantu ta ba na ku bona, the people have not yet seen.
2. Mudilo to na ku tenta, the fire has not yet burnt.
Midilo te na ka tenta, the fires have not yet burnt.

3. Isamo ta di na ku mena, the tree has not yet grown.

8. Impongo te na ku fwa, the goat is not yet dead.
Impongo ta shi na ku fwa, the goats are not yet dead.
9. Lumo ta lu na ku kosola, the razor has not yet cut.
Imo ta shi na ku kosola, the razors have not yet cut.
- 9a. Lupidi ta lu na ku budika, the hill has not yet appeared.
Mapidi ta na ku budika, the hills have not yet appeared.

N.B.—This tense indicates that the action expressed by the verb is incomplete and still going on, e. g. Kimbe kangu kadi kwi? Shi na ku ka bona, where is my axe? I have not yet seen it, i. e. I am still looking for it. So that while by the English equivalent it seems to be a perfect tense, it is really a present incomplete tense.

3. Perfect Tense.

Pronoun form.

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|--|
| Shi bwene , I have not seen. | Ta tu bwene , we have not seen. |
| To bwene , thou hast not seen. | Ta mu bwene , you have not seen. |
| Ta bwene , he has not seen. | Ta ba bwene , they have not seen. |

Noun form.

1. Muntu ta bwene, the person has not seen.
Bantu ta ba bwene, the people have not seen.
 &c., &c.

N.B.—This tense is formed from the affirmative perfect indicative by placing before it the negative particle ta, the copula di being omitted.

4. Perfect Tense: Second Form.

Pronoun form.

Ndina (or nina) ku bona, I Twina ku bona, we have not have not seen. seen.

U ina ku bona, thou hast not Mwina ku bona, you have seen. not seen.

U ina ku bona, he has not Ba ina ku bona, they have seen. not seen.

Noun form.

1. Muntu u ina ku bona, the person has not seen.
Bantu ba ina ku bona, the people have not seen.
2. Mudilo u ina ku tenta, the fire has not burnt.
Midilo i na ku tenta, the fires have not burnt.
 &c., &c.

N.B.—Literally Muntu u ina ku bona means ‘the person has no seeing’, the particle ina being the verb kwina, ‘to be not, to have not.’ The tense carries either a perfect or a present meaning, ‘the man has not seen, he does not see.’ Notice the coalescence of vowels.

5. Aorist Tense.

This is formed from the affirmative aorist indicative by placing ta before it. But in the 1st per. sing. we have Shi bona, not Ta nda bona, and the pronouns throughout are not the long -a forms but the short u, di, &c. Coalescence of vowels takes place just as in the present negative.

6. Imperfect Tense.

Pronoun form.

Ndi na uku bona, I was not Twina uku bona, we were seeing. not seeing.

U ina uku bona, thou wert Mwina uku bona, you were not seeing. not seeing.

U ina uku bona, he was not Ba ina uku bona, they were seeing. not seeing.

Noun form.

1. Muntu u ina uku bona, the person was not seeing.
Bantu ba ina uku bona, the people were not seeing.
 &c., &c.

N.B.—This tense is very similar in form to the second form of the perfect, ndina ku bona, &c., the only difference being that u is placed before the infinitive particle, ku. This u is probably a form of ku.

7. Past Tense (1).

This is formed similarly to the imperfect, the only difference being that instead of the particle uku before the verb we find uka. Thus: Ndi na uka bona, I did not see; Twina uka bona, we did not see.

8. Past Tense (2).

Pronoun form.

- | | |
|--|---|
| Ndi ne nda ka bona , I did not see. | Twina ni twa ka bona , we did not see. |

EXERCISES ON CHAPTER VII.

Exercise 1.

Translate into Ila :—

Come and tell me all the news which you were hearing yesterday. We did not hear any news. He has not yet arrived; as soon as he arrives I will tell him what you say. Why did you lie to me? Did you not know that I find out all you do? Your doings will be known abroad. You cannot deceive me or any one else. We built this house last year. It is not yet plastered because I have had much other work. That grass of yours will all rot if you leave it outside. When will the rain arrive? It may come next month. Have you not yet finished your fields? We have not yet finished, the women are still working there now. We may finish when the moon is seen. Before he came here he was a bad man, now he has abandoned his evil ways. I saw him when he was still a child, he has now grown much. Go ye and work much; if you work hard I will give you much money, but if you are lazy you will find only a little money. I don't give lazy folk much money. The people I want to work for me are they who are clever. I don't want those who can only carry. You must not hurry over your work, do it very nicely indeed. This is where you will dig; when you have done, come and tell me. Do you see this stick? Measure the hole with it; when you have arrived so far stop digging. We are going to the forest to gather firewood.

Exercise 2.

Translate into Ila:—

My house is not far off; come ye all and let us eat some milk together. That child has the pot which I want. Bring it here to me. Let me take your child with me. The police have found the man whom they have been seeking; he was hiding in the forest. We will not do this work, it is troublesome. He got up very early and went to look for his goat which was lost. If you leave very early you may arrive before sunset. If you don't bend down very much the game will see you. We are still sitting here in the shade because the sun is very hot today. I have not yet seen the thing which you told me to find. Let us see who can do this work. Approach closely that I may see you well. That man does not see; he is blind. The herd-boy was not watching his flock yesterday, he left them and sat by the fire all day. Before the men had arrived we built a house for them. Go ye into my garden and hoe; you must not pluck the fruit of the trees. The chief is in the act of eating; we cannot disturb him now. The gun did not break as you said. They did not beat me. We will go to-morrow morning. You must learn that you may not grow up a fool. We were going visiting everywhere among our friends. He does not understand that if he does not work he will get no wages.

Exercise 3.

CHAPTER VIII

IRREGULAR VERBS; THE VERBS 'TO BE' AND 'TO HAVE'; VERBS USED IDIOMATICALLY

SECT. I. IRREGULAR VERBS.

There are certain verbs beginning with a vowel which it is necessary to regard separately from others on account of variation in form and conjugation. They are as follows: Ku ita, to call; ku eza, to come; ku iba, to steal; ku izhi, to know.

In the infinitive of these verbs the u of the particle coalesces with the initial short vowel to form w. Thus, instead of the above, we write: Kwita, kweza, kwiba, kwizhi.

The same form is found in the imperative:—

Ka u ita becomes ko ita which becomes kwita.

ka u eza „ ko eza „ kweza.

ka u iba „ ko iba „ kwiba.

ka u izhi „ ko izhi „ kwizhi.

When these verbs are preceded by any particle or pronoun ending in u, the u becomes w as above, and the two words are written as one. Thus:—

Ba la mu ita becomes ba la mwita.

Shi mu izhi „ shi mwizhi.

When, however, the preceding vowel ends in a, the process of contraction takes place, i. e. a + i = e. The resulting word is written as two not one. Thus:—

Ba la ita becomes ba le ta not ba leta.

Ba la izhi „ ba le zhi „ ba lezhi.

Ta ba izhi „ ta be zhi „ ta bezhi.

Mu ta ibe „ mu te be „ mu tebe.

Ka ba iza „ ka be za „ ka beza.

The verb ku ina, to be not, to have not, is an exception to this. In the infinitive it is written and pronounced kwina, but when preceded by a particle ending in a no contraction takes place. Thus:—

Ba ina shidyo, they have no food; not, be na shidyo.

The verbs kwita and kwiba require no further remarks, but kweza and kwizhi are so irregular in conjugation that we give their principal tenses here. The peculiar thing about them is that they have more than one form.

Kwizhi or kwizhishi or ku zhiba or kwizhiba, to know.

Kweza or kwiza or ku ziza, to come.

3rd p.	A ta kwizhiba.	A ta kwiziza.

Notice that the 2nd person plur. imperative of kweza is zoni, come ye. This is the only verb in Ila which takes a suffix to denote this tense. In other Bantu languages it is the rule for all verbs : so Zulu : hambani, go ye ; Suto : tsamaeang, go ye ; Swahili : pendani, love ye.

SECT. 2. THE VERB 'TO BE'.

The verb ku ba means to be, or 'rather, to become. As it is conjugated like other verbs there is no need to give a separate paradigm. The following sentences will show how it is used, and further examples are given in the next chapter of its use in forming the copula.

A mu zake ng'anda imwi shi be shobili, build ye another house that they be two.

Inzho cha ba chibanda, then there was peace.

U la yana wa ba muntu, you will find he has become a man.

Na wa ba nzhi? How is he? lit. he has become what?

Mbe muzhike wako, let me be thy slave.

Tudi elele ku ba basongo, we must be wise.

Miaka yako i be minjiminji, may thy years be many.

Ni mba mudimbushi mu ta ku njaya, although I become a fool you must not kill me.

Mumoni no be o, let there be light.

The particle di also largely represents our verb 'to be'. Its use is fully illustrated in the next chapter. For convenience' sake it is appended to the personal pronoun.

SECT. 3.—THE VERB 'TO HAVE'.

The particle di is often used to express the verb to have, especially in relative clauses. Thus :—

Wezo muntu udi insana, that man has strength,

Badi kwi bantu babo badi milandu? Where are those people who have faults?

In other sentences di is used with o. Thus:—

Usunu ba di o cholwe: To-day they have good luck, lit. they are with.

The negative of this is the verb kwina, to have not, to be not. This is used in a limited way, not in all tenses. Thus:—

Nd'ina shidyo, I have no food.

Ka ba ina shidyo, they had no food.

Again, the verb kwete, perfect of ku kwata, to hold, is used in the affirmative, and the verb ku bula, to be without, to lack, is sometimes used in the negative.

Ndi kwete shidyo, I have food. Nda bula shidyo, I have no food.

Nda ku kwete shidyo, I had food. Nda ka bula shidyo, I had no food.

These verbs are conjugated like other regular verbs.

SECT. 4. VERBS USED IDIOMATICALLY.

There are certain verbs which when used with other verbs have an idiomatic meaning, and are generally best translated in English by adverbs. The following are the most common of these.

1. The verb ku ti, to say, is used with other verbs to give the idea of 'about', 'nearly,' 'almost.' The following verb is put into the subjunctive mood. Thus:—

Nti mu me inzho nda leka, I was about to strike him, then I forebore.

Ni a ti a yaye shumbwa, ushumbwa wa mu luma, as he was about to kill the lion, the lion bit him.

Bantu ka ba ti ba mane ikumi, the people were about ten.

2. The verb ku amba, to speak, is used in the same way as ku ti. Thus:—(Sentences from Ila tales).

Mubwa a ambe a vhwe mutwi wa patila mu chibia, when the dog was about to come out its head stuck in the pot.

Mwaba a ambe a chebuke munshi, when the jackal was about to look behind.

Sulwe wa shika; a ambe a nwe menzhi, fulwe wa foma, wa mu luma meno, the hare arrived; when he was about to drink water, the tortoise snorted and bit him.

Muzovu a ambe a angule wa wila umbwina, when the elephant was about to unfasten (it) he fell into the hole.

3. The verb ku bwelela, to return to, is used as equivalent to our 'again'. The verb following is either in the subjunctive or infinitive.

Nda bwelela ngambe, I speak again.

Bantu ka ba bwelela ku njila, the people entered again.

4. The verb ku fwamba, to hasten, is used as equivalent to our 'quickly'. The verb following is in the infinitive.

Ba ka fwamba ku njila, they entered quickly.

A mu fwambe ku yaya ng'ombe, do ye kill quickly the beast.

5. The verb ku vhwa, to come out, is used in the sense of 'just'. The verb following is in the infinitive mood.

Nda vhwa ku shika, I have just arrived.

Wa mu yana ni a vhwa ku shika, he found him when he had just arrived.

6. The verb ku kachilwa is used to give the idea of 'unable'. It is followed by the infinitive verb.

Nda kachilwa ku chita checho, I was unable to do that.

7. The verb ku konzha, to overcome, gives the idea of 'able', or, in the negative, 'unable'. It is followed by the infinitive verb.

Sa u la konzha ku bala? Are you able to read?

Pe, shi konzha ku bala, no, I am not able to read.

8. The verb ku tanguna gives the idea of 'first'. It is followed by the infinitive verb.

Nguni owa ka tanguna ku zaka? Who is it who built first?

Tu bone ati nguni u ka tanguna ku shika? Let us see who can arrive first.

9. The verb ku mana, to finish, is often used to express 'altogether'. It is followed by the infinitive verb,

Meno onse a ka mana ku fwa, all the teeth died together.

Mapopwe angu a mana ku diwa, my mealies are altogether eaten.

10 The verb ku leka, to abandon, is often used with other verbs. Thus :—

Leka ku dila uwe, leave off crying, you.

Leka ku chita bobo, leave off doing thus.

EXERCISES ON CHAPTER VIII.

Exercise 1.

Translate into Ila :—

The people were stealing mealies in my field. Go ye and call the people, that they may assemble together to-morrow. I don't know you. Do they say I must come? I refuse: I won't come. I did not know your name. I came to your village yesterday. I have not yet seen the chief, tell him to come to-morrow to see me. I don't yet know your customs. You say you don't know me. Why is that? I worked for you long ago. You must not come here at night. Let me be your herdboy. Bring me two more fowls that they be three. I have no food. When he was about to hit me I ran away. As he was about to chop the wood the axe fell on his foot. They quickly returned to me. Who will be the first to be able to read? To him who is first I will give a present. The missionary tells us that we must abandon our evil ways. Your calves have entered my field: they have altogether eaten my mealies.

Exercise 2.

Translate into English :—

Shi konzha ome, ndime mushonto budio. Nda kachilwa ku shika ko ukuti wa nkasha. Twa vhwa ku mana usunu midimo yonse. A vhwe ku shika wa fwamba ku dya: a mane budio

CHAPTER IX

THE COPULA

IN English the copula is formed by means of the various parts of the verb 'to be'—'I am a man,' 'thou art just,' 'how are they?' In Ila the verb ku ba, to be, to become, does not form the copula except in the future. The copula is formed largely by means of the particle di, but it is complicated by the use of other particles. As this is one of the most puzzling points in the Ila grammar we give in this chapter tables showing the use of the copula in the following instances:—

- (1) When a pronoun is connected with another pronoun or a noun.
- (2) When a pronoun or noun is connected with a noun.
- (3) When a noun or pronoun is connected with an adjective.
- (4) When a noun or pronoun is connected with an adverb.
- (5) When a noun or pronoun is connected with an interrogative.

And, to complete the matter here, examples are given of the use of the copula in indirect clauses. Some repetition in this chapter is unavoidable, and may be forgiven for the fullness which is the result.

SECT. I. THE COPULA IN THE PRESENT.

I. Pronoun connected with another Pronoun or a Noun.

When a pronoun is connected with another pronoun the substantive pronoun simply is used. When a pronoun is connected with a noun, the copulative particles are used. In the negative the alternative use of the particles ta . . di is to be noticed.

*Affirmative.Ndime, it is I.Ndiwe, it is thou.Inguwe, it is he.Ndiswe, it is we.Ndimwe, it is you.Imbabo, it is they.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Ngu muntu , it is a person. | Mbo bantu , they are people. |
| 2. Ngu munzhi , it is a village. | Nji minzhi , they are villages. |
| 3. Nd' isamo , it is a tree. | Ngu masamo , they are trees. |
| 4. Mbuzane , or mbu buzane , it is meat. | Ngu mazane , they are meats. |
| 5. Nku kutwi , it is an ear. | Ngu matwi , they are ears. |
| 6. Nku kashimbi , it is a girl. | Ntu tashimbi , they are girls. |
| 7. Nchi chintu , it is a thing. | Nshi shintu , they are things. |
| 8. Nimpongo , it is a goat. | Nshimpongo , they are goats. |
| 9. Ndu lumu , or ndumu , it is a razor. | Nshimo , they are razors. |
| 9a. Ndu lupidi , or ndupidi , it is a hill. | Ngu mapidi , they are hills. |

*Negative.Indime, it is not I.Indiwe, it is not thou.Inguwe, it is not he.Indiswe, it is not we.Indimwe, it is not you.Imbo, it is not they.Singular.

1. Ingwe muntu, or tadi (ta a di) muntu, it is not a person.
2. Ingwe munzhi, or todi (ta u di) munzhi, it is not a village.
3. Indio isamo, or tadidi isamo, it is not a tree.
4. Imbo buzane, or tabudi buzane, it is not meat.
5. Inko kutwi, or takudi kutwi, it is not an ear.
6. Inko kashimbi, or takadi kashimbi, it is not a girl.
7. Incho chintu, or tachidi chintu, it is not a thing.
8. Injo impongo, or tedi (ta i di) impongo, it is not a goat.
9. Indo lumu, or taludi lumu, it is not a razor.
- 9a. Indo lupidi, or taludi lupidi, it is not a hill.

Plural.

1. Imbo bantu, or tabadi bantu, they are not people.
2. Injo minzhi, or tedi (ta i di) minzhi, they are not villages.
3. Ingo masamo, or tadi (ta a di) masamo, they are not trees.
4. Ingo mazane, or tadi (ta a di) mazane, they are not meats.
5. Ingo matwi, or tadi (ta a di) matwi, they are not ears.
6. Into tushimbi, or tatudi tushimbi, they are not girls.
7. Insho shintu, or tashidi shintu, they are not things.
8. Insho impongo, or tashidi impongo, they are not goats.
9. Insho imo, or tashidi imo, they are not razors.
- 9a. Ingo mapidi, or tadi (ta a di) mapidi, they are not hills.

2. Pronoun or Noun connected with a Noun.

In this case the copulative particles connect noun with noun, but it must be noticed that the particles agree with the second nouns, not with the first. Thus:—

Not Isamo ndi mwani, the tree is a mopani.

But Isamo ngu mwani.

In connecting a pronoun with a noun, either the substantive pronoun or the copula di is used.

Affirmative.

Ndime muntu, or Ndi Ndiswe bantu, or tudi muntu, I am a person. bantu, we are people.

Ndiwe muntu, or udi Ndimwe bantu, or mudi muntu, thou art a person. bantu, you are people.

Inguwe muntu, or udi Mbo bantu, or badi bantu, muntu, he is a person. they are people.

1. Muntu ngu muteu, the person is a thief.
Bantu mbo bateu, the people are thieves.
2. Mwezhi ngu mumoni, the moon is a light.
Miezhi nji mimoni, the moons are lights.
3. Isamo ngu mwani, the tree is a mopani.
Masamo nji miani, the trees are mopani.

&c., &c.

Negative.

Indime muntu, or shidi muntu, I am not a person.	Indiswe bantu, or tatudi bantu, we are not people.
Indiwe muntu, or todi muntu, thou art not a person.	Indimwe bantu, or tamudi bantu, you are not people.
Ingwe muntu, or tadi (ta a di) muntu, he is not a person.	Imbobantu, or tabadi bantu, they are not people.

- Muntu tadi muteu, the person is not a thief.
Bantu tabadi bateu, the people are not thieves.
- Muchelo todi muchanka, the fruit is not nice.
Michelo tedi (ta i di) michanka, the fruits are not nice.
&c., &c.

3. Pronoun or Noun connected with an Adjective.

The substantive pronouns may be used when a pronoun is to be connected with an adjective. With the noun there is a variation: some simply taking the adjective without a link, while others take the copulative particles. In the negative ta . . di are used.

Affirmative.

Ndime mubotu, or ndi mubotu, I am good.	Ndiswe babotu, or tudi babotu, we are good.
Ndiwe mubotu, or udi mubotu, thou art good.	Ndimwe babotu, or mudi babotu, you are good.
Inguwe mubotu, or udi mubotu, he is good.	Mbo babotu, or badi babotu, they are good.

- Muntu mubotu, the person is good.
Bantu mbabotu, the people are good.
- Munzhi mukando, the village is big.
Minzhi mikando, the villages are big.
- Isamo ndilamfu, the tree is tall.
Masamo malamfu, the trees are tall.
- Buzane mbubotu, the meat is good.
Mazane mabotu, the meats are good.

5. Kutwi nkushonto, the ear is small.
Matwi mashonto, the ears are small.
6. Kashimbi nkabiabe, the girl is bad.
Tushimbi ntubiabe, the girls are bad.
7. Chintu nchibongvhu, the thing is soft.
Shintu nshibongvhu, the things are soft.
8. Impongo ninjinu, the goat is fat.
Impongo shinjinu, the goats are fat.
9. Lumo ndupia, the razor is new.
Imo nshipia, the razors are new.
- 9a. Lupidi ndushonto, the hill is small.
Mapidi malamfu, the hills are high.

N.B.—Note that the copulative particles are used when the classifiers do not begin with a nasal ; that is why when the classifier begins with m, the adjective has no link with the noun.

Negative.

- Shidi mubotu, I am not good. Tatudi babotu, we are not good.
- Todi mubotu, thou art not good. Tamudi babotu, you are not good.
- Tadi (ta i di) mubotu, he is not good. Tabadi babotu, they are not good.
1. Muntu tadi mubotu, the person is not good.
Bantu tabadi babotu, the people are not good.
 2. Munzhi tadi mukando, the village is not big.
Minzhi tadi mikando, the villages are not big.
 3. Isamo tadi ilamfu, the tree is not tall.
Masamo tadi malamfu, the trees are not tall.
 4. Buzane tabudi bubotu, the meat is not good.
Mazane tadi mabotu, the meats are not good.
 5. Kutwi takudi kushonto, the ear is not small.
Matwi tadi mashonto, the ears are not small.
 6. Kashimbi takadi kabiabe, the girl is not bad.
Tushimbi tatudi tubiabe, the girls are not bad.

7. Chintu tachidi chishonto, the thing is not small.
Shintu tashidi shishonto, the things are not small.
8. Impongo tedi njinu, the goat is not fat.
Impongo tashidi njinu, the goats are not fat.
9. Lumo taludi lupia, the razor is not new.
Imo tashidi impia, the razors are not new.
- 9a. Lupidi taludi lulamfu, the hill is not high.
Mapidi tadi malamfu, the hills are not high.

4. Noun or Pronoun connected with an Adverb.

We take the locative adverbs, mono, kono, ano, here. The idiomatic use of these must be carefully noted. Thus:—

Muntu mwadi mono (muntu mu a di mono), lit., person in-he-is in-here.

Muntu kwadi kono (muntu ku a di ku-ono), lit., person to-he-is to-here.

Muntu ngadi ano (muntu ng-a-di a-ono), lit., person on-he-is on-here.

Notice the phonetic change of a into ng in the last example.

In the following table the nouns are omitted and also the English equivalents ; they may be readily supplied by the reader.

4.	Ngubudi	Ngadi	9.	Nguludi	Ngushidi
5.	Ngukudi	Ngadi	9a.	Nguludi	Ngadi

In the case of pronouns, 1st and 2nd persons sing. and plur., the following are used :—

1st p.	Mwindi	Mutudi	Kwindi	Kutudi
2nd p.	Mudi	Mumudi	Kudi	Kumudi
	1st p.	Ngwindi	Ngutudi
	2nd p.	Ngudi	Ngumudi

Examples of the use of these.

Mwindi mono munganda, I am here in the house.

Kwadi kodia, he is yonder.

Mbudi kwi buzane? Mubudi modia. Where is the meat?

It is in yonder.

Ing'ombe ngwidi ano, the cattle are here.

Minzhi kwidi kodia, the villages are yonder.

Negative.

In the negative the idiomatic form above is not used, simply the particle ta followed by the adverb. Here, however, two other things must be noticed. A shortened form of the adverb is used, thus: mo for mono, momo, modia; ko for kono, koko, kodia; o for ano, awo, adia. These may be followed by the full forms for the sake of emphasis. The other point is that the pronoun ending in a becomes e; that is to say there is an i which coalesces with the a to form e. This i is probably the remnant of the particle di, here apparently omitted. Thus :—

Muntu te ko kono = Muntu ta a i ko kono.

Minzhi te ko kono = Munzhi ta i i ko kono.

NOTE.—I notice that in the Ganda language the di is retained in full in such cases. Thus: tadiwo, he is not here; tadimu, he is not inside—answering to the Ila tio (= ta-i-o), temo (= ta-i-mo).

5. Noun or Pronoun connected with an Interrogative.

In the case of pronouns, the simple form is used with the copula di. With nouns the same form may be used, or, more properly, the copulative particles. The interrogatives illustrated below are: Kwi? Where? Buti? How? What sort? Ongai? How many? English equivalents may be supplied by the reader.

SECT. 2. THE COPULA IN THE PAST.

1. Pronoun connected with a Pronoun or Noun.

The particle ka is used in the affirmative followed by the pronoun and the copula di. In the negative ta is inserted between the pronoun and di.

Affirmative.

Chidi ome, it was I.

Ka tudi uswe, it was we.

Kodi uwe, it was thou.

Ka mudi umwe, it was you.

Kadi nguwe (or wezo) it was he.

Ka badi babo, it was they.

1. Kadi muntu, it was a person.

Ka badi bantu, they were people.

2. Kodi munzhi, it was a village.

Kedi minzhi, they were villages.

3. Ka didi isamo, it was a tree.

Kadi masamo, they were trees.

&c., &c.

Negative.

Chi ntadi ome, it was not I.

Ka tutadi uswe, it was not we.

Ko tadi uwe, it was not thou.

Ka mutadi umwe, it was not you.

2. Kotadi munzhi, it was not a village.

Ke tadi minzhi, they were not villages.

3. Ka ditadi isamo, it was not a tree.

Ka tadi masamo, they were not trees.

&c., &c.

To express our impersonal 'there was a man'; 'there was not a man' the forms are: Ka kudi muntu; Ka kwina muntu.

2. Pronoun or Noun connected with a Noun.

There are two forms used in the affirmative, the first being the past tense—kadi muteu; the second the imperfect—Muntu wa kudi muteu. In the following table the reader may supply what is omitted.

Affirmative.

Nda kudi muntu, I was a person. Ku tudi bashimbi, we were girls.

Wa kudi muteu, thou wert a thief. Ka mudi bateu, you were thieves.

Wa kudi muntu, he was a person. Ka badi bantu, they were people.

1. Muntu kadi muteu, the person was a thief.
 Bantu ka badi bateu, the people were thieves.
 2. Muchelo kodi shidyo, the fruit was food.
 Michelo kedi shidyo, the fruits were food.
 3. Isamo kadidi mwani, the tree was a mopani.
 Masamo kadi miani, the trees were mopani.
- &c., &c.

Negative.

Shi nda kudi muteu, I was not a thief. Ti twa kudi bateu, we were not thieves.

Ti wa kudi muteu, thou wert not a thief. Ti mwa kudi bateu, you were not thieves.

Ti a kudi muteu, he was not a thief. Ti ba kudi bateu, they were not thieves.

1. Muntu katadi muteu, the person was not a thief.
 Bantu ka batadi bateu, the people were not thieves.
 2. Muchelo kotadi shidyo, the fruit was not food.
 Michelo ketadi shidyo, the fruits were not food.
 3. Isamo ka ditadi mwani, the tree was not a mopani.
 Masamo katadi miani, the trees were not mopani.
- &c., &c.

3. Pronoun or Noun connected with an Adjective.

Affirmative.

Chi ndi mubotu, I was good. Ka tudi babotu, we were good.

Kodi mubotu, thou wert good. Ka mudi babotu, you were good.

Kadi mubotu, he was good. Ka badi babotu, they were good.

1. Muntu kadi mukando, the man was big.

Bantu ka badi banjibanji, the people were many.

2. Munzhi kodi mukando, the village was big.

Minzhi kedi mibiabe, the villages were bad.

3. Isamo ka didi ikando, the tree was large.

2. Munzhi ti wa kudi mubotu, the village was not good.

Minzhi ti ya kudi mibotu, the villages were not good.

&c., &c.

4. Noun or Pronoun connected with an Adverb.

The locative adverbs mono, kono, ano may again be illustrated. They appear in their shortened forms mo, ko, o, and are connected with the noun or pronoun by means of the copula di in the affirmative. In the negative the same remarks apply as in the present tense. See above, sect. 1, 4.

In the following tables the English equivalents may be supplied by the reader.

	Koteó	Keteó	8. Keteó	Ka shiteó
	Ka diteó	Kateó	9. Ka luteó	Ka shiteó
	Ka buteó	Kateó	9a. Ka luteó	Kateó

N.B.—The locative particles are accented.

Examples of the use of these.

Ozona chi ntemó mono mung'anda, yesterday I was not here in the house.

Ka tudikó kodia ku munzhi, we were yonder at the village.

Ka shidió impongo shinjishinji, there were there many goats.

Ka mudimó muchikolo, you were in the school.

Katekó masamo, there were no trees there.

5. Noun or Pronoun connected with an Interrogative.

Chi ndi kwi? Where was I? Ka tudi kwi? Where were we?

Kodi kwi? Where wert thou? Ka mudikwi? Where wert thou?

Kadi kwi? Where was he? Ka badi kwi? Where were they?

1. Muntu kadi buti? How was the man? Bantu ka badi buti? How were the people?

2. Munzhi kodi buti? How was the village? Minzhi kedi kwi? How were the villages?

3. Isamo ka didi kwi? How was the tree? Masamo kadi kwi? How were the trees?

&c.

&c.

SECT. 3. THE COPULA IN THE FUTURE.

This is formed by means of the verb ku ba, to be, to become. In the affirmative three forms are found of the future tense of this verb:—

- a. Muntu u la ba muteu, the person will be a thief, i. e. presently.
- b. Nda ba muteu, I shall be a thief, i. e. soon.
- c. Nda ka ba muteu, I shall be a thief, i. e. at some distant time.

1. Pronoun connected with a Pronoun or Noun.

Here we distinguish two forms, corresponding to the English 'it will be a thief' and 'he will be a thief'. The former is impersonal.

Affirmative.

Ku la ba ome , it will be I.	Ku la ba uswe , it will be we.
Ku la ba uwe , it will be thou.	Ku la ba umwe , it will be you.
Ku la ba wezo , it will be he.	Ku la ba babo , it will be they.
1. Ku la ba muteu , it will be a thief.	Ku la ba bateu , it will be thieves.
U la ba muteu , he will be a thief.	Ba la ba bateu , they will be thieves.
&c.	&c.

Negative.

Ta ku ka bi ome , it will not be I.	Ta ku ka bi uswe , it will not be we.
Ta ku ka bi uwe , it will not be thou.	Ta ku ka bi umwe , it will not be you.
Ta ku ka bi wezo , it will not be he.	Ta ku ka bi balo , it will not be they.
1. Ta ti a ka bi muntu , he will not be a person.	Ta ba ti ba ka bi bantu , they will not be people.
Ta ku ka bi muteu , it will not be a thief.	Ta ku ka bi bateu , it will not be thieves.

Negative.

Here also the forms mentioned above are in use :—

Shi nti mbi mubotu, I shall not be good.

Ndi na ni nka ba mubotu, I shall not be good.

4. Noun or Pronoun connected with an Adverb.

The same forms are used as above in affirmative and negative.

Ba la ba kono, they will be here.

Ba ba kono, " "

Ba ka ba kono, " "

Ta ba ti ba bi kono, they will not be here.

Ba ina ni ba ka ba kono, " "

5. Noun or Pronoun connected with an Interrogative.

The same forms are used in this case as above :—

Ba la ba buti ? How will they be ?

Ba ba buti ? " "

Ba ka ba bongai ? How many will there be ?

SECT. 4. THE COPULA IN INDIRECT CLAUSES.

In indirect clauses the copula takes the form of kudi in the affirmative and takudi in the negative. Notice that in the negative indirect clause the particle ta always takes its place after the pronoun.

Examples.

Masamo a kudi miani nda ula, if the trees are mopani I will buy them.

Masamo a takudi miani sha ula, if the trees are not mopani I won't buy them.

Nda ula buti a takudi mabotu ? How can I buy them if they are not good ?

Buzane bwa takudi bubotu bu sowe, if the meat is not good throw it away.

Nda ka dya buti bwa kudi buzumo? How can I eat if it is hard?

Wa takudi kono nda ku yovwa buti? If you are not here how can I help you?

A ku chidi mung'anda nke njile buti? If he is still in the house how can I enter?

Nda kudi u mushinze nda ku bona buti? If I am in the dark how can I see you?

Na takudi mwami nda mu yaya, if he were not a chief I would kill him.

Wa kudi mubotu nda ku yovwa, if you are good I will help you.

A kudi mubiabe mu me, if he is bad, hit him.

Lumo lwa kudi lufumpiu nda lu kwanga, if the razor is blunt I will sharpen it.

Munzhi wa takwiko nda zhoka, if the village is not there I shall return.

Nda ku lela buti tudyo twa takwió? How can I feed you there being no food?

EXERCISES ON CHAPTER IX.

Exercise 1.

Translate into Ila:—

Yesterday he was in the field. Why were you not here? It is not a ram that I want; I want a she-goat. We are not people who travel much on the water. That child troubles me; he is a thief, a liar; I don't know what I shall do with him. I am not a good carpenter. The goats are in the kraal. The cattle are here. The hoes are in that house yonder. In which house? I am here in the house still eating. There are no cattle there in that country. How is that abscess of yours which I lanced yesterday? How many people were in church yesterday? It was we who drove your cattle away. It was that village he burnt because the people did not pay their tax. They were very good trees which we brought. It was he who stayed behind.

It was not I. There was no man in the village when we passed yesterday. If you do not go at once I shall fine you. They were not goats which ate your mealies; they were cattle. That man was not a thief when he was a young man, he has changed much. The fruit which you were eating was not food. The people were not many. I was there in the field when you called me. They were not here at my place; I have not seen them. The men you speak of were in the forest yesterday cutting down trees for me. We were not there, we did not see the dancing. Where were your children yesterday, they were not in school? They will be there to-morrow.

CHAPTER X

THE ADVERB, PREPOSITION, CONJUNCTION, AND INTERJECTION

SECT. I. THE ADVERB.

BESIDES adverbs proper, the Baila have other ways of expressing adverbial ideas. The simple adverbs are as follows:—

Ni, or Ndi, when.

Ukwi? Where?

Pele, only, simply.

Kwi? Where?

Budio, merely.

Ukwi-ukwi, wherever.

Antomwi, together.

Chani? Kochani? How?

Iche, alone.

Kale, already.

Mani, until.

Kale-kale, long ago; in the Na, not, not even.

future.

On ni or ndi see the note below.

Pele and budio have a similar meaning, but pele is used largely with nouns and pronouns. e. g. Ndime pele, I is only, or merely, I. Ba mu yasa budio, they simply speared him. Budio is also used with the subjunctive to indicate 'as soon as'. A ka shike budio, as soon as he arrives.

Pele and mani probably are of verbal origin. The latter may be connected with ku mana, to finish. Pele is perhaps connected with the noun impela, extremity; there is no current verb ku pela, to end, but the root is probably that found in the Zulu ukupela, to come to an end. For just as Zulus say kupela, that's all, there's nothing more, so do the Baila use pele at the end of a narration.

Ukwi? is used when the question is asked without naming anything, while kwi? follows a verb or copula.

Chani, or kochani, is the same word as the Suto yuang; Zulu, njani, kanjani; Nyanja, tshiani. Its use is very like that of buti? e.g. Wezo muntu u la amba kochani? How is that man talking, i. e. what is he saying? U la amba buti seems rather to refer to the manner of speaking.

Kale is also a common Bantu word. In Zulu it takes the form of kade; Suto, khale; Swahili, kale; Bemba, kali. It is used in the sense of 'already': Twa chita kale, we have done it already; in its duplicated form, kale-kale, it refers to distant time, either past or future.

Nouns used as Adverbs.

The following are examples of nouns used as adverbs without any change of form. They are mostly expressive of time.

Chifumo , early morning.	Mashiku , at night.
Mangolezha , late afternoon.	Chikasadizhi , forenoon.
Chifutenuma , backwards.	Chami , purposely.

Besides these adverbs are formed from nouns by prefixing the locative particles. Among these are the following:—

From inshi , the ground.	Munshi , afterwards, behind.
	Kunshi , below.
	Anshi , on the ground.
From kati , middle, obsol.	Mukati , within, inside.
	Akati , among, between.
From izeulu , the sky.	Mwizeulu , in the air, above.
	Kwizeulu , above.
	Eseulu , above.
From imbadi , side, obsol.	Mumbadi ,) Kumbadi ,) aside.
	Ambadi ,)
From imbele , front, obsol.	Kumbele , in the front, before.
	Ambele , afore, before.
From insengwe , outside, obsol.	Kunsengwe , outside.
	Ansengwe , outside.

From iwe, the east.

Kwiwe, towards the east.

Ewe, in the east.

From imbo, the west.

Kumbo, towards the west.

Ambo, in the west.

It is interesting to trace the presence of some of these adverbs in other Bantu languages. Some languages have lost the regular use of the locative prefixes, but yet retain many words which indicate that at one time they were used.

Thus corresponding to anahi we find in Zulu, pansi, below; Xosa, pantsi. In Suto this becomes fatse. In languages retaining the use of the locatives, we have Kongo, munshi, kunshi, vanshi; Nyanja, pansi; Ganda, wansi. Kongo seems to come nearest to Ila in this respect.

The root kati seems to be obsolete in Ila, i. e. it is not used by itself, though it so far retains its noun form as to be followed by the genitive particle ka when used as a preposition, akati ka, &c. The word kati is in use in Kongo and Bemba where it means middle, interior. The word appears in Zulu in the locative form; pakati, among; Swahili, katika, among; Ganda, wakati, in the middle. In Suto it takes the form of hare, kahare.

The root izeulu means the space above; it also is a widely prevalent Bantu word. In Zulu the word is izulu, and the loc. ezeulu takes the form of pezulu; Kongo, ezulu; in Swahili it is contracted to juu: cf. Tonga, ijulu; Ganda, wagulu.

The roots imbadi and imbele and insengwe are obsolete in Ila. Imbele appears in Swahili as mbele, before, in front. Imbadi appears in Ganda as ku 'badi, at the side; and in Ganda as in Ila it has also a plural form, ma'bali. Insengwe does not seem to be used elsewhere; but in Bemba we have nse, kunse, outside.

In addition to the above, adverbs are also formed from nouns by prefixing cha. These express manner.

Examples.

Noun.

Insana, strength.

Inkole, cruelty.

Bwanga, kindness.

Impuwo, fame.

Lubilo, swiftness.

Luse, mercy.

Adverb.

Chansana, forcibly.

Chankole, cruelly.

Chabwanga, kindly.

Champuwo, publicly.

Chalubilo, swiftly.

Chaluse, mercifully.

Intenda, pity.Busu, sorrow.Lwengu, notoriety.Mano, cunning.Chantenda, pitifully.Chabusu, sorrowfully.Chalwengu, notoriously.Chamano, cunningly.Other Locative Adverbs.

Besides forming adverbs by being prefixed to nouns, the locative prefixes are the basis of other adverbs.

Those formed from Mu have the general idea of rest within, motion into or out of. They therefore answer to our adverbs: wherein, herein, therein, hither, thither, hence, hither, in where? just in here, &c.

Those formed from Ku have the general idea of position at a place, motion to or from a place: here, there, yonder, hither, hence, thither, thence, to where? from where? just there, &c.

Those formed from A have the general idea of rest on or upon, motion on to or from off: here, hereon, thereon, on where? just on there, &c.

The following are the forms of these locative adverbs:—

a. The simple forms:—Mu, Ku, A.

b. The contracted forms:—Mo, ko, o (see Chap. IX, sect. 1, 4).

c. The demonstrative forms:—

Mono, in here. Momo, in there. Modia, in yonder.

Kono, to here. Koko, to there. Kodia, to yonder.

Ano, on here. Awo, on there. Adia, on yonder.

d. The demonstrative forms emphasized:—

Mumona mono, just in here; Mumona momo, just in there; Mumona modia, just in there. Kukona kono, just to here; Kukona koko, just to there; Kukona kodia, just to there. Ngon'ano, just on here; Ngon'awo, just on there; Ngon'adia, just in here.

e. The interrogative forms:—

Mudie? In where? Kudie? To where? Adie? On where?

f. The forms derived from -nji, different:—

Munji, in a different place ; Kunji, at a different place ; Anji, on a different place.

g. The forms derived from -nse, all:—

Monse, everywhere inside ; Konse, everywhere (to or from) ; Onse, everywhere upon.

h. The indicative forms:—

Imumo momo, &c., (it is) in there, &c. ; Inkuko koko, &c., (it is) there, &c. ; Ingao awo, &c., (it is) on there.

i. The negative forms:—

Imo momo, &c., not in there, &c. ; Inko koko, &c., not there, &c. ; Ingo adia, &c., not on there, &c.

Examples of the use of these.

Uwe, ko ya u ka kushe mo shintu shako, I say, go and take out from there your things.

Chibotu ; inzho mbike mudie ? Right, now wherein shall I put them ?

U ka shi njishizhe mumona momo, you can put them just in there.

Imo momo, njisha modia, no, not in there ; put it in yonder.

Ko vhwa awo : u kale ngon'ano, get off there, come and sit just here.

Shi zanda kono ; nda ya kunji, I don't like here, I am going elsewhere.

Adverbs based on Bu and Di.

The abstract classifier BU- is the basis of a number of adverbs of manner, as follows:—

Bu, Mbu, as Tu andana mbu ba ka andana shempela o chivhubwo, let us separate as did the rhino. and kippo.

Bunji, differently. Mu ta ku chita bobo, a mu chite bunji, you must not do thus : do differently, in a different way.

Bobo, thus, } demonstrative forms.
Bodia, so, }

Mbubo, it is so, } demonstrative forms with copulative
Imbobobo, it is not so, } prefix.

Bubona, just as, just so. Emphasized demonstrative form.

Nikubabobo, nevertheless, i. e. although it is so (conj.).

Bukadi bobo, in that case, if it is so.

Buti ? How? lit. it says?

Bodia mbu, as (conj.).

Ubudi, as (prep.).

Mbukabele, it is so.

Imbo bukabele, it is not so.

Bubona budi, just as (prep.).

Several preps. and conjs. are included in this list, so as to show all the forms derived from bu.

Similarly from DI-, the third classifier, other adverbs are formed. These refer to time, so that they may be said to have reference to the word izuba, sun, day.

Ndi, ni, when, it is when.

Ni is a contraction for ndi : cf. nina ku bona, I have not seen, for ndina ku bona. It is used simply as 'when', but its proper meaning seems to be : 'it is when,' 'it is then.' Thus :
U ka njayile a bwina, ni nka ka fwa, kill me on the burrow, it is then I shall die.

Dimwi, afterwards, i. e. another (day).

Dinji, afterwards, i. e. a different, another (day).

Udidie ? didie ? didi ? When?

Udidie is used when it stands first in the sentence, or alone ; didie is used to follow a verb. These forms mean : On which (day)? Didi is evidently a corruption from these, and there is a slight difference in meaning. Didie refers to a day, i. e. to-morrow, or another time ; didi may mean when, this day.

Udidie ni mwa mu bona ? When is it that you saw him ?

Mwa mu bona didie ? When, or what day, did you see him ?

Mwa mu bona didi? When did you see him to-day?

Ndidiona, just then, at once.

Ndidiona ni, it is just then that; e.g. mwami wa mu uma, ndidiona ni a mu yaya, the chief beat him, (and) it was just then that he (i. e. the one beaten) killed him.

Odimwi, again.

Dionse, always, i. e. the whole (day).

Adverbs formed from Adjectives.

Adverbs are formed from adjectives by prefixing ka. Thus:—

Kanjikanji, often. From -nji-nji, many. A shortened form of this, Kanji, means frequently, sometimes.

Kabotu, well. From -botu, good. Chibotu is heard frequently instead of kabotu.

Kabiabe, badly. From -biabe, bad. Chibiabe is often heard instead of kabiabe.

Kashonto, little. From -shonto, small. Ashonto is used often for kashonto.

Kongai? How many times? how often? From -ongai?
How many?

Komwi, once. From -mwi, one.

From the adjective -fwafwi, short, come the adverbs afwafwi, kufwafwi, near, formed by prefixing the locative particles a, ku.

Interrogative Particles.

The adverbial particles used in asking questions are Sa, na, sena, and kai. Na also appears as no.

Sa mu la ya kwi balombwana? Where are you going, men?

Na mwa chita buti? What have you done?

Sena nje ku mwita? Shall I not go and call him?

Kai is used to express, Is it not? Kai ome? Is it not I? Kai ng'ombe ezhi? Is it not this ox?

Adverbial Ideas expressed by Verbs.

First, adverbs are expressed by the various verbal species. See Chap. VI, sect. 1.

Thus, our adverbs 'reciprocally', 'together,' are expressed by the suffix -ana of the reciprocal species.

Ba la funana, they love each other, reciprocally.

Ba la lwana, they fight together.

The adverb 'intensely' is rendered by the suffix -isha of the intensive species. This suffix is to be translated by different adverbs according to the meaning of the verb. Thus :—

Ba la angisha, they tie tightly.

Ba la funanisha, they love each other intensely.

Ba la endesha, they travel swiftly.

The adverb 'over again' is rendered by the suffix -ulula of the repetitive species.

Wa chitulula, he does over again.

Secondly, the verbs ku ti, ku amba, ku bwelela, &c., express adverbial ideas in connexion with other verbs. See Chap. VIII, sect. 4.

Adverbs are also expressed by the various verbal auxiliaries, chi, ta, bu, &c. See Chap. VII.

Finally, there are adverbial phrases formed by verbs, &c., and often the idea of subordination of time is expressed by a difference in tense only. Thus :—

Ku kumana ba mu yaya, in the end they killed him.

Ku kukanka ba ka chita kabotu, in the beginning they did well.

Chi be chindi ba ka sanduka, after a time they changed.

Twa ya tu la mwita, when we go we will call him.

Imvula ya wa nda dima, when the rain has fallen I shall dig.

SECT. 2. THE PREPOSITION.

Locative Prepositions.

The three simple locative prepositions are Mu, Ku, A.

Mu expresses rest within, motion into or out from. Its equivalents are : in, among, inside of, within, out of. In expressing time : in, during, through.

Examples.

Wa kala mu bakaintu, he sits among the women.

Imbuto sha ka wila mu mabwe, the seed fell among stones.

Mukaintu wa ka vhwa mu kudima, the woman came from hoeing.

Nka chi zobole mu nkomo yangu, I can keep it in my bag.

Wezo udi shiti mu ng'anda, that (person) sits in the house.

The preposition ku expresses rest at, motion to or from. It also indicates the agent of an action. Its English equivalents are : at, by, toward, from, to.

Ku changes into kwa when it comes before a personal name, or before a noun expressing relationship.

Examples.

Ome nda vhwa ku lutanga, I myself come from the cattle-post.

Ngudi kwi mwanangu? Udi ku munzhi. Where is my child? He is at the village. (Cf. the English provincialism : He is to the village.)

Tata udi shiti kwa Leselo, my father is staying at Leselo's.

Isamo dia ka bezwa ku mulombwana wezo o kembe, the tree was carved by that man with an axe.

Tola maila asa kwa uso, take this grain to thy father.

The preposition a expresses rest upon, motion on to or from off. Its equivalents are : on, upon, at (on), off from, on to, off. It is also used to express, because, on account of, following the verb in the relative species. Further, to express about, concerning.

Examples.

Wezo muntu wa ka wila a luludi, that person fell off the roof.

Twa mu nminga a mulandu wakwe, we beat him on account of his fault.

Twa mu landila a kudisanta kwakwe, we fined him on account of his sitting down when he should have been working.

A mu kale a shuna shesho, sit ye upon those stools.

A mu vhwe a shuna shesho, come ye off those stools.

Nda zanda ku bandika aze a shianza shenu, I want to talk to you about your customs.

Compound Locative Prepositions.

In the last section we found a number of adverbs formed from nouns by prefixing the locative particles. These adverbs become prepositions when they are followed by certain other particles; these are generally merely a repetition of the locative particles, but sometimes they are the genitive particles of the original nouns from which the adverbs were formed. The following are in general use :—

Kunshi ku, below.

Bika chechi kunshi ku ntafole, put this below the table.

Munshi dia, after, behind.

Bantu ba ke za umwi munshi dia umwi, they came one after another.

Kwizeulu ku, above, to the top of.

Tola shintu kwizeulu ku lupidi, take the things to the top of the hill.

Ezeulu a, above, on the top of.

Bika sonkoto ezeulu a nganda, put a pinnacle on the top of the house.

Kunsengwe ku, outside, to the outside of.

Tola ing'ombe kunsengwe ku chimpata, take the beast outside the kraal.

Ansengwe a, (at the) outside of.

Bantu na ba kale ansengwe a nganda, let the people sit outside the house.

Kumbadi ku, by the side of.

Bantu ba le enda kumbadi ku mulonga, the people walk by the side of the river.

Ambadi a, (at the) side of.

Ba la kala ambadi a mulonga, they sit at the side of the river.

Mumbadi u, by the side of, in the vicinity of.

Ba la kala mumbadi mwisamo, they sit in the vicinity of the trees.

Mukati mu, or mukati ka, within, inside of.

Mwa chita nzhi mukati mu ng'anda? What are you doing inside the house?

Akati ka, or akati ka, between, among.

Nda ke enda akati a miunda, I walked among the fields.

Mufwafwi mu, near to, in the vicinity of.

A tu one mufwafwi mu munzhi, let us sleep in the vicinity of the village.

Kufwafwi ku, near to.

Ko ya kufwafwi ku ng'anda, go near to the house.

Afwafwi a, near by.

Ko bika shintu afwafwi a ng'anda, put the things near the house.

Kumbele ku, in front of.

Ka mu ya kumbele ku mbizhi, go ye in front of the horse.

Ambele a, in front of.

Wa ka shimoka ambele a bami, he stood up before the chiefs.

Mumbele dia, in the presence of.

Ba ka amba makani mumbele dia mwami, they spoke the affairs in the presence of the chiefs.

Munuma ya, after, behind.

Umwi u chi chidila munuma yangu, another is still following behind me.

The Preposition o.

The preposition o expresses the instrument with which anything is done. Thus: Twa ka tema masamo o keembe kaka, we cut down trees with this axe.

Phrase Prepositions.

Kamko ka, on account of.

Nda ku uma kambo ka ku chita kwako, I will hit you on account of your doings.

Bubona budi, like, just as.

Bashikale ta ka ba zaka bubona budi bantu oba sunu, the ancients did not build like the people of to-day.

Ku chindi cha, ku busena bwa, in the place of ; in the stead of.

Kwina muntu u vumina ku umwa ku busena bwa umwi, there is no person who assents to being beaten in the place of another.

SECT. 3. THE CONJUNCTION.

Conjunctions are somewhat rare in Ila. The following are used:—

Ni, although.

Wa chi chita ni nda ku shimwina ati u ta chi chiti, you have done it although I told you not to do it.

Nikubabobo, nevertheless.

Wa chita chibiabe chinichini ; nikubabobo nda ku kwatila, you have done very badly : nevertheless I forgive you.

Ansha, unless, except.

U ta vhwu mono ansha wa nshwimina makani ako, you do not leave here unless you tell me your affairs.

Anokuti, whereas.

Twa bona bintu biebi okoya mbishonto, anokuti mbikando chinichini, we see these things as if they were very small, whereas they are very large.

Ati, that, in order that.

Ba ka mu letela mukuku ati a nwe, they brought him beer that he might drink.

Ati na, whether.

Shi zhi ati na u la ka shika sunu, I don't know whether he may arrive to-day.

Kuti, that.

Nda ka telela kuti wa fwa, I heard that he was dead.

Ngonao (ngonawo), then, just then.

Ngonao wa vhwā u munzhi, just then he left the village.

Inzho, now, then.

Inzho ati, tu andana, then he said, let us separate.

O, with, and

Ndetela menzhi o bwizu, bring me water and grass.

Ukuti, because.

Mwana u la dila ukuti wa umwa, the child cries because it is beaten.

Ni . . . ba, either . . . or; neither . . . nor.

Between ni and ba the personal pronouns are inserted, so we get the following forms:—

	Nimba , nor I, &c.	Nituba , nor we, &c.
	Niuba , nor thou.	Nimuba , nor you.
Cl. 1.	Niaba , nor he.	Nibaba , nor they.
2.	Noba , nor it.	Niba , nor they.
3.	Nidiba , „	Naba , „
4.	Nibuba , „	Naba , „
5.	Nikuba , „	Naba , „
6.	Nikaba , „	Nituba , „
7.	Nichiba , „	Nishiba , „
8.	Niba , „	Nishiba , „
9.	Niluba , „	Nishiba , „
9a.	Niluba , „	Naba , „

Ex.—U ta chiti midimo noba omwi mwizuba ledio;

niuba uwe, niaba mwanako mulombwana, niba ing'ombe yako, thou must do no work on that day, neither thou, nor thy son, nor thy ox.

Na, either, or.

Nchi chidie nchu zanda, na chechi na checho? Which do you wish, either this or that?

Ambwene, perhaps.

Ambwene nda ya ozona, perhaps I will go to-morrow.

Ukuba, if, perhaps, supposing that.

Ukuba mwa zhinzhilika mu la ka yana, if you search you may find.

Atela, lest.

Mu ta dyi atela mu la fwa, you must not eat lest you die.

Antela, it may be, perhaps.

Antela ba la ka shika obwadimwi, it may be they will arrive the day after to-morrow.

Kaini, because.

Nda shika kaini wa ka nshimwina, I have come because you told me.

Inji, but.

Kale ka ba bia, inji usunu pe, they were bad before, but to-day, no.

The conjunction o is used to join together nouns and may be translated by 'with' rather than 'and'. When nouns of Class 8 and 9 pl. are to be joined, instead of using o, the initial vowel of those words is lengthened, or the copulative particle is used. Thus, Ukuti bwami mbu bwabo, insana (or ninsana) o busweyo, thine is the authority, the power, and the glory. There is no conjunction corresponding to our 'and' joining sentences. In a series of sentences, or in a compound sentence expressing consecutive events, the place of 'and' is taken by the aorist or preterite tense of the verb. Thus, Muwezhi wa ka ya ku weza, ka fusa munyama, ka mu yaya, ka mu funda, the hunter went hunting, he shot an animal, and he killed it, and he cut it up.

It will be noticed that several conjunctions are formed from the verb ku ti, to say: kuti, that; ati, that; ukuti, because; anokuti, whereas; kuti simply expresses the indicative, that; ati is used to introduce a direct quotation, generally, not always, following the verb amba. It is also used with the subjunctive.

SECT. 4. THE INTERJECTION.

E! Eya! Yes!

Pe! No!

Aima! Not I! Not so! No fear!

Uma! Really!

Mama! expresses sorrow, distress.

We! expresses surprise, disgust, reproof.

Shangwe! Thanks, sir. To a chief (introduced from the Marotsi).

Ingoi! Sir! Expresses assent to a chief's remarks.

Ehe! That's it! Expresses agreement with a person speaking.

Mawe! Dear me! Expresses surprise, distress.

Mawe budio! Expresses great distress.

Hi! Expresses disgust (a peculiar nasal sound).

Ai! Expresses a sudden feeling of pain.

Ifu mama! Phew! It's hot!

Yeye! Yeye! Women's cry at funeral.

E-na! Really!

Hi! Hi! Expresses disappointment, disgust.

Ye! Ye! Ye! Ye! Expresses reproof as on the return of a delaying messenger.

Tchita! I don't know.

Akaka! Expresses reproof, disgust.

EXERCISES ON CHAPTER X.

Exercise 1.

Translate into Ila:—

If you dig for me a whole day I will give you a shilling. The slave troubled his master much, then the master cursed him. When I go I will call you. When you arrive ask where he lives. When rain falls I will plough. He loved him unto death. I will keep the book until I die. What do you call this thing? Sit wherever you please. They have already arrived. Yes, let us go together. I have told you all the news. Yes, that's all. Where shall I take this thing to? Take it towards the west. Climb up the tree. Where is your village? It is in the east. Treat your slave mercifully and then he will serve you gladly. Don't take things from people forcibly. Ask them simply to give you what you want: they will give as soon as you ask. Take these boxes out of here and put them in elsewhere. Take the cattle elsewhere: there is no grass here.

Exercise 2.

Translate into Ila:—

It is not so, you are merely lying. As you have no food, come and work for me, then I will give you food. I pay you just as I pay all the boys who work for me. In that case, let us go away. I want money like that boy. Afterwards we will go and hunt. When is it you saw the game? We heard the guns frequently, but we did not see the hunters. We walked the whole day but we did not see even one head of game. You have done very ill, nevertheless I will forgive for I see you are sorry. We didn't get even a little food there. How many times have you done this thing? After a time we went to Bulawayo to work. We are going to-day to the village. They hit us on account of our laziness. He is living at our place. You must not stop work until I tell you. I thought he was telling the truth, whereas he was merely lying. We must not do it, either I or you. Perhaps we shall find game there. Is it not thou who didst so?

Exercise 3.

Translate into Ila:—

Remain here until he comes. Wait until the rain stops. I cannot eat until I am well. When did he die? When did the chief arrive? When did he give you that cow? When will you begin work? How much money have you? How will you go? How much does it cost? How many sheep have you? The goats also, how many are they? How often do you pray? As soon as he comes let us eat. As soon as the sun sets it is cold. As soon as I hear I will tell you. It is for that reason I went away. I found my knife under that tree. There is a snake among the stones. There will be prosperity next year. Is there a man there? There is no man here. Are there children there? Are there hoes in the garden? Is it so? Yes, it is so. Were there people in this house yesterday? Were there horses in the field to-day? No, there were only oxen. He eats like a wild beast. He croaks like a frog. He runs like a horse. We will work hard just as they did. Beat the drum as I do. He ran after him because he had stolen his calabash: he almost caught him, but a stone tripped him and he fell. When he got up again the boy had disappeared already and he did not see him again. That is not the reason. Is it not his laziness? Whereas he says he is sick. He is not sick: he is merely shamming.

Exercise 4.

Translate into English:—

Ndidiona wa vhwa mo, wa lukanka, ka ba to mboni dinji. Umwe mwa ka bona didie ing'ombe shangu? Imbo bobo mbu nda ku shimwina. E, mbukabele, wa chita kabotu. Bodia mbwina mushidi, ko ya ku Kalomo, u ka ule ko. Banangu mu ta chiti bobo, a mu chite bunji; mwa chita bobo mu la dipenzha. Twina ni twa ka bona munyama na omwi. Umwe nonse mu ta ku chita bobo, nimba ome nimuba umwe: chechi ta chi chitiki. U la banda kochani muchelo wezu? Sa kwa mana makani ako onse? E, mbukabele; pele aza. Mwami nkwatile luse: nina ku chita chami. A mu sotoke chimfutenuma. Mwami wesu wa chita chabwanga shikwense. Inko koko nku u elele ku chita. Nku kambo kako nku nda ku umina. Imbo mbukabele, mwa bea budio. Kai ku chita chibotu? Ing'ombe shako shidi kwi? Kushidi kodia kwa Malalu. A mu nchidile munshi diangu. Bantu babo ta be zhi ati na udi kwi. Nda ku shia kaini wa nchitila chibiabe. Nda ku umina a bukata bwako. A mu dindile mani imvula ya mana ku wa. Chi be chindi chilamfu tu ka la ya kodia kwa Kalomo tu ka beleke. Sa tu la yana kwi madi a kulumbula? Nda amba, wa shinizha, anokuti wa bea budio. Mu ta ba nangi budio shintu: mwa shi pumpa mu la pewa chakubotelwa. Nku kako nku nde zila. A mu zake bubona mbu nda zaka kale. U ta zumanani o muzhikenoko. A mu lukanke mbwa ka lukanka wezo. Bakaintu ba zemuna mabukiti a mutwi. U la kozhana o mukua. Bushu bwakwe bu la kozha izuba. Babo ba le enda ku kanka chifumo, ansha mashiku.

Wa zhoka a munzhi sulwe nga yana ingoma: a shike kabwenga, sulwe wa amb'ati: 'Ndiwe owa ku dibe, ati, ndi kwete lubilo.'

CHAPTER XI

SYNTAX

THIS part of our subject is divided into two parts : the syntax of sentences generally, and the particular use of certain grammatical forms. Many matters properly belonging to this chapter have been conveniently disposed of under the heading of the various parts of speech ; repetition is avoided as much as possible, but the idea of this chapter is to sum up everything of a syntactical nature.

N.B.—The sentences used as illustrations in this chapter are almost wholly taken from Ila tales.

SECT. I. THE SYNTAX OF SENTENCES.

I. The Simple Sentence.

In every proposition two things are necessary, i. e. a subject, that of which something is affirmed, and a predicate, that which contains the affirmation.

In English it is not common to find a proposition consisting of one word only, but in Ila it is common enough. The indicative forms of the substantive pronoun, e. g. are all proper sentences, containing within themselves subject and predicate, e. g. Ndime nda ka chita. This, to us, is a complex sentence, it is I who did (it); ndime standing as the principal clause, the rest a relative clause.

The first rule of syntax is very important, viz. the subject of a sentence is always a personal pronoun. This rule admits of no exception. The only apparent exceptions are in such propositions as Ndime, and in certain constructions with the subjunctive, where, however, the pronoun is understood. Thus :—

Chechi cha nduma chi kushe.

The subject of the sentence here is u understood, and the sentence might equally correctly read: U chi kushe chechi chanduma, take away this which bites me.

The predicate may be:—

a. A noun connected with the subject by means of the copula.

Udi muntu, thou art a person.

Or without a particle:—

Shankole mwiwa wa muzovu, Shankole (is) the nephew of muzovu.

In this, udi, he is; or kadi, he was, is understood.

b. An adjective connected with the subject in the same way:—

Udi mubotu, he is good.

c. An adverb connected in the same way:—

Kadi momo, he was there.

d. A verb:—

Wa ke za, he came.

When the sentence is expressed impersonally as in the English, there came a man, there is a man, the particles ku, kwa (pronouns of Cl. 5) are used.

Kwa ita bazovu, there have passed elephants.

Kwa mana makani a shumbwa, it is finished the story of the lion.

Ku vhwa buloa, there comes out blood.

The subject and predicate may be enlarged or extended.

a.—Enlargement of the Subject.

i. By means of a noun called the Nominative in Apposition (for short N.A.) agreeing with the subject in person, number, and class. Thus:—

Shumbwa wa ya bu chela, the lion went feeding.

Here wa is the subject, shumbwa the N.A.

The position of the N.A. is not always before the subject as in the above sentence ; it may be placed after the verb, but never between the pronoun and the verb.

Ba lukanka banyama, the animals ran ; lit. they ran, the animals.

We ba mukaintu, the woman stole ; lit. she stole, the woman.

Wa ya bu enda sulwe, sulwe went on ; lit. he went on, sulwe.

2. The N.A. may be enlarged by means of a substantive, possessive, indefinite, or demonstrative pronoun ; a noun in the genitive ; or by another noun in apposition.

The demonstrative may precede or succeed it.

Wezo sulwe we ziza ku lela bana, that sulwe came to feed the children.

Muntu wezo wa ka zowa, that man was astonished.

The substantive and indefinite pronouns may also precede or succeed.

Bonse banyama ba lukanka, or banyama bonse ba lukanka, all the animals ran.

Banyama bonse be ebela, ba amb'ati : wa bota mubwa, all the animals gazed and said : it is a good dog.

Dimwi bamwi bantu ba shika, afterwards other people arrived.

Shumbwa aze wa fwa, the lion also died.

Aze muzovu wa wa, the elephant also fell.

The possessive pronoun follows the noun.

Chibia changu chi ka la fwa, my pot will die.

The noun in the genitive also follows the N.A. : it may be even at the end of the sentence, thus :—

Odimwi imvuka dia enzunuka odia sulwe, again the wax melted of sulwe.

The noun in apposition with the N.A. may precede or succeed.

Munyati, achisha, a mu lete chanza, munyati, my uncle, do you bring (your) forehead.

3. The N.A. may be a substantive pronoun when it is treated in just the same way as a noun.

Abalo ba la dya, they also eat.

Ome nda ka ku dya mulundungoma, I am going to eat mulundungoma.

4. The N.A. may be more than one noun joined or not by the conjunction o. If the two nouns are of the same class, the plural pronoun of that class is used; if not, the pronoun of the latter noun may be used.

Shempela o chivhubwe ba ka lwa, the rhinoceros and hippopotamus fought.

5. The N.A. may be extended by means of a relative clause, in which case, of course, the sentence is no longer simple but complex.

Mwana Fulwe, [owakudi kumbadi ku menzhi,] wo ompolola, the child Fulwe, who was by the side of the river, called.

The relative clause is included between the brackets.

The true logical subject of a sentence is therefore :—

Pronoun (grammatical subject) + N.A. + enlargements of N.A.

The sentence, Umwi muntu mukando shinsana wa ke za may be thus analysed :—

Subject.	{	Umwi (enlargement of N.A.). muntu (N.A.). mukando (adj. enlargement of N.A.). shinsana (noun enlargement of N.A. in apposition). wa , subject.
Predicate, Ke za .

b.—Extension of the Predicate.

The predicate may be completed by a direct or indirect object and extended by adverbial adjuncts.

1. Transitive verbs are completed by a direct object which may be a noun or pronoun. If a personal pronoun, its place is immediately before the verb: if a noun it generally follows.

Nda langa mukaintu, I want a wife.

Sulwe wa chela matovu, Sulwe plucked leaves.

Wa mu shimwina, he told him.

2. For the sake of emphasis the object may be a noun placed at the beginning of a sentence, in which case a corresponding pronoun is inserted before the verb. This pronoun is to be regarded as the proper object, the noun standing in apposition with it.

Umwi mwana wa mu zhika kumbadi ku menzhi, lit. one child he him placed by the side of the water.

Subj. wa; pred. zhika; obj. mu; obj. in app. umwi mwana.

Fulwe tu la mu shia lubilo, we will leave Fulwe by swiftness.

Subj. tu; pred. la shia; obj. mu; obj. in app. Fulwe.

3. The object, direct or indirect, may consist of more than one noun connected or not by means of the conjunction o.

Wezo muzune mu ka mu letele mahuba inchelwa, that bird you may take for him the bellows and spout.

Subj. mu; pred. ka letele; dir. obj. mahuba inchelwa; indir. obj. mu; indir. obj. in app. wezo muzune.

4. When the object, direct or indirect, is a personal pronoun, 1st pers. sing., it is prefixed to the verb. See Chap. V, sect. 1.

5. The object may be enlarged in the same way as the subject.

Pele dimwi wa ba mana bonse bana, but afterwards he finished all the children.

Obj. ba; obj. in app. bonse bana.

Nda dya michelo ya bapombo, I eat fruit of baboons.

Obj. michelo; enl. of obj. ya bapombo.

Aze nda ku yaya, you also I will kill you.

Obj. ku; enl. of obj. aze.

Inzho mwenzhina sulwe wa ba yana bana ba sulwe, then the friend of Sulwe found them, the children of Sulwe.

Obj. ba ; enl. of obj. bana ba sulwe.

6. When there are two objects, direct and indirect, the indirect is placed before the direct. If the object is a pronoun it is placed immediately before the verb. The verb in the relative and causative species has this construction. See Chap. VI, sect. 1 (1).

Be zuzha lubono ezhi nganda, they fill (with) goods this house.

Indir. obj. lubono ; dir. obj. ezhi nganda.

Imwi i zuzhe maila, another fill with grain.

Dir. obj. i : indir. obj. maila.

Umwe, mu tu twile bufu. Ba ba twila. You, stamp meal for us. They stamped for them.

Dir. obj. bufu ; indir. tu, ba.

Mwana fulwe wa ba letelela menzhi mu kanwa, the child Fulwe brought for them water in (his) mouth.

Dir. obj. menzhi ; indir. obj. ba.

Ngonao wa ba lapwila menzhi, then he spat out the water for them.

Dir. obj. menzhi ; indir. obj. ba.

7. In the passive construction the subject is the indirect object of the active verb. See Chap. VI, sect. 1 (1) ; sect. 3 (c).

8. The object may be an infinitive clause.

Ame nda zanda ku ma dya, I also want to eat you.

Obj. ku ma dya.

9. The predicate may be extended by means of adverbial conjuncts.

(a) Of time :—

Ta ba ch' umboni dinji, they did not see him again.

Dimwi bamwi bantu ba shika, afterwards other people arrived.

Ngonao basongo ba umbuzha, then the wise asked him,

(b) Of place:—By means of adverb or locative noun.

Inzho mwifu dia muzune wa hukuta, then in the belly of the bird he worked the bellows.

U ta njayila ano, you must not kill me here.

Ko njayila a bwina, kill me on the burrow.

(c) Of manner:—

Mbwa ka ba chenga, how Sulwe deceived them.

Mbwa ka mu chenga bobo mwenzhina, how he thus deceived his friend.

Banyama ba ka bungana antomwi, the animals gathered together.

(d) Of purpose:—By means of the infinitive.

Subwe wa ka ya ku sha bwina, Sulwe went to dig a burrow.

(e) Of reason or cause:—

Inzho nchi nda ke zila, now that is why I came.

2. Compound Sentences.

Two or more propositions connected together are called a compound sentence.

a.—Co-ordination.

When two propositions are each in a manner independent of the other and yet so related as to form one thought they are said to be connected by way of co-ordination.

1. Two independent clauses are sometimes connected by means of a copulative conjunction or some equivalent. Copulative conjunctions are rare in Ila ; substantive pronouns are largely used in sentences of this kind ; generally sentences are placed following each other, with a logical but not grammatical connexion.

Muzune mukando mukando wa ka ya mwinzhila, wa yana bantu be enda, wa ba mina, a very large bird went along the road : he saw people walking (and) he swallowed them.

Inzho wezo muzune wa telela mahuba, inzho wa fwa muzune, then the bird felt the bellows, and then he died.

2. Sometimes the two clauses united to form one thought are contrasted with each other forming an adversative co-ordinate sentence.

Muzovu wa kula, shankole wa fwimpa, the elephant grew big (but) the wart-hog small.

Kale kale nda ka mu funa : inji usunu ndi mu swile, long ago I loved him, but to-day I hate him.

3. The sentences may be so arranged and connected that one shall denote a cause or reason of what is expressed in the other, giving a causal co-ordinate sentence.

Ta mu na ku bomba ; nchi twa ma yayila, you have not yet become humble ; that is why we kill you.

Inshipi ezho ya kaka ku vhwa kwitashi dia mwana wezo, ukuti ya ku njila kale kale, ka chidi mwana, that bracelet refused to come off the hand of that child, because it had been put on long ago when she was still a child.

b.—Subordination.

When two sentences are so related that one is dependent upon the other, as when one defines and explains the other, or as when one member of a sentence is modified and expanded into an additional sentence, they are connected by way of subordination. Subordinate clauses are of three kinds : substantive, adjective, and adverbial.

Subordinate clauses are put between brackets.

1. Substantive clauses are those which form objects of the verb. They include direct quotations introduced by the conjunction ati.

Banyama bonse ba ka fwe nyotwa, ba amb'ati : [' A tu lukanke lubilo ' .]

All the animals were thirsty, and they said : ' Let us run swiftly.'

Wa ka hununa u la yana [wa ba muntu.]

When you have uncovered you will find it is become a man.

2. An adjective clause is one in which an adjective is expanded into a sentence and employed to give a more exact definition of a noun or pronoun. Adjective clauses are introduced by relative pronouns. They may be connected with the subject or the object.

For the rules for forming such clauses see Chap. V, sect. 7.

(a) Connected with the subject :—

U la njaya [banakwe mbo nda dya.]

He, whose children I have eaten, will kill me.

[Lumo lwangu] nguni [wa lu tola?]

Who is it who has taken my razor.

Ba shike mwisokwe, wezo [owa ku kwete mubwa] wa yaya munyama.

When they arrived in the forest he, who had the dog, killed an animal.

The antecedent may be omitted.

Owa ku kwete chibia, ati, who had the pot said.

(b) Connected with the object :—

Ushumbwa wa ka zhala bana [ba di ikumi.]

Lion had children who were ten.

Inzho wa ba yaya bonse [oba ka dya banakwe.]

Then he killed all who ate his children.

5. An adverbial clause is one used in place of an adverb. It may express :—

(a) Place :—

Shumbwa, [koko nku nda vhwa,] ku kudi ba ka dya banako.

Lion, there where I come from, are those who ate thy children.

Wa hununa [mwa kala mulombwana.]

She opened where the man sat.

(b) Time :—The relation of time is often expressed not by an adverb but by moods and tenses of the verb. Thus, the following sentences will show how the preterite indicative, and the subjunctive are used.

[A shike ku chishi chimwi] ba amb'ati : ' Wa londa nzhi ? '

When he arrived at the other country, they asked him :
' What do you want ? '

[Wa ka mana ku luka,] u ka ye ku mulonga.

When you have finished weaving, go to the river.

[Wa mu yaya,] mu lete ku munzhi.

When you have killed him, bring him to the village.

[Bu che budio,] wa amb'ati shumbwa :

As soon as it dawned, lion said :

Inzho [a shike budio,] wa kumba bukoko.

Then as soon as he arrived, he brewed beer.

[Ba mane ku mwita,] ba amb'ati :

When they had called him, they said :

[A shike a munzhi umwi,] wa buzha ati :

When he arrived at one village, he asked saying :

(c) Manner :—

Inzho musonzhi u la bona [bu twa vhwa mwifu dia muzune.]

Then the seer will see how we have come out of the bird's belly.

Tu andana [mbwa ka andana shempela o chivhubwe.]

Let us separate as did the rhino. and hippo.

A tu ende, tu ka sobane, [mbu twa ku sobana o bachisha bamuzovu.]

Let us go and play as we played with our uncles, the elephants.

(d) Cause, reason, or purpose :—

Ngonao shumbwa wa amb'ati : [' Mbu mwa ndila bana] nda leka ku zhala.'

Then lion said : ' As you eat my children I leave off begetting.'

[Bodia mbu nda kumba bukoko] a mu ka mwite shiluwe umwi.

As I have brewed beer, go ye and call the other leopard.

[Bodia mbwina mulombwana,] twala ome.

As you have no husband, marry me.

[Mbu wa dya chidyo changu] ome nda bwela u menzhi.

As you have eaten my food, I shall return to the water.

[Bodia mbu ya kaka,] a tu kosole itashi.

As it refuses, let us cut off the hand.

SECT. 2. SYNTAX OF PARTICULAR FORMS.

1. Syntax of the Noun.

The leading rules under the noun apply also to the pronoun.

1. The noun used as the N.A. is in the nominative case.

2. A noun placed after another signifying the same thing to explain, describe, or qualify it, is in the same case as the other noun, denominated apposition in the same case.

Mbu twa sobana o bachisha bamuzovu.

As we played with our uncles the elephants.

3. A noun used to limit another noun by denoting origin, ownership, or designation, is put in the genitive case, when the latter signifies a different thing from the former.

(a) In respect to origin, source, or cause.

Dia mana ikani dia muzune.

It is finished the story of the bird.

(b) In respect to ownership or possession.

Kangasulwe ka zhika muchila wa mwaba.

The hare buried the tail of the jackal.

(c) In respect to designation, object or fitness.

Cha shika chindi ocha ku ya ku sala meya.

The time arrived for going to select horns.

4. The limiting or governing noun is frequently omitted, or implied in the use of the particle alone.

Ngonao basongo ba umbuzha, ati: 'No ya chidio njidi kwi, o ya chimonswe?'

Then the wise asked him, saying: 'Which is the right and which the left?' Lit. of the right it is where, and of the left.

Oya chidio nji ezhi: oya chimonswe nji ezhi.

Of the right it is this. Of the left it is this.

The reference is to inzhila, road.

5. There is a nice distinction between the genitive subjective and the genitive objective. The genitive is termed subjective when it denotes that which has or does something, e. g. Kubona kwa bantu, the seeing of people, i. e. the people see. The genitive is termed objective when it denotes that which suffers something, or that which is the object of what is expressed by the noun limited; e. g. Kubonwa kwa bantu, the being seen of people, i. e. the people are seen.

In the English New Testament the phrase 'The love of God' may mean two quite different things, and is not always understood; e. g. 'The love of Christ constraineth us' (2 Cor. v. 14); here the idea is of Christ's love for us. But in 2 John ii. 5 'In him hath the love of God been perfected', it is the Christian's love to God. In Ila no misunderstanding could happen; the first would be translated, kufuna kwa Kristi; the second, Kufunwa kwa Leza. In the first case kufuna denotes the love with which Christ loves; in the other, kufunwa is the love with which God is loved.

6. When several nouns in the genitive follow each other, each must have the sign of the genitive.

7. The noun depending upon an active transitive verb is in the accusative case. The noun depending upon a preposition is also in the accusative.

8. But a noun may be in the accusative without a preposition:—

(a) When it is the efficient agent of an active verb in the passive voice.

Ing'anda ezhi ya ka zakwa mulumi angu.

This house was built by my husband.

(b) Some neuter verbs also take the accusative without a preposition.

Wa lukanka lubilo, he ran (with) swiftness.

Ushumbwa wa kanka ku pia mulevu wakwe.

Lion began to burn (at) his beard.

(c) The place of a preposition is often supplied by some specific modification of the verb. See the remarks on relative and causative verbs in Chapter VI.

(d) Nouns denoting duration of time are generally put in the accusative without a preposition. They therefore may be called adverbs.

Kabwenga a bone mwezhi kutuba mangolezha.

When the hyena saw the full moon in the evening.

2. Syntax of the Adjective.

1. The adjective agrees with its noun in class, number, and person.

2. When two or more adjectives belong to one noun, they are put in juxtaposition one after another without a conjunction.

Nda ka bona ing'ombe inamfu inkofu.

I saw a tall lean ox.

3. Where an adjective belongs to two or more nouns, if they are personal nouns the pronoun ba is used, if neuter the pronouns of cl. 7 pl.

Bana babo o bashimbi badi bakofu.

Those children and girls are thin.

Ing'ombe impongo shesho shidi inkofu.

Those cattle and goats are lean.

3. Syntax of the Pronoun.

1. The pronoun agrees with its subject, the noun or pronoun which it represents, in class, number, and person.

The exception to this is when the plural of the 2nd person is used as a mark of respect.

Achisha, a mu zhime kodia.

My uncle, do you stand yonder.

2. Where the pronoun stands for two or more nouns or pronouns in Class 1, ba is used.

Banichi o bana o bakando ba amb'ati.

The youngsters and children and elders say.

Or the pronoun may agree with neither noun in particular, but with the two taken together and considered as plural, either as persons or things.

Ba ka chita chikani mwaba inkala.

They disputed, the jackal and the crab.

Or the sentence may be put in another way.

Wa ke enda mwaba, ayo inkala ye enda.

The jackal and the crab went.

Lit.—The jackal went : he also the crab went.

3. The personal pronoun of the third person is used not only as a substitute for a noun but as a complement to it. As a substitute it is required really only when the noun is omitted. As complement it is most important, as showing relation of the noun to other words in the sentence.

The Ila pronouns used as substitutes for nouns do not differ from the English pronouns : he, she, it, they.

They may be the subject or object of the sentence. The personal pronoun is not used after a preposition : or as object after a verb. Substantive pronouns must be used in such cases.

We enda, we enda, wa ka shika a mampanda a nzhila, u ka tole ya chimonswe, u ka pinuke, u ka tole njiyo.

Going on and on you will come to the dividing of the roads : take the left, turn aside and take that.

Wa ka amba kudi babo, he said to them.

4. The possessive pronoun follows the noun it limits.
5. The possessive pronoun is often used without a limiting noun, but its form shows clearly what manner of noun is understood.

Owako ngu wezo ; owangu ngu wedia.

That is yours : yonder is mine.

(With any singular noun of cl. 1 and 2.)

5. When used as object the personal pronoun is placed before the verb : sometimes, according to rules already discussed, it is joined to the verb. It is frequently in its place to form a kind of double object, i.e. with a noun elsewhere in the sentence. See above, p. 236.

Ngonao obudisuno ta ba mu luba wezo muntu.

Now even to-day they do not forget that man.

Ibwe ledio wa di tola shumbwa kwisamo.

That stone, the lion took it up the tree.

4. Syntax of the Verb.

1. It must be noticed that very often Ila requires a fullness of expression where in English we can make a short cut. Thus, when there are two subjects in a sentence and one predicate.

Umwi wa bweza mubwa, umwi wa bweza chibia.

One took the dog and the other the pot.

Particles expressing or, &c., also require an extended form.

Na u langa, na wa ba nzhi ? Is he alive, or what ?

2. The infinitive mood is used :

(a) As a noun either accusative or nominative.

(b) It may be used as an adverbial adjunct to express purpose.

Wezo mubwa we njila mu chibia ku komba.

That dog entered the pot to lick it out.

Inzuki ya ya ku langa musamo kwa solwe.

The bee went to look for medicine from the honey bird.

(c) To express emphasis.

Muzovu wa nwa o ku nwa.

The elephant drank and drank.

3. The subjunctive mood is used:

(a) To give a command or express desire.

A tu ende inzho tu lukanke. Let us go now and run.

U ka fume ozona, tu ze ku lukanka.

Rise early to-morrow and come and run.

A tu ike, tu dye. Let us cook that we may eat.

Kweza u mu kushe mo. Come and take him out.

Ndo, to kosodi itashi, a tu ku pe budio inji inshipi.

Friend, don't cut off the hand: let us give you another bracelet.

(b) To express subordination of time.

A ka shike kwa wezo munganga wa ku sonda.

When you arrive at that doctor's he will divine for you.

(c) To express purpose.

A tu ende tu lukanke. Let us go now that we may run.

A tu fumbe mukalo tu ka nwe.

Let us dig a water-hole that we may drink.

SECT. 3. ANALYSIS AND PARSING.

As an illustration of the foregoing rules of syntax, let us take the following sentence and analyse and parse it:—

Wa usa budio, wa yana na lwiya, onse ba a mana, wa yana ko mwala o matwi malamfu o mabala o mulomo mukando.

A compound sentence made up of four simple sentences in co-ordination.

	(wa	Subject.
1.	{ usa	Predicate.
	{ budio	Extension of predicate.
	(wa	Subject.
2	{ yana	Predicate.
	{ na	Extension of predicate.
	{ lwiya	Object.

3.	{	onse	Enlargement of object.
		ba	Subject.
		a	Object.
		mana	Predicate.
4.	{	wa	Subject.
		yana	Predicate.
		ko	Extension of predicate.
		mwala o matwi o mabala o mulomo }	Object.
		malamfu, mukando . . .	Enlargements of object.

Parsing:—

Wa, pers. pro., 1st cl., 3rd pers. sing., nom. to usa.

usa, verb, intr. act. indic. aorist, 3rd pers. sing., agreeing with its nom. wa.

budio, adverb of manner modifying usa.

wa, pers. pro., 1st cl., 3rd pers. sing., nom. to yana.

yana, verb, trans. act. indic. aorist, 3rd pers. sing., agreeing with its nom. wa.

na, adverb of negation modifying yana.

lwiya, noun, cl. 9 a, 3rd pers. sing., accusative governed by yana.

onse, indefinite adjective, cl. 3, 9 a (refers to meya).

ba, pers. pro., 3rd pers. plur., cl. 1, nom. to mana.

a, pers. pro., cl. 9 a, 3rd p. plur., accusative governed by mana.

mana, verb, trans. act. indic. aorist, 3rd pers. pl. agreeing with ba.

wa, as above, nom. to yana.

yana, as above.

ko, adverb of place modifying yana.

mwala, noun, cl. 2, sing., 3rd pers., accusative governed by yana.

o, o, o, conjunctions.

matwi, noun, cl. 5, 3rd pers. pl., accusative governed by yana.

malamfu, adj. of quality, agreeing with matwi, cl. 5, pl.

mabala, noun, cl. 3, 3rd pers. plur., accusative governed by yana.

mulomo, n., cl. 2, 3rd pers. sing., accusative governed by yana.

mukando, adjective of quality, agreeing with mulomo, cl. 2, sing.

FINAL EXERCISES.

These exercises will serve to test the student's knowledge of the grammar.

1. In the Grammar locative particles are given under the heading of nouns, pronouns, &c.; let the student now make for himself a table showing all these forms together and their meanings. Then they should be applied to nouns chosen from the vocabularies, such as: ibwe, inkomba, impako, bwina, chim-pata, &c.

2. Explain carefully the meanings of the following:—landa, landwa, landila, nandila, landula, landulula, landuka, landudika, landukila, landusha, landulwa, nandwila, landukile; langa, lanzha, nanzha, dilangila, langidila, langisha, langidizha, lan-zhizha; tamba, tambula, tambila, tambika, tambikizha, tambu-zhanya tambala, tambuzha; tila, tidila, tika, tikaisha, tikaika, tikula; zamba, zambaila, zambila, zambulula.

3. Turn to the Eng.-Ila vocabulary and learn what is said under: account, ought, like, equal, fellow, first, since, side.

4. Explain the following forms and contractions:—Nch'ona'no, to mboni, todi, tedi, ngadi, ngwidi, ngodi, ngudi, temo, tomo, teo, shimo, ntudi, njidi, kedio, kotemo, koteo.

5. What is the force of the following suffixes and prefixes? Where they involve any phonetic changes explain what these are:—di-, -ika, n-, -ni, -ine, -ile, -ya, -eka, -ulula.

6. What are the different meanings of: o, ku, a, na?

7. When the following letters undergo phonetic change what do they become? Give examples:—a, u, w, l, j.

8. How are augmentatives and diminutives formed in Ila? Give ten examples of each.

9. How do the Baila express : more, most, very, really, just, first, again, before, as soon as ?

10. What is the difference between kálo and kaló, shálo and shaló, ádio and adió, mbo and imbo, ndime and indime, ngao, ingao and ingo, into toto and intuto ?

11. What are the meanings of: nchi bamba, shi bambi, ndina ku bamba, shi bambile, shina ku bamba, chi nta bambi, ndi ne nda ka bamba, chi nta na ku bamba, shi na ka bambile, shi nti bambi, ndi na ni nka bamba, shi ka bambi, shi ka ka bambi, nta bambi, nta ka kambu ?

12. Translate : mu ta ngumi. Explain the change in the verb, and cite the rules governing changes of the same kind in other verbs.

13. What is the passive voice of the following :—dya, iya, ti, ita, leta, lanzha, selusha, iba, uzha ?

14. Analyse the following :—

‘Wezo muntu mudimbushi ngu mwa ka shimwina inzhila, a shike budio a mampana a nzhila walo wa pinuka wo ona, mbu mwa ka amb’ati : wa ka shika a mampana a nzhila u ka pinuke.’

Parse the words in italics.

15. Explain the formation of the following words :—chipaidilo, shilwengu, chalwengu, nikubabobo, mudiezhina, chichezho, chabwanga, chilombwana, shichimbembe, diakomboka, inkambidizho, kufwinsha.

16. Translate the following into Ila :—

The Tortoise said to the Ape : ‘My friend, let us go and gather fruit in the forest.’ The ape agreed and they went off. It was the tortoise who arrived first, and picked up some of the fruit from the ground. When he had finished eating them he called his friend, saying : ‘Ape, my friend, I have found fruit : come here.’ The ape came and climbed up the tree : the tortoise tried to climb but always fell back again. As he was unable to climb, he said to the ape : ‘Gather me some fruit ; I am unable to climb.’ The ape answered : ‘It was you who came first: how can you beg of me?' The ape then went on eating. When he was satisfied they went off home. The tortoise did not arrive until sunset. He took a stick and split it down the middle, then, when the ape was still asleep, he cut a number of sharp pegs and put them in a bag. Next morning, while it was still early, the tortoise went to the ape and said: 'My friend, let us go again and eat fruit.' 'To-day,' he said again, 'I shall put fruit in my bag.' When they arrived at the tree, the ape climbed up first; the tortoise stayed below. The ape laughed very much and despised his friend because he could not climb. But it was the tortoise's cunning only. The tortoise sat talking and smoking and making the ape laugh. At last the ape was satisfied, and said, 'let us go home.' Now before this, the tortoise had hammered the pegs around the tree; so when the ape jumped down, he fell upon a peg and was killed. The tortoise then skinned him, cutting off the paws, the head, and the tail. He put the meat on his shoulders, and went home. That is how the tortoise deceived the ape.

This is part of a Suto tale.

ENGLISH-ILA VOCABULARY

REMARKS

1. THE student is not to expect that he will find every Ila word in these vocabularies. There are bound to be still thousands of unrecorded words. Nor is he to expect to find every possible modification of those words which are recorded. Rules are given in the Grammar for the formation, e. g., of the plural of nouns, and, therefore, excepting a few which are inserted for special reasons, he will not find plural nouns in the vocabularies. Many of the modifications of the verb are inserted, but there are many more that are in use. Having, however, mastered the rules for the formation of the verbal species, the passive voice, &c., he should have no difficulty with such words.

2. Words are recorded in alphabetical order, according to the first letter of the words themselves, not of the roots.

3. The student may often come upon words which, apparently, are not in the vocabularies, but which really are there only disguised through some phonetic change. Having mastered what is said in Chapter II and elsewhere on these changes he ought to experience no difficulty in tracing these words; but the following hints may be helpful:—

If you cannot find a word beginning with Mw, Kw, Bw, look under the vowel following the w. Thus:—

For Kwimba	look for	Imba.
„ Kwisamo	„ „	Isamo.
„ Mwivhu	„ „	Ivhu.
„ Bwimba	„ „	Imba.

When you cannot trace a word beginning with e, look under i, because $e = a + i$. Thus, for Evhu look under Ivhu.

When you cannot find words beginning with Mu, Ku, A, remember that many nouns of cl. 8 lose an i when they take those prefixes; therefore look under z. Thus, for Munganda, Kunganda, Anganda, look under Inganda.

Similarly with verbs beginning with n or m, if you cannot find them in their place, look under z.

Thus, Njila is entered under i = injila.

- GOD, Leza. Other names given to the Supreme Being are :
- Babulāladiwila, the one who throws down for himself the imbula fruit.
- Chilenga, the one who institutes customs, &c.
- Ipaokubozha, the one who gives gifts and rots them.
- Lubolekamasuko, the one who rots the masuko, a fruit which goes rotten in the rainy season.
- Lubumba, the Creator.
- Mangwe, the sender of so much water that there is no place left dry.
- Muninde, the giver of thunder and much rain.

- Ushatwakwe, that all things are his, and he can do as he wishes.

Ila ideas concerning God are of the vaguest description: it is very difficult to discover what they actually, apart from Christian teaching, think about God. From the names given above, which may be said to sum up the Ila theology, it is seen that Leza is closely identified with nature, but as Lubumba, the Creator, He is above nature, and as Chilenga He is regarded as the grand institutor of customs. So close is the connexion of God and Nature that rain is given the same name, Leza. Yet it is not plain that they regard rain and God as one and the same; but rather that, rain being considered as God's chiefest and best gift, it has come to pass that giver and gift have been given the same name; but the identification is in name only. That they are not considered as one is shown by the people ascribing to God whatever they cannot understand. Thus of the lightning they say, 'God is angry, and of a tree struck by lightning they say it is split by Leza. So of thunder, they say, 'God is hoeing deeply,' 'God is shaking His skins.'

The Baila seem to regard Leza as their own particular tribal God, and imagine that each nation has its own deity. They do pray to Him on occasion: prayers are also addressed to the Mizhimo, the ancestral spirits, the idea seeming to be that the Mizhimo act between God and man. God has little influence over their lives, none at all over their morals. The name Ushatwakwe indicates a more or less fatalistic belief, i. e. that God will do as He lists, apart from us: that we are in the hands of fate. In connexion with this idea there is the saying that when a person dies God has plucked His fruit, i. e. He has a right to do as He will with His own.

It is interesting to note that Leza is a widespread name for God in the centre of Africa. In the west the general name is Nyambi or Nzambi; in the east Mulungu. Between these there is a large number of languages which contain the name Leza, or some slight phonetic modification of it. Thus: Lesa in Lamba, Sodi, Luba, Bemba, Bisa; while Luba (Congo), Subia, Tonga, and Ila have Leza; and Karanga has Beja, and Mbunda, Redza. In Nyanja, where the word for God is Mulungu, Leza or Resa is found; according to Laws, uta-wa-leza, the rainbow, means bow of spirit, bow of God. (Cf. - INITIATE, TO, to do a thing for the first time, to establish a custom, v. t. ku lenga. To be initiated, v. i. ku shinga.

This word is applied to the initiation of youths into manhood. When boys reach puberty they are sent to a cattle outpost, or kraal, where they stay five or six days herding cattle. The initiation consists in the boys, one at a time, beating a bull, ku uma muchende. At the end of that time they are sent home, a feast is made, and the youngsters' teeth are knocked out, ku banga meno. This completes the initiation.

With regard to girls reaching puberty (bakamwale), a number of them leave their homes and gather in the forest around a munto tree; they clear a space and sleep there. When they are found there they are taken back to their villages and put into huts, or sometimes together into one hut; here they must stay a month or two, and all the time are instructed by the old women as to the duties of womanhood. Any girl who has given trouble may come in for a severe beating to knock the nonsense out of her, or she may be taken down to the river, put into the water, and almost throttled. During this time of seclusion the girls are allowed out only at night, and they must appear covered from head to foot; if otherwise, they may come in for a beating. At the end of the time a feast is made, and the girls are decked out in beads, &c. They are carried into the village on the backs of elders, and a dance is made for them, ku zhanina bakamwale. A good deal of immorality goes on during these initiation ceremonies.

Some kinds of native medicines.

Buvhumo. This is put around a village and elsewhere to scare away lions.

Chipezhabazhike. A short shrub the root of which is used in leprosy and syphilis. The root is pounded, wrapped in cloth, and soaked. The bundle is then applied to the sores.

Kabwengwe. Leaves and twigs of a small bush. They are crushed, soaked in water, and applied to the eye, when a snake has spat into it. The immediate result is a profuse watering of the eye, which relieves the pain and washes out the poison. It is also said to be applied to snake bites.

Kamankamala. The leaves or root of this shrub are chewed; said to be a cure in case of diarrhoea.

Mubondo. The dried head of this fish is crushed up and mixed with the fat of the same; this is said to be a cure for the disease Chibondo.

Mubumbu. Bark of this tree used as a cure for dysentery and diarrhoea. The bark is soaked in water which turns a red colour; the decoction, which is bitter to taste, is either drunk or cooked with porridge.

Mudyadya. The root of this shrub is cooked in beer or porridge; said to stimulate the appetite.

Mufufuma. From the root of this tree is made a decoction which is supposed to cause children to grow big. The root is crushed and soaked, and the child is washed in the decoction and made also to drink some of it.

Mufwebabachazi. The root of this tree evidently contains a strong narcotic. The bark is taken and broken up, and natives say that if these are smoked in a pipe unconsciousness is quickly caused, death following. This is not an uncommon way of committing suicide.

Mululwe. Root of this tree used as a cure for leprosy or syphilis. Deep incisions are made in the root, which is then soaked in water; the decoction, which is bitter to taste, is taken either locally or used as a lotion.

Munto. The leaves of this tree are soaked or chewed and then placed on the head, in case of headache.

Mutongabofu. The root of this small shrub is soaked in water, and the decoction is drunk three or four days in succession by women in order to produce fertility.

Mwazhi. This is used in the ordeal by the Balumbu; it is said not to be found in Bwila, but brought from the Butonga. It is given to suspected witches, &c.: if they vomit, they are declared innocent; if they die, they are declared guilty.

Namudilakushobwa. A beetle. This is taken and rubbed on the gums of a child to facilitate the cutting of the teeth.

Ngombi. A shrub, the root of which is used as an emetic. The root is soaked in water, and the decoction taken internally

- Offerings at graves are numerous. The things that may be offered are beer, maize, tobacco, impemba, mukangabishi, hemp, cloth, hoes, cups, ingonji, impande.
- These are given in connexion with prayers; to pray at graves is ku paila, though not altogether confined to graves.
- Thus when there is no rain the people go to the grave of a chief, put beer or grain on the grave, and then pray, So-and-so give us rain, or water; U tu pe leza, or, U tu pe menzhi. If a person is sick the relatives go to the musonzhi about it; he tells them to pray, saying, the spirit wants beer, &c., muzhimo u langa mukuku. He may tell them to pray ku mudiango, at the door of the house (just inside), or antumba, i.e. in the house; then they make their offering there, and say: Muntu wezu na a pone; twa komba, twa kambidila; a kudi ndiwe na a pone, i.e. Let this person live, we pray; we salute by clapping, if it be thou let him live. Another occasion for offering is when a person has killed a beast in hunting. Cutting off four pieces, he throws one to the east, and says: Uwe u muwe mabobu buzane: You in the east, here is meat; then to the north, Uwe u mwila; then to the south, Uwe u mubishi; then to the west, Uwe u mumbo. Having thus offered to the spirits in all directions, he kneels and claps, and then says: Ozona ozona u mpe buzane: To-morrow and to-morrow give me meat (his way of expressing thanks).

- RAIN, n. 8. imvula; n. i a. leza.
- NOTE.—The real Ila word is leza, but as this is the same as the name for God, it seems better to use imvula. This is the word in Tonga, and is quite understood by the Baila. Indeed, it is, in one form or another, a very widely prevalent Bantu word for rain. The other languages which have Leza for God all have imvula (or some modification of it) for rain. Thus: Tonga, imvula; Bemba, infula; Luba (Congo), nfula; Luba, imvura; Bisa, infula; Karanga, ivura; Mbunda, nfera; Lamba, imfula; Sodi, ingfula. In the following phrases the word imvula may be substituted for Leza if this suggestion is adopted. See the note on God.
- A continuous heavy rain, n. 6. kachobochocho. A continuous rain, n. 2. muyoba. A slight shower, phr. Leza wa fwilaila. A drizzling rain, n. 3. ifufu. To make rain, phr. ku puka leza.

RELATION.

To show the exact expressions to be used in calling one's relations the following table is provided, representing an actual Ila family. Names printed in italics indicate females; others are of males:—

(1) will address his wives by name, or as 'Mwinangu'. His wives will address him as Mulumiwangu, but they may not speak his name except before the chief.

Either of the wives addressing the other will say, Mukashima. Mwanga is the head wife, nabukando; Namucheme the nabushonto.

(6) (7) (8) (9), speaking to their father, will say Ta; they must not say his name.

(1), speaking to (6) or (8), will say Mwanangu, or musediama. The latter name really indicates that the children were named after their grandmother, i.e. their father's mother; but it may be used in a wider sense, even though the children are not so named, as a term of honour.

(3), speaking to (7) or (9), will say mwanangu or musediata.

(7), speaking to (6), will say Muchizhi wangu, or mukando wangu.

(6), speaking to (7), will say muchizhi wangu, or mwanichangu; she must not say his name.

(6) will call (8) mukwesu, or Yaya; other people speaking to (6) about (8) will refer to her as Munyoko.

(8), speaking to (6), will also say mukwesu or yaya.

(7), speaking to (8), or (8) to (7), will also say muchizhi wangu.

(9) is older than (7), he will therefore call him mwanichangu, while (7) will call (9) mukandowangu.

Each of the wives of Mwanabeni will be addressed as Ma by the children, even if they are not her own.

(10) will speak to (1) as mukwangu, (1) to (10) as mukwe wangu or mukwangu.

(6) will call her mother-in-law Ma.

(12) will call (1) Nkaka, or she may speak his name.

(1) will call (12) or (14) muzukuzhangu.

(12) will call (3) Nkaka, or may speak to her by name.

(3) will call (12) or (14) muzukuzhangu.

(12) will call (7) achisha; she may not say his name.

(7) will call (12) mwiwangu.

(12) will call (8) Ma, and may not speak her name.

(6) will call (13) mulamu, and vice versa.

(10) will call (7) mulamu, and vice versa.

(13) will call (9) bashibebesu, and vice versa.

TABOOED, TO BE, v. i. ku tonda, ku ila, ku zhila; to be tabooed for, on account of, v. t. ku tondela; to taboo, v. t. ku tonzha.

These words are used especially with reference to certain things which are forbidden to various people. Among these the following may be named:—

Young people are forbidden to eat eggs, mukamu (a kind of bread), masekeseki (another kind); the shimulele, shibembe, and inkungwe, fish; kansama (a kind of honey); mankalwe (a kind of potato); katongola (a kind of bread made of ground nuts); miseza (a kind of potato), and fat. A pregnant woman and her husband are forbidden to do certain things for the benefit of the child that is to be born. Some of these things are as follows:—They may not eat the flesh of the gnu, the reason being that the gnu occupies a long time in the actual bringing forth of its young, and it is supposed that if the woman or her husband eat of it the woman will have a long confinement. They are also forbidden to eat hartebeest flesh; it is said that the young hartebeest is born blind, and if the woman or her husband eat this meat their offspring will be blind also. They are also forbidden to eat food that has been cooked on a day previous and left over; this food is called chidyo oh'ona, or chidyo cha mulala. They may not sit on other people's stools, for fear of inducing miscarriage. They may not fight with other people, the reason being that they may peradventure fight with a mulozhi, and a miscarriage might result. Neither husband nor wife may have intercourse with other people, though if the man be a polygamist he may go into his other wives. The woman is also not allowed to sleep in the daytime, it being supposed that otherwise her child will be sleepy-headed or the confinement will be a lengthy one. It is also said that people must never stand about the door of a pregnant woman's house, otherwise her confinement will be lengthy.

Young girls (bashimbi) are forbidden to touch the miando (the musical instruments of the bakamwale), and they may not eat bumena, or it will happen that on the day of their initiation dance it will rain. Children may not refuse to go when sent on errands. And children must never say Nda sata chibunu, I have a pain in the loins; if they do this their elders may die. Women must not speak of sexual matters before men, nor may men before women: that is to say, they may not speak of the genitals and such matters. Women and girls are to be properly clothed in the presence of men. Among the Balumbu it is also forbidden for men to appear improperly clothed before women, but the Baila proper have no such prohibition.

It is quite admissible to give these terms a wider use and apply them to things prohibited by Christianity and civilization; e.g. This thing is not for a believer to do, it is tabooed, Chechi ta chi chiti muvumini, chi la tonda.

It is supposed that spirits of men pass into these monsters. There are several of them in the Nanzela river, in which now reside former chiefs of the locality. It is supposed to seize people. When this happens, a person who is duly protected by medicine goes along the bank, and sits there praying for the captive's release. After a time itoshi, annoyed by the man's importunity, releases its captive. The people seem to be very afraid of this monster, and will paddle very carefully past the place where it lives.

APPENDIX II

SOME PROVERBS IN ADDITION TO THOSE GIVEN IN THE VOCABULARIES

- Bomba, u dye malelo : be humble that you may eat. Advice to a haughty person.
- Bulemu bwa lulu ngu nasanga : the honour of an ant-heap is the grass upon it, i. e. it is not feared unless there is grass upon it in which a lion might be hiding. A man is to be honoured according to what he has.
- Bushiku bomwi ta bu bozha muzovu : one day does not rot an elephant. Rome was not built in a day.
- Chi konda u twele : it pleases who is married. If a wife pleases her husband or a thing its master it does not matter what others may say.
- Chibi chi zhi mulomo : a bad thing knows the mouth. Don't refuse without tasting ; don't give up without trying.
- Chibi ku bantu ukudi baina nchibotu : what is bad to (other) people is good to its (a child's) mother.
- Chidingadinga chidi badi nkumu : good luck is of those who have the (lucky) forehead. It is not every one who has good luck.
- Ing'ombe insolozhi nji nwa menzhi : the ox which first arrives is the one that drinks good water. First come, first served.
- Kabwenga moa ngu ongola : it is a cowardly (or prudent) hyena that lives long. Discretion is the better part of valour.
- Ku mukando ta ku tika mushinza : by an elder gravy is not spilt. He knows better than a youngster how to do things.
- Ku zuba o mwana kulu mwinzhila : hiding with a child the leg is in the road, i. e. it will be seen by those searching for you. Don't trust in unworthy people when you are in trouble.
- Kula, u bone twa 'nshi : grow that you may see the things on the earth. The more you live the more you see.
- Kupa nkwanzhika : to give is to hang up. He who gives will receive.
- Lemeka kana, ako ka ku lemeka : honour a child that it may honour you.
- Matako aswangene ta budi mutukuta : buttocks meeting do not lack perspiration. People who live long together are bound to quarrel some time.

- Mukando mu shie lubilo, mano to mu shii : you may surpass an elder in speed but not in cunning.
